Foreword

THE great amount of revision and reorganization which goes into each edition of THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK is a significant reflection of the ever-changing nature of the modern world. The last twelve months have seen the appearance of new nations, important changes in the structure of governments, new initiatives in the diplomatic field, and a serious world monetary crisis. As always, THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK has kept pace with these developments, and as the need for international understanding and communication increases, remains a basic source of information about every country of the world and all the principal international organizations.

More specifically, this first volume of Europa's two-volume world survey, now in its thirteenth annual edition, contains an extensive reorganization of many of the sections dealing with major international organizations, in particular the United Nations and its associated bodies, in an attempt to clarify their sometimes complex structure and provide a better understanding of the vital role which they play in the world today. Several new organizations have been added. In Part II, constitutional changes have been recorded in several countries of Europe, including Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, where major changes have been brought about in the government. Revision of statistical surveys again demonstrates the rapid growth of world population and trade. Introductory surveys to each country have been extensively rewritten; in their various sections they reflect some of the most important events of the year and illustrate the widespread economic problems of Europe.

The work of compiling the information contained in THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK would be impossible without the continued generous co-operation of many individuals and organizations throughout the world, especially statistical offices, departments of information and diplomatic missions. In particular, the editors wish to express their thanks to the United Nations for permission to use copyright material from the UN Demographic Yearbook, to the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development for assistance with Gross National Product estimates, including the supply of figures otherwise unpublished, and to the International Institute for Strategic Studies, 18 Adam Street, London, WC2N 6AL, for permission to use data on defence manpower and finance from The Military Balance 1971-1972.

INTERNATIONAL COMPARISONS

The following tables provide a general comparison of international population and economic statistics. All data applies to 1969, the most recent year for which it was possible to compile uniform information, except for the average life expectancy figures, which are the latest available and were taken from the 1970 UN Demographic Yearbook.

Gross National Product figures can be taken as indicators of the comparative sizes of the various national economies, and Gross National Product per capita figures provide an index of the comparative wealth and poverty of the countries. Owing to unequal distribution of wealth a G.N.P. per capita figure can by no means be taken as an average income. Sources are quoted at the end of the tables, but it must be stressed that the G.N.P. and G.N.P. per capita figures are approximations and may only be used as a general index. In particular, a wide margin of error may be expected in estimates for socialist economies, and in G.N.P. per capita figures under $100, where the subsistence sector is unusually important and the degree of precision tends to decrease as the ratio of subsistence production to total G.N.P. increases.

PART I

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

First Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Founded in 1945 to maintain international peace and security and to develop international co-operation in economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

PREAMBLE

We the peoples of the United Nations determined

TO SAVE succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

TO REAFFIRM faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

TO ESTABLISH conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and

TO PROMOTE social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends

TO PRACTISE tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and

TO UNITE our strength to maintain international peace and security, and

TO ENSURE, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

TO EMPLOY international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims

Accordingly, our respective governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

ORIGIN

The United Nations was a name devised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was first used in the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, when representatives of twenty-six nations pledged their governments to continue fighting together against the Axis powers.

The United Nations Charter was drawn up by the representatives of fifty countries at the United Nations Conference on International Organization, which met at San Francisco from April 25th to June 26th, 1945. The representatives deliberated on the basis of proposals worked out by representatives of China, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks in August-October 1944. The Charter was signed on June 26th, 1945. Poland, not represented at the Conference, signed it later but nevertheless became one of the original fifty-one members.

The United Nations officially came into existence on October 24th, 1945, when the Charter had been ratified by China, France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States, and by a majority of other signatories. October 24th is now universally celebrated as United Nations Day.

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The purposes of the United Nations are:

- To maintain international peace and security;
- To develop friendly relations among nations;
- To co-operate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

The United Nations acts in accordance with these principles:

- It is based on the sovereign equality of all its members.
- All members are to fulfil in good faith their Charter obligations.
- They are to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and without endangering peace, security and justice.
- They are to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against other states.
- They are to give the United Nations every assistance in action it takes in accordance with the Charter, and not to assist states against which preventive or enforcement action is being taken.
- The United Nations is to ensure that states which are not members act in accordance with these principles in so far as it is necessary to maintain international peace and security.

Nothing in the Charter is to authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are purely the national concern of any state.

The official languages of the United Nations are Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. Its working languages are English and French. Spanish is also a working language of the General Assembly and of the Economic and Social Council.

Membership of the United Nations is open to all peace-loving nations which accept the obligations of the United Nations Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

The original members of the United Nations are those countries which signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, or took part in the San Francisco Conference, and which signed and ratified the Charter.

Other countries can be admitted by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. A two-thirds majority vote by the Assembly is required.

Members may be suspended or expelled by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. They may be suspended if the Security Council is taking enforcement action against them or expelled if they persistently violate the principles of the Charter. The Security Council can restore its rights to a suspended member.

TOTAL MEMBERSHIP 132 (January 1972)

¹ From 1945 until 1971 the Chinese seat was occupied by the Republic of China (Taiwan).

³ Indonesia withdrew from the United Nations in January 1965 but resumed membership in September 1966.

⁵ At the time of going to press, the United Nations had not determined the contributions of these states to its budget.

⁶ Tanganyika was a member of the United Nations from December 1961 and Zanzibar was a member from December 1963. From April 1964, the United Republic of Tanganyika and Zanzibar continued as a single member, changing its name to United Republic of Tanzania in November 1964.

THE MAIN ORGANS

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly was established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 10th, 1946. It is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations.

MEMBERS

All members of the UN. Each delegation consists of not more than five representatives and five alternates with as many advisers, technical advisers and experts as may be required.

ORGANIZATION

President for 26th Session (September–December 1971):
ADAM MALIK (Indonesia).

Vice-Presidents: Chairmen of the delegations of Belgium, Burundi, China, Costa Rica, France, Greece, Hungary, Japan, Peru, Sierra Leone, Sudan, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A., Venezuela, Yemen (People's Democratic Republic) and Zambia.

The Assembly meets regularly once a year, but special sessions may also be held. It has the power to adopt recommendations only, not binding decisions. Important questions are decided by a two-thirds majority. Each nation has one vote and each vote is equal.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS

MAIN COMMITTEES

There are seven Main Committees, on which all members have a right to be represented. The First to Sixth were appointed on January 11th, 1946. An ad hoc Political Committee was first established in November 1948 and re-established annually until November 1956, when it was made permanent and renamed Special Political Committee.

First Committee: Political and Security.

SECURITY COUNCIL

Established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 17th, 1946. The task of the Security Council is to promote international peace and security in all parts of the world.

MEMBERS

Permanent members:

China, People's Republic of	United Kingdom
France	U.S.A.
U.S.S.R.

The remaining ten members are normally elected by the General Assembly for two-year periods:

Until December 1972: Argentina, Italy, Belgium, Somalia, Japan.

Until December 1973: Guinea, India, Panama, Sudan, Yugoslavia.

ORGANIZATION

The Security Council has the right to investigate any dispute or situation which might lead to friction between two or more countries, and such disputes or situations may be brought to the Council's attention either by one of its members, by any member state, by the General Assembly, by the Secretary-General or even, under certain conditions, by a state which is not a member of the United Nations.

The Council has the right to recommend ways and means of peaceful settlement and, in certain circumstances, the actual terms of settlement.

In the event of a threat to or breach of international peace or an act of aggression, the Council has powers to take "enforcement" measures in order to restore international peace and security. These include severance of communications and of economic and diplomatic relations and, if required, action by air, land and sea forces.

All members of the United Nations are pledged by the Charter to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with special agreements, the armed forces, assistance and facilities necessary to maintain international peace and security. These agreements, however, have not yet been concluded.

The Council is organized to be able to function continuously. The Presidency of the Council is held monthly in turn by the member states in English alphabetical order.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

Each member of the Council has one vote. On procedural matters decisions are made by the affirmative vote of any nine members. For decisions on other matters the required nine affirmative votes must include the votes of the five permanent members. This is the rule of "great power unanimity" popularly known as the "veto" privilege. This right has so far been exercised 116 times, as follows: China (1), France (4), U.S.S.R. (105), United Kingdom (5), U.S.A. (1) (as at February, 1971).

In practice, an abstention by one of the permanent members is not regarded as a veto. Any member, whether permanent or non-permanent, must abstain from voting in any decision concerning the pacific settlement of a dispute to which it is a party.

SUBSIDIARY BODY

Military Staff Committee: Consists of the Chiefs of Staff (or their representatives) of the five permanent members of the Security Council and assists the Council on all military questions.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—ECOSOC

Promotes world co-operation on economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

MEMBERS

Twenty-seven members are elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms: nine are elected each year. Current membership:

Until December 1972: Brazil, Ceylon, France, Ghana, Greece, Italy, Kenya, Peru, Tunisia.

Until December 1973: Haiti, Hungary, Lebanon, Madagascar, Malaysia, New Zealand, Niger, U.S.A., Zaire.

Until December 1974: Bolivia, Burundi, Chile, China (People's Republic of), Finland, Japan, Poland, U.S.S.R., U.K.

ORGANIZATION

The Council, normally meeting twice a year in New York and Geneva, is mainly a central policy-making and co-ordinating organ. It has a co-ordinating function between UN and the specialized agencies, and also makes consultative arrangements with approved voluntary or non-governmental organizations which work within the sphere of its activities. The Council has functional and regional commissions to carry out much of its detailed work.

President (1972): KAROLY SZARKA (Hungary).

Vice-Presidents (1972): SERGIO ARMANDA FRAZÃO (Brazil), PHAIK GAN LIM (Malaysia), JOHN V. SCOTT (New Zealand).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

One of the six main organs of the UN, the Trusteeship Council supervises United Nations' Trust Territories through the administering authorities to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants towards self-government or independence.

TERRITORIES UNDER TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

New Guinea (Australia).

Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (U.S.A.).

MEMBERS OF TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The Council consists of member states administering Trust Territories, permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer Trust Territories, and enough other non-administering countries elected by the Assembly for three-year terms to ensure that the membership is equally divided between administering and non-administering members.

Administering Countries:

Australia
United States

Other Countries:

China, People's Republic of France
United Kingdom
U.S.S.R.

ORGANIZATION

The Council meets once a year, generally in June. Each member has one vote, and decisions are made by a simple majority of the members present and voting. A new President is elected at the beginning of the Council's regular session each year.

The Council is under the authority of the General Assembly for all its territories except the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. This has been designated a strategic area, and the supervisory functions of the United Nations are, in its case, exercised by the Trusteeship Council under the authority of the Security Council.

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Peace Palace, The Hague 2012, Netherlands

Set up in 1945, the Court is the principal judicial organ of the UN. All members of the UN are parties to the Statute of the Court, and also Switzerland, Liechtenstein and San Marino. In addition, the Court is open to the Federal Republic of Germany and the Republic of Viet-Nam. States parties to the Statute: 135.

COMPOSITION OF THE COURT

The Judges. The Court is composed of fifteen independent judges of different nationalities, elected from among persons of high moral character who possess high judicial or legal qualifications. Representation of the main forms of civilization and legal systems of the world is required to be borne in mind in their election. Candidates are nominated by national groups appointed by governments under special conditions, and for election require an absolute majority in both the General Assembly and the Security Council sitting independently. Judges, known as Members of the Court, are elected for nine years and may be re-elected; elections for five seats are held every three years. The Court elects its President and Vice-President for each three-year period. Members may not have any political, administrative, or other professional occupation, and may not sit in any case with which they have been otherwise connected than as a judge of the Court. They undertake to exercise their powers impartially and conscientiously. For the purposes of a case, each side—consisting of one or more States—may, unless the Bench already includes a judge with a corresponding nationality, choose a person from outside the Court to sit as a judge on terms of equality with the Members. Judicial decisions are taken by a majority of the judges present, subject to a quorum of nine Members. The President has a casting vote.

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT

The International Court of Justice operates in accordance with a Statute which is an integral part of the UN Charter and is based on the Statute of the former Permanent Court of International Justice, established in 1920 under the League of Nations and dissolved in 1946. References conferring jurisdiction on the Permanent Court in treaties or conventions still in force are deemed to be references to the present Court. Only States may be parties in cases before the Court; those not parties to the Statute may have access in certain circumstances and under conditions laid down by the Security Council.

A review of the role of the Court is on the agenda of the General Assembly.

The Jurisdiction of the Court comprises:

1. All cases which the parties refer to it jointly by special agreement (there have been five such).
2. All matters concerning which a treaty or convention in force provides for reference to the Court. Nearly 200 bilateral or multilateral agreements make such provision. Among the more noteworthy: General Act for Pacific Settlement of International Disputes (1949), Treaty of Peace with Japan (1951), European Convention for Peaceful Settlement of Disputes (1957), Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs (1961), Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees (1967).
3. Legal disputes between States which have recognized the jurisdiction of the Court as compulsory for specified classes of disputes. Forty-six States have made declarations thus accepting the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court: Australia, Belgium, Botswana, Cambodia, Canada, China, Colombia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Finland, France, Gambia, Haiti, Honduras, India, Israel, Japan, Kenya, Liberia, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malawi, Malta, Mauritius, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Philippines, Portugal, Somalia, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uganda, United Arab Republic, United Kingdom, United States of America, and Uruguay.

Disputes as to whether the Court has jurisdiction are settled by the Court.

Judgments are without appeal, but are binding only for the particular case and between the parties.

Compliance with Judgments. States appearing before the Court undertake to comply with its Judgment. If a party to a case fails to do so, the other party may apply to the Security Council, which may make recommendations or decide upon measures to give effect to the Judgment.

Advisory opinions on legal questions may be requested by the General Assembly, the Security Council or, if so authorized by the Assembly, other United Nations organs or specialized agencies.

PAST CASES

Forty cases have been referred to the Court by States. Some were removed from the list as a result of settlement or discontinuance, or on the grounds of a lack of basis for jurisdiction. Cases which have been the subject of a judgment by the Court include:

Corfu Channel (United Kingdom v. Albania), Fisheries (United Kingdom v. Norway), Asylum (Colombia/Peru), Haya de la Torre (Colombia v. Peru), Rights of Nationals of the United States of America in Morocco (France v. United States), Ambatielos (Greece v. United Kingdom), Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. (United Kingdom v. Iran), Minquiers and Ecrehos (France/United Kingdom), Nottebohm (Liechtenstein v. Guatemala), Monetary Gold Removed from Rome in 1943 (Italy v. France, United Kingdom and United States), Certain Norwegian Loans (France v. Norway), Right of Passage over Indian Territory (Portugal v. India), Application of the Convention of 1902 Governing the Guardianship of Infants (Netherlands v. Sweden), Interhandel (Switzerland v. United States), Sovereignty over Certain Frontier Land (Belgium/Netherlands), Arbitral Award made by the King of Spain on 23 December 1906 (Honduras v. Nicaragua), Temple of Preah Vihear (Cambodia v. Thailand), South West Africa (Ethiopia and Liberia v. South Africa), Northern Cameroons (Cameroon v. United Kingdom), Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Co., Ltd. (New Application: 1962) (Belgium v. Spain),

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

North Sea Continental Shelf (Federal Republic of Germany/Denmark and Netherlands).

Advisory Opinions on the following matters have been given by the Court at the request of the United Nations General Assembly:

Condition of Admission of a State to Membership in the United Nations; Competence of the General Assembly for the Admission of a State to the United Nations; Reparation for Injuries Suffered in the Service of the United Nations; Interpretation of the Peace Treaties with Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania; International Status of South West Africa; Voting Procedure on Questions relating to Reports and Petitions concerning the Territory of South West Africa; Admissibility of Hearings of Petitioners by the Committee of South West Africa; Reservations to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide; Effect of Awards of Compensation Made by the United Nations Administrative Tribunal; Certain Expenses of the United Nations.

In 1971 the Court gave its fourth Advisory Opinion in regard to South West Africa (Namibia), this time at the request of the Security Council (see next section).

The Court has also, at the request of Unesco, given an Advisory Opinion on Judgments of the Administrative Tribunal of the ILO upon Complaints made against Unesco and, at the request of IMCO, on the Constitution of the Maritime Safety Committee of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization.

RECENT JUDICIAL ACTIVITY OF THE COURT

In the period from January 20th to June 21st, 1971, the Court held 24 public sittings, one closed sitting and 50 private meetings. On June 21st, 1971, answering a question filed on behalf of the Security Council on August 10th, 1970, it delivered its Advisory Opinion on the Legal Consequences for States of the continued presence of South Africa in Namibia (South West Africa) notwithstanding Security Council resolution 276 (1970). The Court was of the opinion, by 13 votes to 2:

- (1) that, the continued presence of South Africa in Namibia being illegal, South Africa was under obligation to withdraw its administration from Namibia immediately and thus put an end to its occupation of the Territory;
- (2) that States Members of the United Nations were under obligation to recognize the illegality of South Africa's presence in Namibia and the invalidity of its acts on behalf of or concerning Namibia and to refrain from any acts and in particular any dealings with the Government of South Africa implying recognition of the legality of, or lending support or assistance to, such presence and administration;

- (3) that it was incumbent upon States which were not Members of the United Nations to give assistance, within the scope of subparagraph (2) above, in the action which had been taken by the United Nations with regard to Namibia.

During these proceedings, written or oral statements and information were submitted on behalf of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, Organization of African Unity and thirteen States.

On August 30th, 1971, the Government of India, invoking Article 84 of the 1944 International Civil Aviation Convention, Article II of the International Air Services Transit Agreement, and Articles 36 and 37 of the Court's Statute, filed an Appeal relating to the Jurisdiction of the ICAC Council. This case has arisen out of the Council's rejection on July 29th, 1971, of India's preliminary objections to the hearing of an application and a complaint by Pakistan relative to the suspension of overflights. Owing to the nationality of the President of the Court, the Vice-President is discharging his functions in the case, and India alone of the parties has appointed a judge ad hoc. The Memorial of India was filed on December 22nd, 1971, in accordance with a slightly extended time-limit.

REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS

ECONOMIC COMMISSION FOR EUROPE—ECE

Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

ECE was established in 1947. Representatives of all European countries and of the United States study European economic and technological problems and recommend courses of action.

MEMBERS

Albania	Greece	Romania
Austria	Hungary	Spain
Belgium	Iceland	Sweden
Bulgaria	Ireland	Turkey
Byelorussian S.S.R.	Italy	Ukrainian S.S.R.
Cyprus	Luxembourg	U.S.S.R.
Czechoslovakia	Malta	U.K.
Denmark	Netherlands	U.S.A.
Finland	Norway	Yugoslavia
France	Poland
Federal Republic of Germany	Portugal

Switzerland takes part in a consultative capacity.

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

ECE is one of the four regional economic commissions set up by the UN Economic and Social Council. The Commission holds an annual plenary session and brief meetings of subsidiary bodies are convened throughout the year. Specialists seek agreements for later government approval, collect statistics and exchange technical information, both at meetings and through distribution of reports and special papers. ECE itself takes no action affecting governments.

SECRETARIAT

Executive Secretary: JANEZ STANOVNIK (Yugoslavia).

The Secretariat services the meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies and publishes periodic surveys and reviews, including a number of specialized statistical bulletins on coal, timber, steel, housing and building, electric power, gas and transport.

COMMITTEES

Committee on Agricultural Problems. Keeps under review the market conditions, follows developments under the Protocol on the Standardization of Fruit and Vegetables, examines problems arising from mechanization of agriculture, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain agricultural products (cereals and citrus fruits). Chair. A. GRACHEGG (Austria).

Timber Committee. Regularly reviews the market in sawn softwood, small-sized roundwood and hardwood, studies forest working techniques, compiles statistics, watches trends in the use of wood and its products and of wood waste, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain categories of timber. Chair. N. DUMITRESCU (Romania).

Coal Committee. Concentrates on problems of production and trade, makes recommendations on the use of solid fuel. With agreements reached on the international classification of brown coals and lignites, ECE has completed the classification by type of all existing coals. Drafts general conditions of sale for solid fuels. Chair. B. KRUPINSKI (Poland).

Committee on Electric Power. Studies hydro-electric resources, thermal power plants, legal questions, rural electrification and the cost of financing new projects. ECE's relationship with the International Atomic Energy Agency is close. Chair. S. LALANDER (Sweden).

Committee on Gas. Deals with the economic and technical aspects of the production, transport and utilization of gas, natural and manufactured as well as liquefied petroleum gases, and forecasts demand. Chair. V. DRUG (Romania).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Committee on Housing, Building and Planning. Periodically reviews trends and progress, with special reference to industrialization of construction and building costs. Studies land use and prices, urban renewal and physical planning. Housing problems of less industrialized countries receive special consideration. Chair. V. RANGUELOV (Bulgaria).

Inland Transport Committee. Covers road, rail and inland water transport, customs, contracts, transport of dangerous and perishable goods, equipment, statistics, tariffs, river law, road transport régime and road traffic accidents, construction of vehicles and passenger transport services by road. A number of international agreements are in force following their adoption through ECE. Chair. M. POPPE (Belgium).

Steel Committee. Annually reviews trends in the European and world markets, changes in price policy, growth of capacity supply factors and future prospects. Also studies long-term economic and technological problems. Chair. E. CONROT (Luxembourg).

Committee on the Development of Trade. Examines intra-European trade, especially east/west trade. Organizes facilities in arbitration, trade fairs and technical shows, standardization of general conditions of sale of goods, insurance, simplification and standardization of export documents, payments arrangements, including multi-lateral compensation procedures, and consultations. Chair. M. STEPHANOV (Bulgaria).

Conference of European Statisticians. Promotes improvement of national statistics and their international comparability in economic, social and demographic fields; facilitates exchange of information between European countries. Chair. P. J. BJERVE (Norway).

Senior Economic Advisers to ECE Governments. Brings together high-calibre governmental experts for an exchange of views and experience on selected problems of governmental economic policy. Also, organizes—under its auspices—groups of experts, joint research projects and seminars on methodological problems relating to medium- and long-term planning and projections. Chair. J. W. CARLSON (U.S.A.).

Committee on Water Problems. Reviews annually major trends and policies with regard to water resources use and developments. Studies problems relating to the methodology of surveying water resources and needs including the establishment of relevant balances and statistics. Also studies selected problems of water pollution control and of governmental policy related to the formulation and administration of water management plans. Chair. I. I. BORODAVTCHENKO (U.S.S.R.).

Chemical Industry Committee. Regularly reviews the market of chemical products and their raw materials in Europe, U.S.A. and Japan. Compiles annual statistics on production of and trade in chemical products. Carries out studies on special problems arising in connection with the development of the chemical industry. Chair. M. MOLDOVAN (Romania).

BUDGET

ECE's budget of $2,600,000 is included in the budget of the UN.

PUBLICATIONS

Economic Survey of Europe (annual); Economic Bulletin for Europe; frequent statistical and technical studies and bulletins, ECE News/Nouvelles (monthly, in English and French).

ECONOMIC COMMISSION FOR ASIA AND THE FAR EAST—ECAFE

ORGANIZATION

The Commission meets yearly in different member countries (first session, Shanghai, 1947; twenty-eighth session scheduled for Bangkok, March 1972).

The work of the Commission is conducted through its annual sessions; meetings of its main committees and sub-committees, working parties, ad hoc conferences, trade promotion meetings and seminars; year-round work of a secretariat with headquarters in Bangkok; and technical assistance to governments. Fields of work include:

Development Research and Planning

Trade
Industry and Natural Resources
Water Resources
Agricultural Development
Transport and Communications
Statistics
Population
Social Development
Public Administration

Executive Secretary: U NYUN (Burma).

ACTIVITIES

ECAFE seeks to promote regional co-operation in all possible areas, from river basin development, transport and telecommunications, for example, to joint-venture industries and trade. At the same time, it helps individual members in the planning and carrying out of balanced national development programmes.

In recent years ECAFE's work has been increasingly focused on action-oriented programmes to stimulate tangible growth. To provide a sound basis for regional and national development, ECAFE compiles and analyses statistics; prepares economic surveys and studies; organizes seminars, working parties and study tours; and provides advisory services to governments at their request. Although ECAFE does not itself distribute capital aid, it has helped set up and attract funds for regional projects that, in turn, provide development assistance. The Asian Development Bank, for example, grew out of an ECAFE decision on the need for a source of additional capital; since 1966 it has operated as an independent institution in Manila (see separate chapter below).

ECAFE initiatives have resulted in the establishment of the Committee for the Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin, composed of Cambodia, Laos, the Republic of Viet-Nam and Thailand, in 1957; the Asian Highway Co-ordinating Committee, which is served by a Transport Technical Bureau operating at ECAFE headquarters; and the Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, set up in 1964. All three are now working in Bangkok, with links to ECAFE and with aid from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

ECAFE efforts to stimulate regional economic co-operation have also led to the establishment of the Asian Industrial Development Council, in 1966; the Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in Asian Offshore Areas, in the same year; ECAFE Trade Promotion Centre, in 1968; the Asian Coconut Community, formally inaugurated in 1969; the ECAFE/World Meteorological Organization (WMO) Joint Unit on Typhoons, in 1968; and the Asian Statistical Institute, which began training of senior government statisticians in Tokyo in June 1970.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Enterprises in regional economic co-operation in 1971 included the opening of the Southeast Asia Iron and Steel Institute in March; the signing in April of an agreement establishing a Pepper Community; and in June the approval by UNDP and contributing governments of plans for the joint-financing of an Asian Centre for Development Administration.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCES

To speed up economic co-operation, ECAFE has convened four ministerial conferences—in Manila in 1963 and 1965, in Bangkok in 1968 and in Kabul in 1970—now called the Council of Ministers for Asian Economic Co-operation. At its most recent session the Council of Ministers adopted the "Kabul Declaration"—a call for further efforts to expand regional trade, improve monetary mechanisms, and concerted action on a variety of other problems, with special aid to the least developed countries.

In its current work, ECAFE is also giving special attention to ways of achieving regional growth during the coming United Nations Second Development Decade (1971–1980), following guide-lines adopted at the Commission's annual sessions in Singapore in 1969, and Bangkok 1970. Some current and recent activities in major fields are outlined below.

FIELDS OF ECAFE WORK

Development Research and Planning: As a foundation for action programmes, the ECAFE secretariat carries out an annual Economic Survey of Asia and the Far East; studies specific problems involved in development planning, plan harmonization and regional co-operation; has assisted with world-wide preparations for the Second Development Decade; and aids with national planning problems.

An example of regional co-operation and plan harmonization is the establishment of the Asian Coconut Community—the first association of Asian producers organized on a commodity basis—which was formally inaugurated under ECAFE auspices in September 1969 and temporarily began work at ECAFE headquarters. It dates back to an ECAFE study in 1967–68 analysing problems of the coconut industry and recommending action. In response, major coconut-producing countries of the region formed the Community to promote, co-ordinate and harmonize all activities of the coconut industry.

Following the success of the study on coconut, the ECAFE secretariat is engaged in studies on other commodities such as rice, seeking concrete solutions to problems of exporting and importing countries.

The Division will be the chief instrument of the current ECAFE priority concern for measuring progress in the region during the Second United Nations Development Decade.

International Trade: ECAFE is seeking to help members in the region expand trade among themselves and with the rest of the world—for example, through liberalization, easing of customs formalities, promotional efforts, and improved regional payments arrangements. In response to a request made under the "Kabul Declaration", an inter-governmental committee convened by ECAFE drew up a Draft Agreement on an Asian Clearing Union. The text has been referred to the UN Legal Office and IMF for study of technical points. ECAFE's Trade Promotion Centre, established in 1968, organizes training courses, offers advisory services to governments, and aids in national and international exhibitions designed to stimulate commerce. The First and Second Asian International Trade Fairs (Bangkok, Thailand, 1966, and Teheran, Iran, 1969) were held with ECAFE support; in conjunction with the two Fairs, ECAFE arranged for Trade Promotion Talks to be held by governments. A third Asian International Trade Fair is scheduled to be held in New Delhi in 1972. ECAFE's Centre for Shipping Information and Advisory Services, set up in 1967, aids governments with problems such as freight rates, establishment of shippers' councils, development of merchant marines, and other steps designed to reduce export costs. The Centre for Commercial Arbitration has drawn up standards in this field and carries out research intended to improve arbitral facilities and practices in the ECAFE region.

Industry and Natural Resources: Ways of speeding industrial development in the region are sought by ECAFE through field missions, studies, advisory services, and expert meetings dealing, for example, with iron and steel, joint ventures in the petrochemical industry, manufacture of improved farm machinery, application of advanced technology in coconut-processing, low-cost automation for small-scale industries, and handicrafts. The establishment of a South East Asia Iron and Steel Institute in 1971, in Singapore, is one outgrowth of ECAFE activities in this field. Guidance is provided by the Asian Industrial Development Council (AIDC) and ECAFE's Committee on Industry and Natural Resources, which also has a work programme in mineral and energy resources development and housing. The Second Asian Industrialization Conference held in Tokyo in September 1970 charted policy guidelines for developing Asian countries in their efforts to reach a target of "a minimum rate of industrial growth of 12 per cent per annum" in the Second Development Decade (1971–80).

Offshore Resources: The ECAFE-fostered Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in Asian Offshore Areas (CCOP), set up in 1966, seeks to promote and co-ordinate exploration, using advanced technology, to locate undersea resources of mineral wealth adjoining land areas of countries in the Western Pacific region. Specially equipped vessels, aircraft and other facilities have been provided by industrialized countries to aid in this effort. A geophysical survey conducted in the East China Sea and Yellow Sea has indicated that the shallow sea floor between Japan and the Republic of China may contain one of the most prolific oil reservoirs in the world. Plans for a similar co-ordinating body for offshore prospecting in the Indian Ocean area are under consideration.

Mineral Resources: A team of experts visited 14 countries in 1971 as part of a survey aimed at speeding up mineral resources development. It also considered the need to establish a proposed Regional Mineral Resources Development Centre. In addition, possibilities for a Tin Research and Development Centre for Southeast Asia were considered late in 1971 at a meeting in Bangkok.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Human Environment: Asia's first seminar on "Development and Environment" was held in August 1971 by ECAFE and the secretariat of the UN Conference on Human Environment (scheduled for Stockholm in 1972). It urged developing countries to meet environmental threats as early as possible, and expressed concern over problems such as inadequate housing and transport, water pollution, industrial wastes and deterioration of natural resources.

Water Resources: ECAFE is working on problems of river-basin development, improved use of delta land, conservation and development of national water resources, and typhoon forecasting services. A Typhoon Committee was set up by ECAFE and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) in 1968 to help in the task of minimizing the damage caused by typhoons and associated floods in the region, which cost an estimated U.S. $600 million a year. Possibilities for launching a similar ECAFE/WMO project designed to lessen damage caused by cyclones in the Bay of Bengal area are being investigated. Under the auspices of ECAFE's Water Resources Consulting Group, organized in 1967, groups of experts from donor countries have provided advisory services relating to water conservation and development.

In 1970-71 a Roving Seminar on Water Resources Planning visited 11 countries and held sessions with more than 600 participants. Effects have been made to encourage development of additional international river basins in the ECAFE region, similar to the Mekong development (see below).

Agriculture: Economic problems of agriculture, and agricultural aspects of economic programmes that are of interest to both ECAFE and the Food and Agriculture Organization, are dealt with by a Joint ECAFE/FAO Agriculture Division. Activities include studies in these fields, meetings of expert groups, and advisory aid to governments.

Transport and Communications: As part of its efforts to help member countries expand and modernize travel and transport facilities, ECAFE is seeking a Trans-Asian Rail Network to provide greater uniformity of services in Asia and permit links with Europe and Africa. The network proposed, from Istanbul to Singapore, would total about 14,000 km. In addition, ECAFE is working on highway transport problems and co-operates with the Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau (see below); water transport; urban traffic problems; and ways of expanding tourism. ECAFE's Port Information and Advisory Centre offers technical assistance with port-facilities problems. In 1971, ECAFE increased emphasis on field missions on transport problems. They worked, for example, on containerization techniques in the region, overall transport problems in Ceylon, and extension of Trans-Asian railway routes in Thailand. A joint unit of ECAFE and the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) is stressing efforts to improve telecommunication services in the region, upgrade technological training, and lay the groundwork for the introduction of satellite communications in the area.

With the support of UNDP an ITU team is now working with twelve ECAFE countries in surveys of existing systems, routes and operating methods for the promotion of an Asian regional telecommunications network.

Statistics: As a basic activity, the ECAFE secretariat publishes the Statistical Yearbook for Asia and the Far East. Other activities include compilation of statistics in specific fields, aid to governments with statistical problems, and servicing of the Conference of Asian Statisticians. As an outgrowth of an ECAFE resolution adopted in 1967, the Asian Statistical Institute for training and research was opened in Tokyo in 1969 as an undertaking of governments in the region and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

Population: A new Population Division was established in the ECAFE secretariat in 1969 and is now carrying out an expanded Asian Population Programme designed to increase regional assistance to national efforts in this field. High priority is being given to improving the effectiveness of evaluation and training procedures in national family planning programmes. Advisory services are available to meet government requests. In 1971 a seminar on ecological implications of rural and urban population growth—the first regional meeting on this theme—urged Asian nations to adopt comprehensive planning to ease growing environmental problems caused by rapid growth. Another seminar indicated that a billion additional jobs in Asia would be needed by 2000 A.D. and called for close co-ordination of population and manpower policies. An ECAFE training course recommended further use of computers as tools in speeding up the processing of demographic data.

Plans were laid for the Second Asian Population Conference, scheduled for November 1972 (in Tokyo) and its links to World Population Year in 1974.

Social Development: ECAFE is expanding its social programmes in the belief that development is an integrated and balanced process in which economic and social factors interact. A review of social trends and developments in the ECAFE region is periodically made as part of a world survey issued by the United Nations. Advisory missions in social development planning, social work, and community development training have been provided during the year. The role of young people in national development was explored at an ECAFE-sponsored seminar in Bangkok in September to October 1970.

Public Administration: This relatively new field in ECAFE activities includes surveys and seminar-type meetings on subjects such as national personnel systems, administrative reforms, and civil service training needs. Final steps are being taken for the establishment of an Asian Centre for Development Administration, designed to carry out high-level training and research to help meet the needs of developing countries for a new kind of "development manager". It will be financed by the UNDP and participating governments.

Technical Assistance: In many of the individual subject fields cited above, technical assistance activities are undertaken by ECAFE with funds from the regular United Nations budget and from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), which is financed with voluntary contributions. These activities include seminars, advisory services, and training aid.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

REGIONAL PROJECTS

MEKONG DEVELOPMENT PROJECT

The Mekong Project seeks to develop the water resources of the Lower Mekong Basin, including mainstream and tributaries, in terms of hydroelectric power, irrigation, flood control, drainage, navigation improvement, watershed management, water supply and related benefits. The project is directed by the Committee for the Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin consisting of the Khmer Republic, Laos, the Republic of Viet-Nam and Thailand, which operates under the auspices of ECAFE and the UNDP. Its work has been supported by 26 governments outside the region, a total of 16 United Nations agencies or bodies, and a number of foundations and business firms. (Further information on the Mekong Project appears in a separate chapter below.)

ASIAN HIGHWAY

The Asian Highway Project, approved by ECAFE in 1959, calls for a network of 60,000 km. in 14 countries. During the first United Nations Development Decade, ending in 1970, efforts have been concentrated on establishing at least one through route from west to east, with connections to all other countries not served by that route. Route A-1, from Iran to the Republic of Viet-Nam (10,800 km.), considered one of the most important routes, is now 94 per cent complete. As for the entire network, more than four-fifths is now motorable in all weather.

To demonstrate the availability of the various sections of the Asian Highway to trade and tourist traffic, the first Asian Highway motor rally, from Vientiane to Singapore, was organized in April 1969. A second rally for the western section of the highway between Teheran (Iran) and Dacca (Pakistan), was held in November 1970. A third rally is being planned.

Work on the project is guided by the Asian Highway Co-ordinating Committee, composed of representatives at ministerial level from member countries, which held its first meeting in April 1965. An Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau, based with ECAFE and aided by the UNDP, seeks to assist member countries in the project and to carry out recommendations of the Co-ordinating Committee.

ASIAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING

The Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, established in 1964, provides training, on a regional basis, for personnel engaged in economic and social development programmes in Asia. It also serves as a development staff college for senior executives of governments and private industry in the ECAFE region.

By October 1971, the Institute had trained more than 1,400 fellows from 25 countries in the ECAFE region, either in Bangkok or in "country courses" elsewhere. A research wing carries out studies of the problems, possibilities and techniques of economic and social development in the region.

The Institute works as an autonomous institution under the aegis of ECAFE with support from the UNDP and participating governments, and with the co-operation of several United Nations specialized agencies, other international organizations and foundations. The management is vested in a Governing Council of which the Executive Secretary of ECAFE is Chairman ex-officio.

Director: MASAYOSHI KAKITSUBO.

BUDGET AND STAFF

For 1971 ECAFE's regular annual budget totalled about U.S. $6.4 million. This sum (which forms part of the regular budget of the United Nations in the economic and social field) was supplemented by technical assistance funds, as well as certain funds from governments and institutions.

In 1971 the work of ECAFE proper was carried out by a staff of some 156 professionals and 277 general-service employees whose posts were financed from the regular budget, plus 20 regional advisers and supporting staff members paid from technical assistance sources. Other staff members serve in the Mekong Office, the Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, and the Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau (which have separate budgets). Overall, the 1971 list includes about 705 from 40 countries.

ORGANIZATION

The Commission normally meets every two years in one of the Latin American capitals. The Commission has established two permanent bodies with various sub-committees:

Central American Economic Co-operation Committee:

- Central American Trade Sub-Committee.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Statistical Co-ordination.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Transport.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Housing, Building and Planning.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Electric Power.
- Central American Commission for Industrial Initiatives.
- Central American Sub-Committee on Agricultural Development.

Trade Committee:

- Working Group on the Regional Market.
- Working Group on Customs Questions.

Executive Secretary: CARLOS QUINTANA (Mexico).

Secretariat: Santiago de Chile; branch offices at Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Washington, D.C.,

Port-of-Spain and Bogotá. The Secretariat is organized into divisions of economic development and research, trade policy, social affairs, agriculture (jointly with FAO), statistics and administration, programmes on integration of industrial development, natural resources and energy and transport and Latin-American Center for Economic Projections.

LATIN AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PLANNING

Santiago, Chile

The Institute was founded by ECLA in June 1962, with financial assistance from the United Nations Special Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank and sixteen Latin American governments, and with the co-operation of OAS, ILO, UNICEF, Resources for the Future, and other international bodies. It operates as an autonomous body under the aegis of ECLA to provide training and advisory services on request to member countries and to undertake research in planning techniques.

Director-General: RAÚL PREBISCH (Argentina).

ACTIVITIES

ECLA's present role is set within the framework of the programme for the Second United Nations Development Decade and its activities are directed to providing support to the regional and sub-regional integration movement which is an established feature of Latin American economic development. ECLA's programme for 1971-72 and subsequent periods is focused on: development policy with the Secretariat undertaking a theoretical analysis of economic problems and formulating policy proposals for economic development; foreign trade and external financing, particularly in view of the region's inadequate share in the growth of world trade and the low level and unfavourable terms of capital inflows; integration, including continental and sub-regional groupings; employment; population in relation to economic and social factors; the export of manufactures, particularly in relation to regional development policies; policies for reducing regional imbalances within ECLA countries in order to achieve integrated and speedier development; and science and technology, mainly with regard to the transfer of expertise, the assimilation of techniques and the development of science and technology within Latin America. Finally, there is the Economic Survey of Latin America, an annual stocktaking of the progress and problems in all sectors of the Latin American economy and of the economic evolution of selected countries.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

BUDGET

ECLA's budget, expected to be $4,800,000 in 1972, is included in the budget of the UN.

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

Executive Secretary: ROBERT K. A. GARDINER (Ghana).

The Commission has held ten sessions since its inception:

1958	December	Addis Ababa
1960	January	Addis Ababa
1961	February	Tangier
1962	February	Addis Ababa

1963	February	Léopoldville
1964	February	Addis Ababa
1965	February	Nairobi
1967	February	Lagos
1969	February	Addis Ababa
1971	February	Tunis

Sub-Regional Offices: Lusaka, Niamey, Tangier, Kinshasa.

ACTIVITIES

Objectives. The work of the Commission is determined by decisions of its plenary sessions. The Commission is charged with the responsibility for promoting and facilitating concerted action for the economic and social development of Africa; for maintaining and strengthening the economic relations of African countries, both among themselves and with other countries of the world; for undertaking or sponsoring investigations, research and studies of economic and technological problems and developments; for collecting, evaluating and disseminating economic, technological and statistical information; and for assisting in the formulation and development of co-ordinated policies promoting economic and technological development in the region.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Areas of Activity. The ECA carries out its activities under the divisions of:

Trade, Fiscal and Monetary Affairs
Natural Resources and Transport
Industry and Housing
Statistics
Human Resources Development
ECA/FAO Joint Agriculture
Economic Research and Planning

There is also a Technical Assistance and Programme Co-ordination Section, a Population Programme Centre, dealing with population programmes and policies, together with general demography, a Centre for Economic Co-operation, and the African Trade Centre.

At the request of member states in the region the Commission also performs advisory services in various economic and social fields. Some of the main features of activities in these areas in 1971 are outlined below. Only a few of the many conferences, seminars and courses in all fields in which ECA participated with other organizations are mentioned.

Operations in 1971

Trade, Fiscal and Monetary Affairs: Following a resolution of the OAU Council of Ministers aimed at extending the activities of the African Groundnut Council to other oil seeds, consultations were held with the governments of Kenya, Nigeria, Tanzania and Zambia to promote agreement on commodity policies. In Zambia a preliminary survey was conducted with a view to developing a phased programme for the introduction of budgetary reforms. Since July, the Secretariat also has been engaged in preparations for the All Africa Trade Fair held in Nairobi in February and March 1972.

Natural Resources and Transport: In Tanzania early in 1971 discussions were held on a draft project submitted by ECA for the establishment of a Water Resources Development Institute. Advisory services were provided in Upper Volta in connection with mining prospecting and legislation and in developing plans for the construction of a dam for irrigation and the production of electric energy.

Industry and Housing: The ECA/OAU Conferences of Ministers of Industry at Addis Ababa from May 3rd-7th, 1971, and attended by representatives from 28 member states resulted in the Addis Ababa Declaration on Industrial Development in Africa in the 1970s. This deals with the mobilization of domestic resources for industrial development, problems of high installation and running costs, private foreign investment, industrial employment and self-reliance for industrial development in the 1970s.

Several projects for industrial plant were formulated and submitted to the governments for examination and implementation. Some of the projects prepared included wire drawing, soap, welded tubes, electro-motors, transformers, agricultural hand tools, fertilizer complex, ceramics and cement. ECA is playing an active role in the promotion of these projects by bringing them to the attention of potential investors.

ECA is actively pursuing the idea of setting up an African Investment Centre which would assist ECA member states in their programmes of industrial development.

Members of the Forest Industries Advisory Group undertook several missions to various member states. Some of the projects prepared by the Group are now being implemented, including plywood and fibreboard mills in Kenya and Uganda.

Statistics: Advisory services in connection with the introduction of the revised UN System of National Accounts were undertaken in Dahomey, Ivory Coast, Liberia and Togo during February and November.

Human Resources Development: Major missions were undertaken mainly in two areas: rural life and institutions and in social welfare policy and training.

Missions were undertaken to Burundi, Rwanda and Zaire to assist their governments to review their respective rural development policies.

In Dahomey, Mali, Niger and Togo, the secretariat assisted governments in the development of national programmes aimed at securing greater participation of broad social groups in national development and training and employment of youth. Similar services were undertaken in Gabon and Upper Volta.

The main work of the Social Development Section centred on assistance to African governments in the field of rural transformation, the development of rural life and institutions, social policy and training.

Agriculture: Missions to each of the four sub-regions in Africa were undertaken by the Joint ECA/FAO Agriculture Division. Missions to central Africa and to west Africa to advise the governments on Phase I of the studies on intra-regional co-operation and trade in agriculture and on the action proposed for Phase II. A similar mission was sent to north Africa sub-region. Phase I of the study for the east Africa sub-region was sent out to the governments in June and a follow-up mission was scheduled for early 1972.

A visit was made to seven countries of the east Africa sub-region to appraise prospects for increased production and trade in livestock and livestock products, in connection with the projects on intra-regional co-operation and trade in agriculture.

Population Programme: The Population Programme Centre conducted missions to Cameroon, Chad and Ghana to advise on the establishment of training centres for demography and preparation of population projections.

An African Population Conference was held in Accra from December 9th-18th and was followed by the first session of the Conference of African Demographers from December 19th-22nd.

Economic Co-operation: ECA encouraged co-operation at the four sub-regional levels (north, west, central and east) with the objective of modernization, rural development and industrialization. In 1971 involvement by the Centre for Economic Co-operation in the activities of the multinational economic co-operation groupings varied from joint sponsorship of projects to technical and economic evaluation of development projects and advisory missions.

To strengthen the economic co-operation movement in the region, two missions were undertaken, one to Ghana to advise on plan implementation, and the other to Congo (Brazzaville), Cameroon, Dahomey and Togo to help prepare replies to the Secretary-General's Questionnaire on Regional Structures, aimed at ascertaining their views on desirability of changes in geographical structures and on what basis such changes should be made.

The secretariat took part in a Symposium on Economic Co-operation in Central Africa, held in Zaire from June 28th-29th to examine prospects for economic co-operation.

The secretariat, in conjunction with the Centre for Development Planning, Projections and Policies (CDPPP), convened an East African Expert Meeting on Economic Co-operation from November 1st-10th to examine the findings of the ECA/CDPPP Study, and identify areas for strengthening economic co-operation within the sub-region, and to submit proposals for economic co-operation to the governments.

The ECA, in collaboration with other UN agencies and inter-governmental organizations, continues to work on identifying new areas for strengthening economic co-operation and the Executive Committee has adopted a recommendation urging a special study to examine the factors that have so far prevented a rapid expansion of multi-national co-operative endeavours and propose remedies.

Institutional Machinery. As a result of recommendations made at ECA's ninth session the following institutional machinery was set up:

(a) Conference of Ministers which is vested with full powers to consider matters of general policy and the priorities to be assigned to the programme and other activities of the Commission. It reviews programme implementation and examines and approves the proposed programme of work, and considers reports submitted to it by the Executive Committee and the Technical Committee of Experts. The Conference of Ministers holds its meetings every two years. The first meeting was held in Tunis in February 1971.

(b) Technical Committee of Experts which meets once a year. It is composed of senior officials of member states concerned with economic affairs, and it examines studies prepared by the ECA Secretariat and assists in the formulation of the work programme aimed at ensuring co-operation between the Secretariat and member governments. It held its third meeting in Tunis in February 1971.

(c) Executive Committee which is composed of representatives of 16 members states and which assists the Executive Secretary in the implementation of the resolutions and the work programme of the Commission, and provides links between the Secretariat, member states and the sub-regions. The Executive Committee meets at least twice a year. It held its sixth meeting in Addis Ababa in November 1971.

Subsidiary Bodies. The Commission is empowered, under its terms of reference, to establish subsidiary bodies. Those now in existence and actively functioning are the Conference of African Statisticians, the Conference of African Planners and the Conference of African Demographers, each of which meets once every two years.

Relations with Other Organizations: WHO maintains a liaison office at ECA. In co-operation with ITU work has begun on a pan-African telecommunications system. ECA also runs a Joint Agricultural Division in conjunction with FAO.

Co-operation between ECA and the Organization of African Unity started with the signing of a UN/OAU agreement by the Secretary-General of the United Nations, U Thant, and the Secretary-General of the OAU, Diallo Telli, on November 15th, 1965. Joint meetings in 1971 included the ECA/OAU Conference of Ministers of Ministers of Industry (see above) and the Sixth ECA/OAU Joint Meeting on Trade and Development held at Geneva in January.

AID CO-ORDINATING GROUPS

The World Bank supports consortia, consultative groups and other aid co-ordination bodies for the co-ordination of development assistance to a number of countries. It is currently chairman of two consortia (for India and Pakistan), the Aid Group for Ceylon and thirteen consultative groups (for Colombia, East Africa, Ethiopia, Korea, Malaysia, Morocco, Nigeria, Peru, the Philippines, the Republic of Zaire, Sudan, Thailand and Tunisia). In addition the Bank is a member of the Inter-Governmental Group for Indonesia (IGGI) and the OECD-sponsored Consortium for Turkey. It provides staff support for these, for the groups convened by the governments of Guyana and Honduras and for the country review exercises carried out by the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress (CIAP).

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank's capital is derived from members' subscriptions to capital shares, and the amount of each subscription is based on relative economic resources. On June 30th, 1971, the total subscribed capital of the Bank was $23,871 million. Of this amount, however, only the sum of about $2,387 million had been paid in, partly in gold or dollars and partly in local currencies. The remainder is subject to call if required to meet the Bank's obligations. Most of the Bank's lendable funds come from its borrowing in world capital markets. As of June 30th, 1971, the Bank's outstanding debt was $5,424 million. The Bank also replenishes its funds through the sale of portions of its loans. These sales, the most part without the Bank guarantee, totalled $2,373 million by June 30th, 1971.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION—IDA

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360.

The International Development Association began operations in November 1960. Affiliated to the World Bank, IDA advances capital on more flexible terms to underdeveloped countries.

MEMBERSHIP

(see Table on pages 28-30)

ORGANIZATION

President and Chairman of Executive Directors: Chairman of the World Bank (ex-officio).

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff of IDA.

FINANCE

IDA'S initial resources were derived from members' subscriptions: the richer nations pay in gold or freely convertible currencies; the less-developed nations pay 10 per cent in the above form and 90 per cent in their own currencies. By June 30th, 1971, IDA's initial subscriptions totalled $1,016.5 million.

IDA is authorized to accept supplementary contributions and is required to maintain a regular review of the adequacy of its resources. In 1964, formalities were completed for the first general replenishment of IDA's funds. The eighteen Part I countries—Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, South Africa, Sweden, the United Kingdom and the United States—agreed to provide supplementary resources of almost $750 million.

On July 23rd, 1969, the second general replenishment of IDA's resources came into force. The second replenishment proposal provided for expanding IDA's resources by $1,200 million equivalent, payable in three annual instalments of $400 million each.

Negotiations for a third general replenishment of IDA's resources, for the fiscal years 1972, 1973 and 1974, were successfully concluded. In July, the Association's Executive Directors recommended and transmitted to member governments for approval a proposal under which twenty-one member countries plus Switzerland would make available to IDA approximately $813 million per year. It was also agreed that the voting power of high-income countries, known as Part I countries, should be adjusted so as to reflect more accurately the share of each of them in the total financial contributions of the Part I countries to the Association. It was further agreed that the Part II countries be given the opportunity to make additional subscriptions on easy terms to the Association in order to permit them to maintain the relative voting power of the Part II countries as a group.

ACTIVITIES

Principles similar to those of the Bank are followed by IDA in appraising projects, in negotiating its credits and in requirements for procurement, disbursement of funds and reports on the progress of constructions. However, the favourable terms upon which IDA lends make it possible to extend credits to countries which, for balance of payments reasons, could not prudently assume the burden of repayment required for Bank loans.

By June 30th, 1971, IDA had extended 274 credits totalling $3,340.4 million to 58 member countries.

* These officers and department heads hold the same position in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

FUNCTIONS

1. In association with private investors, invests without government guarantee in productive private enterprises of economic priority in member countries where sufficient private capital is not available on reasonable terms.

2. Stimulates the international flow of private capital to developing countries.

3. Encourages the development of local capital markets.

4. Invests in and gives technical help to development finance companies, and assists other institutions which also support economic development and follow policies generally consistent with those of IFC.

5. Commits limited amounts of funds for promotional purposes, to help bring development enterprises into being.

6. Revolves its portfolio by sales of its investments to other investors.

FISCAL 1971 OPERATIONS

The IFC made 23 investments in 15 countries, as well as one regional investment, totalling $101.4 million during the year ended June 30th, 1971. Concurrently with IFC, others invested approximately $332.1 million in the same enterprises, making a total, with IFC's investments, of $433.5 million. These other investors included 30 business firms and 44 financial institutions. Of these, 37 in developing countries put up $212 million and thirty-seven investors from industrialized countries committed $120 million. This compares with IFC commitments of $111.8 million to 29 investments totalling about $381 million in the previous fiscal year.

During fiscal 1971 IFC for the first time invested in an institution set up to develop money and capital markets in a less developed country, Korea, and in a regional development institution for Africa.

Also for the first time IFC invested in Indonesia, with four commitments, in Lebanon, with two commitments, and in Mauritius and Panama. Other investments were made in Argentina, Brazil (two commitments), China, Iran, Mexico, Philippines, Thailand, Turkey (three commitments), Venezuela (two commitments) and Yugoslavia.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

The bulk of IFC's investments during the year, approximately $88 million, were in support of 18 manufacturing enterprises in 11 countries. $26.6 million was invested in seven projects in the textile sector, $21.9 million was invested in four enterprises for producing cement and other construction materials, $14 million in two chemical and petrochemical projects, $9 million in a project to manufacture trucks and buses, $4.9 million in two projects in the pulp and paper sector and $11.5 million in other manufactured products.

Of these investments, $43.7 million were for the expansion of existing production in ten concerns and $44.2 million for the establishment of eight new enterprises. These companies produce, or will produce, synthetic fibres, cotton fabrics, cement, ceramic tiles and sanitary ware, commercial vehicles, petrochemical products and lubricants and aluminum.

Other investments during the year included $10.2 million in two development finance institutions, in Thailand and Venezuela, $2.1 million in tourism, in Mauritius and Panama and a $500,000 equity investment—the maximum amount allowed for subscription by international institutions—in SIFIDA, a new privately-owned regional development institution in Africa. This followed the $10 million loan made last year to ADELA, a similar institution in Latin America.

IFC's operations in fiscal 1971 brought the cumulative total of its investments to $577.8 million in 172 enterprises in 47 less developed countries, in which others had concurrently invested approximately $2,465 million. Of this total, $231.7 million (40 per cent) had been made in the Western Hemisphere; $187.4 million (32 per cent) in Asia and the Middle East; $86.9 million (15 per cent) in Africa; and $70.8 million (12 per cent) in Europe.

Gabon and Trinidad and Tobago joined IFC in fiscal 1971, raising total membership in that year to 96.

FINANCIAL RECORD

(up to June 30th, 1971)

Cumulative total of IFC's funds available at June 30th, 1971, amounted to $571.4 million, including $200 million loan from the World Bank.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND—IMF

19th and H Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20431, U.S.A.

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6362.

The IMF was established at the same time as the World Bank in December 1945, to facilitate the expansion and growth of international trade, to promote exchange stability, to maintain orderly exchange arrangements among members, to avoid competitive exchange depreciation and to give confidence to members by making its resources available to them under adequate safeguards, which helps members to meet temporary payments difficulties. The Fund supplements, as and when needed, the existing reserve assets of members participating in the Special Drawing Account, which was established to handle all operations and transactions pertaining to special drawing rights (SDRs), a new reserve instrument created by the Fund (see below). The institution also furnishes, on request, expert technicians to advise and assist members in their financial and monetary problems, and affords continuous and full consultation on monetary and exchange matters.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The highest authority of the Fund is exercised by the Board of Governors, on which each member country is represented by a Governor and an Alternate Governor. Normally the Board of Governors meets once a year, but the Governors may take votes by mail or other means between annual meetings. The Board of Governors has delegated many of its powers to the Executive Directors. However, the conditions governing the admission of new members, adjustment of quotas, election of Executive Directors, as well as certain other important powers remain the sole responsibility of the Board of Governors. The voting power of each member in the Board of Governors is related to its quota in the Fund (see below).

BOARD OF EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

The twenty-member Board of Executive Directors, responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Fund, is in continuous session in Washington, under the chairmanship of the Fund's Managing Director. At present, six members (U.S., U.K., Germany, France, Japan and India) each appoint one Executive Director, and the fourteen remaining Executive Directors are elected by groups of member countries with similar interests. As in the Board of Governors, the voting power of each member is related to its quota in the Fund, but in practice the Executive Directors operate by consensus.

The Managing Director of the Fund serves as head of its staff, which is organized into functional and area departments. As at June 30th, 1971, the Fund staff numbered 1,250 persons of 85 nationalities.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE AND DRAWING ARRANGEMENTS

Quotas. Each member is assigned a quota related to its national income, monetary reserves, trade balance and other economic indicators. A member's subscription is equal to its quota and is payable partly in gold (as a rule 25 per cent) and partly in its own currency. The quota approximately determines a member's voting power and the amount of foreign exchange it may purchase from the Fund.

The original quotas totalled some $9 thousand million, but general reviews of the adequacy of members' quotas conducted in 1958, 1965 and 1970 resulted in substantial increases, and on 30th September, 1971, total quotas stood at $28.6 thousand million.

Drawing Arrangements. Exchange transactions within the Fund take the form of members' purchases (i.e. drawings) from the Fund of the currencies of other members for the equivalent amounts of their own currencies. Fund resources are available to eligible members on an essentially short-term and revolving basis to provide members with temporary assistance to contribute to the solution of their payments problems. A member's entitlement to draw is determined after consideration of its circumstances and its likely ability, with the help of Fund resources, to overcome its problems within a short time.

Drawings are limited by provisions governing both the rate of increase and the total amount of the Fund's holdings of a member's currency expressed as a percentage of its quota. Gold-tranche purchases (i.e. purchases that do not bring the Fund's holdings of the member's currency to a level above its quota) can be made essentially automatically.

A member's purchases of currency from the Fund must be repaid by repurchases or by the purchase of that member's currency by another member. As a general rule members undertake to repay within a period not exceeding 3 to 5 years. Repurchases are made in gold, in SDRs or in the currencies of those members whose currencies are convertible and held by the Fund in amounts below 75 per cent of the members' quotas.

Drawings on the Fund are subject to certain charges that rise with the amount of foreign exchange involved and the length of time it remains outstanding.

By September 30th, 1971, 83 countries had drawn from the Fund's resources the equivalent of $23,712.5 million in 24 currencies since transactions commenced in March 1947. Total repurchases from the beginning of Fund operations stood at $14,005.7 million and net or outstanding drawings at $3,586.4 million.

The main devices for assisting members in temporary difficulties are examined below.

General Arrangements to Borrow. An agreement was approved by the Fund in 1962, extended in 1965 until 1970, and again extended until 1975, whereby ten industrial members, the Group of Ten, undertook to lend the Fund up to $6 thousand million in their own currencies, should this be necessary to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary situation. These General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) may be used by any member, subject to the approval of the Group of Ten, and were used to help finance large drawings made in 1964, 1965, 1968, 1969 and 1970. By August 1971 all such borrowings had been repaid in full to the Fund.

Stand-by Arrangements. Members may enter into Stand-by Arrangements (introduced in 1954) with the Fund to ensure that drawings up to specified limits may be made within an agreed period provided the conditions of the arrangement are observed. By enabling members to negotiate credit in advance of actual needs, stand-by arrangements have become a valuable instrument in forestalling speculative attacks which would exacerbate or increase impending difficulties.

Special Drawing Rights. Facilities for the expansion of international reserves were created in January 1970 with the introduction of SDRs which had by 1971 become established as usable and acceptable reserve assets. A substitute for gold in international payments, the value of SDRs to a participant in the Special Drawing Account rests basically on the obligation of other participants to accept them from him up to a prescribed ceiling in exchange for convertible currency. Participants are allocated SDRs in proportion to their IMF quotas and may use them bilaterally, in agreement with other participants, to buy back from them equivalent amounts of their own currencies; or to obtain convertible currency from participants designated by the Fund. A participant may use SDRs in these ways when it has a balance of payments need or in the light of adverse developments in its total reserves; but it may make repurchases of its currency from, or pay charges to, the Fund without being subject to the requirement of need.

Reconstitution provisions—a participant's average holdings of SDRs must not fall below a given proportion of the average of its net cumulative allocation in a given period—are designed to preclude the possibility of excessive reliance on SDRs to finance large or persistent balance of payments deficits. For details of dealings in SDRs in 1971, see below.

Compensatory Financing of Export Fluctuations. Under this scheme, a primary-producing member which experiences a fall in export revenue—generally as a result of adverse movements in the world price of a commodity upon which it is heavily dependent—may make drawings which are excluded from the calculation of its gold-tranche position.

Buffer Stock Financing Facility. Established in 1969, this facility permits members to make drawings in connection with the financing of international buffer stocks of primary products; as with the Compensatory Financing of Export Fluctuations, drawings made under this facility are excluded from the calculation of a member's gold-tranche position.

At the end of September 1971, the Fund's assets included $5,292.3 million in gold, $469.8 million in SDRs, $189.7 million in subscriptions receivable and $23,588.9 million in various national currencies.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES DURING 1971

World Monetary Situation

On May 9th, Germany and the Netherlands informed the Fund that, in view of conditions in the foreign exchange markets, including massive capital movements, for the time being they would not maintain the exchange rates for their currencies within the established margins.

On August 15th, the United States announced far-reaching economic and financial measures, including suspension of the gold convertibility of the dollar. A float of nearly all major world currencies followed this announcement.

The 1971 Annual Meeting of the Fund's Board of Governors, held in Washington from September 27th to October 1st, therefore took place in an international monetary situation presenting grave dangers of instability and disorder in currency and trade relationships. A consensus emerged and the Governors adopted a Resolution calling on all members to collaborate with the Fund and each other in the establishment of a satisfactory structure of exchange rates, maintained within appropriate margins. The Executive Directors of the Fund were requested to report to the Governors without delay on the measures considered necessary or desirable for the improvement or reform of the international monetary system. In late December 1971 the Group of Ten reached a settlement whereby the U.S. $ was to be devalued and the U.S.A. was to abolish its 10 per cent import surcharge.

Special Drawing Rights

The Fund made its second allocation of SDRs on January 1st to 109 participants in the Special Drawing Account. The allocation totalled SDR $2,949.2 million, raising the total created by the Fund to SDR $6,363.3 million. During the period January 1st–September 30th, 31 participants used a total of SDR $185.9 million in transactions to acquire foreign exchange from other participants designated by the Fund, 38 participants used a total of SDR $286.3 million in repurchases of previous drawings from the Fund's General Account and several countries used SDRs to acquire balances of their currency held by other participants. SDRs were also used by a number of participants in payment of charges relating to their use of the Fund's resources. At September 30th, the General Account's holdings of Special Drawing Rights were SDR $469.8 million.

Drawings, Repurchases and Stand-by Arrangements

During the first nine months of 1971 members made purchases for a total amount equivalent to $1,704.3 million, repurchases reached $2,693.5 million, and 15 stand-by arrangements were approved for $448.25 million.

Purchases made during the third quarter by Bolivia, Indonesia and Malaysia for the equivalent of $2.97 million, $1.89 million and $7.29 million, respectively, were the first instances in which use was made of the Fund's buffer stock financing facility. All three purchases were made in connection with the buffer stock established under the Fourth International Tin Agreement.

Gold; Par Values; New Member

Fund purchases of gold from South Africa during the first three quarters of 1971 reached a total of $137.55 million, bringing to $777.30 million the purchases made from South Africa under the agreement announced in December 1969.

During the same period, an initial par value was established for the currency of Barbados, par values were agreed upon for the new monetary units of The Gambia and Malawi, and changes in the par values of the Israel pound and the Yugoslav dinar were proposed by the governments involved and concurred in by the Fund. Austria, after consultation with the Fund, changed the par value of the Austrian schilling.

In May, Fiji became the 118th member of the Fund.

Repayment of Borrowings

With repayments made by the Fund in August to Canada, Japan and the Netherlands, outstanding claims under the GAB, which related to a purchase by the U.K. in June 1969, were repaid in full. This was the first time since the initial activation of the GAB in December 1964 that the Fund had no outstanding indebtedness under the Arrangements.

Remuneration and Replenishment

In May the Fund distributed $37.4 million equivalent in gold, SDRs and national currencies to 39 members in remuneration payments based on the size of these countries' credit positions with the Fund. Remuneration was paid at the rate of 1.5 per cent per annum on the amount by which 75 per cent of a member's quota exceeded the average of the Fund's holdings of the member's currency for the year ended April 30th, 1971.

The Fund announced in April and July that it was replenishing its holdings of currencies in totals equivalent to $320 million and $135 million, respectively. Both replenishments were made by the sale of gold, but the Fund provided that each member which was a participant in the Special Drawing Account could elect to receive an equivalent sum of SDRs in place of any amount of gold to be sold to it. Members exercised this option for a total of SDR $55.7 million in April and SDR $21.3 million in July.

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION—FAO

Viale delle Terme di Caracalla, Rome, Italy

Telephone: 5797.

FAO, the oldest specialized agency of the UN, was established at a conference in Quebec in October 1945, with 42 founding members. It exists to fight poverty, malnutrition and hunger which prevail in many parts of the world. It serves as the organizing and co-ordinating agency which brings together representatives of national governments, scientific bodies, non-governmental organizations, industry and banking to plan and execute development programmes within the whole range of food and agriculture, including forestry and fisheries. It helps developing countries to promote educational and training facilities through institution-building, courses, seminars, fellowships and the publication of manuals and technical guides.

(see Table on pages 28–30)

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

The governing body of FAO is the FAO Conference. It usually meets every two years, and is attended by delegates from member nations. The Conference elects the Director-General, formulates policy, determines the Organization's programme and budget on a biennial basis, and elects new members.

COUNCIL

The FAO Council is composed of representatives of 34 member nations, elected by the Conference for three-year terms. It acts as the interim governing body of FAO between sessions of the Conference. The most important standing Committees of the Council are: the Finance and Programme Committees, the Committee on Commodity Problems, the Committee on Fisheries and the Committee on Agriculture.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General (1968–72): A. H. BOERMA (Netherlands).

Deputy Director-General: ROY I. JACKSON (U.S.A.).

The Director-General is elected by the Conference. He appoints and directs a staff of nearly 2,300 professional officers assigned to field projects in over 100 countries, and 1,400 professional staff at headquarters.

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVES OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL

Regional Representative of FAO for Africa: M. C. MENSAH.

Regional Representative of FAO for Asia and the Far East: DIOSCORO L. UMALI.

Assistant Director-General for Near Eastern Affairs and Regional Representative for the Near East: M. A. NOUR.

Regional Representative of FAO for Europe: PAUL LAMARTINE YATES.

Assistant Director-General for Latin American Affairs and Regional Representative for Latin America: JUAN FELIPE YRIART.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES

FAO's specialized Committees enable governments to work out agreements on matters of common concern. The Committee on Commodity Problems, with its network of intergovernmental study groups and its widely-accepted principles of surplus disposal, is helping to co-ordinate international commodity policy. The Committee on Fisheries, the only global forum concerned with the development of fisheries, devises measures for more rational management of the world's fishery resources.

In 1971, FAO's Indian Ocean Fishery Commission, a 28-nation body responsible for the Organization's first ocean-wide undertaking, approved plans for developing the potential of the Indian Ocean—one-fifth of the earth's marine area—with the technical and financial support of developing and developed countries. Preparatory work was financed by the UNDP.

Some 600 plant specialists were assigned to activities ranging from development of industrial crops to range management, agricultural meteorology, pesticide use and the conservation of plant genetic resources. Some 300 foresters, wood technologists, builders, planners and bankers from all parts of the world attended a consultation on the uses of wood in housing, organized by the Canadian Government and co-sponsored by FAO, UN, UNIDO and the International Union of Forest Research Organizations (IUFRO). FAO co-operated with UNICEF and WHO in assisting nutrition programmes, the establishment of milk-processing plants and development of protein-rich foods.

FAO Conference. Six more countries were admitted to membership at the 16th session of the Organization's Conference which met in Rome in November 1971: Bahrain, Fiji, Qatar, the Maldives, Oman and Swaziland. They bring the membership to 125.

The Conference approved a budget of almost $86 million for the biennium 1972-73. It re-elected Dr. Addeke H. Boerma as Director-General for a further term of four years, but decided that the tenure of future Directors-General will be limited to a single term of six years. Professor Michel Cépède of France was re-elected Independent Chairman of the FAO Council for a two-year term.

Documentation. Over the past two decades, FAO has become an international centre of information on agriculture in all its aspects, forestry, fisheries and nutrition. In 1971, FAO's "Question and Answer" Service supplied 22,000 bibliographical references, 5,000 documents and 65,000 photo-reproductions of items now out-of-stock. Some 50,000 publications were loaned during the year. FAO assisted in the establishment of a national documentation centre in Morocco and a regional centre in Senegal servicing that country, Guinea, Mali and Mauritania.

UNDP Special Fund and Technical Assistance. During 1971, FAO was responsible for 325 projects involving the expenditure of approximately $71 million in UNDP Special Fund monies, and for over 700 smaller projects costing $14 million in UNDP Technical Assistance funds. Matching contributions were made by the governments of the recipient countries. A further $10 million was spent by governments on projects formulated and carried out by FAO and on associate experts assigned to FAO work.

Freedom from Hunger Campaign: Action for Development. The sub-title "Action for Development" was added in 1971 to stress the fact that hunger is only one element of the development problem. The purpose of the Campaign is to broaden public support for development efforts and to provide opportunities for personal involvement in, or contributions to, operational activities. The Campaign is conducted by national committees—of which there were over 90 at the end of 1971—and voluntary organizations. Field projects sponsored by the Campaign aim at stimulating self-development and involving the beneficiaries from the outset so that they can continue projects once outside assistance is terminated.

In 1971, the Campaign provided a co-ordinating point for the International Walk for Development, which was supported in 51 countries and raised an estimated $6 million for development programmes. National committees and private groups contributed $2.5 million to field projects and adopted 47 new ones, bringing the total number of projects which were operational during the year to 130.

World Food Programme. Launched in 1963, the World Food Programme is a joint effort by the UN and FAO. It uses food supplies—contributed by over 90 developed and developing countries—as an investment in social and economic development and also for emergency relief. From January 1st to October 31st, 1971, the Programme committed $85 million for 33 development projects in 27 countries. It also approved 21 emergency operations and two extensions in 19 countries for the equivalent of $13 million. By mid-1971, an estimated ten million people were benefitting from WFP aid. Over six million of these were workers and their families or volunteers engaged in development projects for irrigation, road building, land clearance, fisheries, forestry, mining, industry and public works.

Investment Centre. World Bank lending to agriculture for projects prepared under FAO's Co-operative Programme with IBRD increased from $320 million in 16 countries during 1970 to $365 million in 23 countries during 1971. The projects dealt with fisheries, credit and land settlement, agricultural education, seed production and distribution and integrated rural development. Loans for projects drawn up under the FAO/IBRD Co-operative Programme include a land colonisation scheme in Colombia where 300,000 hectares of undeveloped Amazon forest land will be opened up for 8,000 settlers, and a water supply project in the province of Kosovo, Yugoslavia, where 65,000 people will benefit from increased agricultural production through irrigation. Loans and credits were granted to development projects jointly worked out by FAO and IDA, the African Development Bank (AfDB), and the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB).

Industry Co-operative Programme. Through the Industry Co-operative Programme (ICP), financially supported by industry, FAO provides machinery for exchanging information, establishing contacts and co-ordinating action among inter-governmental agencies and public and private sectors interested in the development of agriculture, fisheries and forestry. ICP guidance is available to countries in drawing up projects that are likely to attract industrial support and in associating investors with discussions at the drafting stage of project requests. At the end of 1971, some 80 companies were members of ICP.

Atomic Energy in Food and Agriculture. FAO and IAEA have set up a joint Division of Atomic Energy in Agriculture to assist member nations in the application of techniques in research and development of food and agriculture. Operational projects and training courses have centred on the use of isotopes and radiation for investigating soil and crop production factors as well as insect eradication and pest control programmes. FAO and the UNDP are helping the governments of Brazil, Chile and India to set up national centres for nuclear research in agriculture, similar to a centre now fully operating in Yugoslavia.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE—GATT

Villa le Bocage, Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

During the Second World War important trading countries discussed the establishment of international organizations to tackle the post-war problems of currency, investment and trade. The International Monetary Fund and the World Bank were established before the end of the war, but the Charter for the International Trade Organization (ITO) was not completed until March 1948. The first tariff negotiating conference was held at Geneva in 1947, and the resulting concessions were safeguarded under the terms of a multilateral agreement called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which was signed on October 30th, 1947, at Geneva and came into force on January 1st, 1948. Originally the GATT was accepted by twenty-three countries.

The GATT was intended as a stop-gap arrangement pending the creation of the International Trade Organization. But, because the ITO (Havana) Charter was never brought into force, GATT has remained since 1948 as the generally accepted international instrument which lays down rules of conduct for trade on a world-wide basis.

AIMS

GATT is a multilateral treaty which lays down agreed rules for the conduct and furtherance of world trade and is accepted by countries responsible for over four-fifths of that trade. GATT provides a forum in which governments can negotiate for the further liberalization of world trade and in which differences on trade matters among the members can be settled. It is designed to achieve the objectives set out in the preamble to the Agreement where the Contracting Parties recognize that "their relations in the field of trade and economic endeavour should be conducted with a view to raising standards of living, ensuring full employment and a large and steadily growing volume of real income and effective demand, developing the full use of the resources of the world and expanding the production and exchange of goods, and promoting the progressive development of the economies of all the Contracting Parties."

THE AGREEMENT

The detailed undertakings set out in GATT, together with a body of case law built up by the Contracting Parties, constitute a general code of conduct covering virtually the whole field of the commercial relations of member states.

GATT is based on a comparatively few fundamental principles. First, as directed in the famous "most-favoured-nation" clause, trade must be conducted on the basis of non-discrimination: all Contracting Parties are bound to grant to each other treatment as favourable as they give to any country in the application and administration of import and export duties and charges. Exceptions—principally for customs unions and free trade areas and for measures in favour of developing countries—are granted only subject to strict rules.

Second, protection may only be given to domestic industry through the customs tariff. The use of import quotas for protection is thus prohibited. The aim of this rule is to make the extent of protection clear and to make competition possible. While quotas may be introduced for certain other purposes—notably to re-establish a country's balance of payments or to meet the special problems of developing countries—the circumstances in which they may be used are carefully defined, and there are elaborate procedures for consultation to ensure that minimum damage is inflicted on the trade of other countries and that they are removed as soon as possible.

Third, a stable and predictable basis for trade is provided by the binding of the tariff levels negotiated among the Contracting Parties. Bound tariffs may be negotiated only at three-year intervals. A return to higher tariffs is discouraged by the requirement that any increases are accounted for; consequently this provision is invoked in relatively rare circumstances.

Consultation, to avoid damage to the trading interests of Contracting Parties, is another fundamental principle of GATT. Members are able to call on GATT for a fair settlement of cases in which they think their rights under the General Agreement are being withheld or compromised by other members.

Finally, GATT offers a framework within which negotiations are held for the reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade and a structure for putting the results of such negotiations into a legal instrument.

CONTRACTING PARTIES TO THE GATT

(see Table on pages 28–30)

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

SESSIONS

Chairman (1971-72): GIORGIO SMOQUINA (Italy).

Vice-Chairman (1971-72): Dr. HECTOR GROS ESPIELL (Uruguay).

The sessions of Contracting Parties are usually held annually, in Geneva.

The Session is the highest body of GATT. Decisions are generally arrived at by consensus, not by vote. On the rare occasions that voting takes place, each contracting party (member country) has one vote. Most decisions by vote are taken by simple majority; but a two-thirds majority, with the majority comprising more than half the member countries, is needed for "waivers", authorizations, in particular cases, to depart from specific obligations under the General Agreement. (When the members thus act collectively, they are referred to in GATT documents as CONTRACTING PARTIES). Outside the Sessions, votes may be taken by postal ballot.

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES

Chairman (1971-72): C. H. ARCHIBALD (Trinidad and Tobago).

Meets as necessary (generally about six times a year) to deal with urgent and routine matters arising between sessions and to supervise the work of committees and working groups.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: OLIVIER LONG.

The secretariat, numbering about 200 persons, consists of experts in trade policy and intelligence and an administrative staff. It prepares and runs the Sessions and services the work of the Council and the committees and working groups. It is also responsible for organizing the trade negotiating conferences.

COMMITTEES AND WORKING PARTIES

Exist to direct GATT work on industrial products; on agriculture; on trade and development issues; to carry on trade negotiations among developing countries; to examine the situation of countries using trade restrictions to protect their balance of payments; and to study import restrictions. There are further standing committees on cotton textiles and on anti-dumping practices as well as a committee to deal with budget, financial and administrative questions.

Working parties (ad hoc committees) are set up to deal with current questions, such as requests for accession to GATT; verification that agreements concluded by member countries are in conformity with GATT; or studies of issues on which the member countries will later wish to take a joint decision. Panels of Conciliation are sometimes set up to investigate disputes.

Villa Le Bocage, Palais de Nations, Geneva

Director: H. L. JACOBSON.

Established by GATT in May 1964 to assist the developing countries in their export trade by providing information on export markets and marketing, and helping them both to develop their export promotion services and to train the personnel required for these services.

The Centre has been jointly operated since January 1968 by GATT and UNCTAD.

The centre's services at present comprise four main sectors: Market Information Service; Publications Programme; Trade Promotion Advisory Service; Training Programme.

ACTIVITIES

"The substantial reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade" is laid down as a principal aim of the General Agreement. This aim has been realized through a series of GATT tariff and trade conferences held since 1947. Six main conferences have taken place:

- 1947 Geneva.
- 1959 Annecy, France.
- 1951 Torquay, England.
- 1956 Geneva.
- 1960-61 Geneva (named the "Dillon Round" as a result of a proposal by C. Douglas Dillon—then U.S. Under-Secretary of State for Economic Affairs—at the 13th session of GATT in 1958).
- 1964-67 Geneva (named the "Kennedy Round" from the impetus given by the U.S. President's Trade Expansion Act. 1962).

In addition, smaller-scale negotiations have preceded the accession to GATT of individual countries such as Japan and Switzerland. As a result, the tariff rates for thousands of items entering into world commerce have been reduced, or bound against increase. The concessions agreed upon at these conferences have affected a high proportion of the total trade of GATT countries, and, indirectly, the trade of many non-members as well: the Kennedy Round negotiations alone reduced the average level of world tariffs by about one-third.

GATT is currently engaged in a work programme designed to lay the foundations for an attack on non-tariff barriers to trade, for further action against tariffs and on problems of agricultural trade. This has required the collection and analysis on an unprecedented scale of data on tariff rates and trade flows, on non-tariff barriers, and on agricultural policies. A search is now in progress for mutually acceptable solutions to the problems identified.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

This work programme lays particular stress on possible action to help the trade of developing countries. In recent years GATT has given increasing attention to the problems of these countries. In 1965 a new chapter on Trade and Development was added to the General Agreement. One of its key provisions is that developing countries should not be expected to offer reciprocity in negotiations with developed countries. GATT members have also agreed in principle to relax the "most-favoured-nation" rule in two respects to help developing countries: to accommodate the generalized scheme of preferences by developed for developing countries negotiated in UNCTAD and to allow an exchange of preferences among the developing countries in GATT. (See International Trade Centre.)

The Arrangement regarding International Trade in Cotton Textiles, concluded under GATT auspices in 1962 and extended in 1967 and 1970, has been signed by some 30 major exporters and importers of cotton textiles. Its purpose is to allow orderly development of international trade in cotton textile products, on the one hand progressively opening up sales opportunities for the exporters, among which developing countries account for a large part of the trade, and on the other hand avoiding disruption of markets in the importing countries.

BUDGET

Payments are based on each member's share of the total trade between members. Contributions for 1971 totalled $4,024,000.

INTER-GOVERNMENTAL MARITIME CONSULTATIVE ORGANIZATION—IMCO

101-104 Piccadilly, London, W.1, England

Telephone: 01-499-9040

IMCO was set up in 1959 as a specialized agency of the UN to facilitate co-operation among governments on technical matters affecting international shipping. Its main functions are the achievement of safe and efficient navigation, and the control of pollution caused by ships and craft operating in the marine environment.

MEMBERSHIP

(see Table on pages 28-30)

ORGANIZATION

THE ASSEMBLY

President (1971—) J. S. TARKA (Nigeria).

The Assembly consists of delegates from all member countries, who each have one vote. Associate members and observers from other governments, the United Nations and UN agencies are also present. Sessions are held regularly every two years. The first three took place in London in January 1959, April 1961 and October 1963, and the fourth in Paris in September 1965. The Assembly is responsible for the election of members to the Council and to the Maritime Safety Committee. It considers reports from all subsidiary bodies and decides the action to be taken on them. The Assembly votes the agency's budget and determines the financial policy. An important part of its work is to recommend to members measures designed to promote maritime safety.

THE COUNCIL

Chairman: R. Y. EDWARDS (U.S.A.).

MEMBERS

Algeria	Ghana	Norway
Australia	Greece	Poland
Belgium	India	United Kingdom
Brazil	Italy	U.S.A.
Canada	Japan	U.S.S.R.
France	Netherlands
German Federal Republic

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

The Council is the governing body of the Organization between the biennial sessions of the Assembly. The Council appoints the Secretary-General; transmits reports by the Maritime Safety Committee to the Assembly and reports on the work of the Organization generally; submits budget estimates and financial statements with comments and recommendations to the Assembly. The Council normally meets twice a year.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Established by the Council in June 1967 to deal initially with problems connected with the loss of the tanker Torrey Canyon, and subsequently with any legal problems laid before IMCO. Membership open to all IMCO Member States.

THE MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

Chairman: JAN METZ (Netherlands).

MEMBERS

Argentina	Greece	Spain
Canada	Italy	Sweden
France	Japan	United Kingdom
Egypt	Netherlands	U.S.A.
German Federal Republic	Norway	U.S.S.R.
	Pakistan

The Maritime Safety Committee consists of sixteen members elected by the Assembly for a term of four years. The Committee meets at least once a year and submits proposals to the Assembly on matters relating to safety at sea.

SUB-COMMITTEES

Cargoes and Containers.	Safety of Navigation.
Carriage of Dangerous Goods.	Ship Design and Equipment.
Fire Protection.
Life-Saving Appliances.	Subdivision and Stability.
Marine Pollution.	Standards of Training and
Radiocommunications.	Watchkeeping

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: COLIN GOAD (United Kingdom).

The Secretariat consists of the Secretary-General, the Deputy Secretary-General, the Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee, and a staff appointed by the Secretary-General and recruited on as wide a geographical basis as possible. It comprises a Technical Division, an Administrative Division, a Technical Co-operation Division and a Legal Division.

ACTIVITIES

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1948, and Collision Regulations, 1948. IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom.

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1960, and Collision Regulations, 1960. A Conference held in 1960 revised the 1948 Safety Convention and prepared a new one. The 1960 Safety Convention, administered by IMCO, came into force on May 26th, 1965 and the 1960 Collision Regulations became effective on September 1st, 1965.

International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution of the Sea by Oil, 1954. IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom and an international conference in 1962 adopted certain amendments to the 1954 Convention. The amendments came into force in May 1967.

Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic, 1965. Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO in 1965. The object of the convention is to reduce and simplify governmental procedures and documentation for ships. Came into force in March 1967.

International Convention on Load Lines, 1966. Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO in 1966. It will eventually replace the current Load Line Convention of 1930. The Convention came into force on July 21st, 1968.

International Convention on Tonnage Measurement of Ships, 1969. Drawn up at a Conference called by IMCO in 1969, the Convention embodies a universal system for measuring ships' tonnage. Will come into force two years after acceptance or accession by twenty-five governments of states, the combined fleets of which constitute not less than 65 per cent of gross tonnage of world merchant shipping.

International Convention relating to Intervention on the High Seas in Cases of Oil Pollution Casualties, 1969. Will enter into force on the ninetieth day after the date on which fifteen countries have approved it. Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO in Brussels in 1969.

International Convention on Civil Liability for Oil Pollution Damage, 1969. Will come into force on the ninetieth day after the date on which eight countries, including five with not less than 1 million gross tons of tanker tonnage, have approved it. Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO at Brussels in 1969.

Sub-Committee on Cargoes and Containers. Has drawn up the Code of Safe Practice for Bulk Cargoes, which will be kept up to date. Has drawn up new Grain Regulations, adopted by 1969 Assembly as equivalent to Chapter VI of International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, 1960.

Sub-Committee on the Carriage of Dangerous Goods. Has drawn up International Maritime Dangerous Goods Code, which will be kept up to date.

Sub-Committee on Fire Protection. Deals with fire protection measures for ships, including tankers.

Sub-Committee on Life-Saving Appliances. Deals with questions pertaining to life-saving equipment.

Sub-Committee on Marine Pollution. Keeps the problem of pollution and its prevention under constant review.

Sub-Committee on Radiocommunications. Deals with questions pertaining to radiocommunications from the viewpoint of safety at sea. Responsible for periodic revision of the International Code of Signals.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

Sub-Committee on Safety of Navigation. Deals with questions pertaining to safety of navigation, including those relevant to new types of craft, and with traffic separation schemes.

Sub-Committee on Ship Design and Equipment. Considers primarily the construction and equipment of ships carrying bulk cargoes of dangerous chemical substances other than petroleum and similar inflammable products normally carried in tankers; aims to recommend suitable design criteria, constructional standards and other safety measures.

Sub-Committee on Safety of Fishing Vessels. Considers and makes recommendations on safety aspects of these vessels.

Sub-Committee on Subdivision and Stability. Examines watertight subdivision of passenger ships, intact stability of passenger and cargo ships, subdivision and damage stability of cargo ships.

Sub-Committee on Standards of Training and Watchkeeping. Lays down basic principals to be observed in keeping safe watch, including minimum qualifications of personnel involved; draws up proposals for minimum international standards of training and certification and their mandatory applications.

BUDGET

The establishment of IMCO was financed by a loan from the United Nations. Arrangements were made by the first Assembly to place the Organization on a sound financial basis with contributions assessed from member states. The budget for operations during 1972 was established at $1,969,900 and during 1973 at $2,026,700.

CONVENTION

PART I—PURPOSES

ARTICLE 1. (a) to provide machinery for co-operation among governments in the field of governmental regulation and practices relating to technical matters of all kinds affecting shipping engaged in international trade, and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety and efficiency of navigation;

(b) to encourage the removal of discriminatory action and unnecessary restrictions by governments affecting shipping engaged in international trade so as to promote the availability of shipping services to the commerce of the world without discrimination; assistance and encouragement given by a government for the development of its national shipping and for purposes of security does not in itself constitute discrimination, provided that such assistance and encouragement is not based on measures designed to restrict the freedom of shipping of all flags to take part in international trade;

(c) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of matters concerning unfair restrictive practices by shipping concerns in accordance with Part II;

(d) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of any matters concerning shipping that may be referred to it by any organ or Specialized Agency of the United Nations;

(e) to provide for the exchange of information among governments on matters under consideration by the Organization.

PART II—FUNCTIONS

ARTICLE 2. The functions of the Organization shall be consultative and advisory.

ARTICLES 3 and 4. Description of functions.

PART III—MEMBERSHIP

ARTICLE 5. Membership in the Organization shall be open to all states.

ARTICLES 6–11. Conditions of membership.

PART IV—ORGANS

ARTICLE 12. The Organization shall consist of an Assembly, a Council, a Maritime Safety Committee, and such subsidiary organs as the Organization may at any time consider necessary; and a Secretariat.

PART V—ASSEMBLY

ARTICLE 13. The Assembly shall consist of all the members.

ARTICLES 14–16. Powers and duties of the Assembly.

PART VI—COUNCIL

ARTICLE 17. The Council shall be composed of eighteen members elected by the Assembly.

ARTICLE 18. In electing the members of the Council, the Assembly shall observe the following principles:

- (a) six shall be governments of States with the largest interest in providing international shipping services;
- (b) six shall be governments of other States with the largest interest in international seaborne trade;
- (c) six shall be governments of States not elected under (a) or (b) above, which have special interests in maritime transport or navigation and whose election to the Council will ensure the representation of all major geographic areas of the world.

ARTICLES 19–27. Powers and duties of the Council.

PART VII—MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

ARTICLE 28. The Maritime Safety Committee shall consist of sixteen members elected by the Assembly from members, governments of those States having an important interest in maritime safety of which:

- (a) eight members shall be elected from among the ten largest shipowning States;
- (b) four members shall be elected in such manner as to ensure that, under this sub-paragraph, a State in each of the following areas is represented: I. Africa; II. The Americas; III. Asia and Oceania; IV. Europe;

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

(c) the remaining four members shall be elected from among States not otherwise represented on the Committee. For the purpose of this Article, States having an important interest in maritime safety shall include, for example, States interested in the supply of large numbers of crews or in the carriage of berthed or unberthed passengers. Members of the Maritime Safety Committee shall be elected for a term of four years and shall be eligible for re-election.

ARTICLE 29. (a) The Maritime Safety Committee shall have the duty of considering any matter within the scope of the Organization and concerned with aids to navigation, construction and equipment of vessels, manning from a safety standpoint, rules for the prevention of collisions, handling of dangerous cargoes, maritime safety procedures and requirements, hydrographic information, log-books and navigational records, marine casualty investigation, salvage and rescue, and any other matters directly affecting maritime safety.

(b) The Maritime Safety Committee shall provide machinery for performing any duties assigned to it by the Convention, or by the Assembly, or any duty within the scope of this Article which may be assigned to it by any other intergovernmental instrument.

(c) Having regard to the provisions of Part XII, the Maritime Safety Committee shall have the duty of maintaining such close relationship with other intergovernmental bodies concerned with transport and communications as may further the object of the Organization in promoting maritime safety and facilitate the co-ordination of activities in the fields of shipping, aviation, telecommunications and meteorology with respect to safety and rescue.

ARTICLES 30–32. Powers and duties of the Maritime Safety Committee.

PART VIII—SECRETARIAT

ARTICLE 33. The Secretariat shall comprise the Secretary-General, a Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee and such staff as the Organization may require.

ARTICLES 34–38. Powers and duties of the Secretariat.

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY

Composed of representatives of the member states, and is the organization's legislative body; meets every three years.

COUNCIL

Comprises representatives of twenty-seven states elected by the Assembly. It is the executive body, and establishes and supervises subsidiary technical committees and makes recommendations to member governments; meets in virtually continuous session; elects the President, appoints the Secretary-General, and administers the finances of the organization.

President of the Council: WALTER BINAGHI (Argentina).

Secretary-General: Dr. ASSAD KOTAITE (Lebanon).

FUNCTIONS OF THE COUNCIL

1. Adopts international standards and recommended practices and incorporates them as annexes to the Convention on International Civil Aviation.
2. Acts as arbiter between member states on matters concerning aviation and implementation of the Convention.
3. Investigates any situation which prevents avoidable obstacles to development of international air navigation.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

4. Takes whatever steps are necessary to maintain safety and regularity of operation of international air transport.
5. Provides technical assistance to the developing countries under the UN Development Programme and other assistance programmes.

ACTIVITIES DURING 1971

At the eighteenth session of its triennial Assembly in Vienna from June 16th to July 7th, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Congo (Brazzaville), Czechoslovakia, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Lebanon, Mexico, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Senegal, Spain, Tunisia, Uganda, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, and the United States were elected members of the Council. The U.S.S.R. became an ICAO member state in November 1970 and it is the first time the U.S.S.R. is represented on the Council.

In reviewing the work of the Organization over the past three-year period, the Assembly established guidelines for a broad range of agenda items concerning future activities in the technical, economic, legal and administrative fields.

The Assembly also had before it a report of the Secretary General on the action completed under a resolution of the sixteenth Assembly that ICAO should seek new improved headquarters in Montreal, the existing facilities having become inadequate. To help ICAO secure this new accommodation, the Canadian Government has agreed to make a grant of $1.1 million annually to the Organization. The new headquarters premises are expected to be ready for occupancy in 1973.

In the technical field, during 1971 the Organization continued to pay attention to certain problems that have arisen in recent years, such as the application of space techniques relating to aviation, supersonic transport aircraft, aircraft noise and sonic boom. ICAO's concern in environmental matters is not new. For a number of years the Organization has concerned itself with the application of technology to achieve a reduction in aircraft noise in the vicinity of airports, and with related questions such as land-use control. ICAO is also studying possible effects on the community of sonic boom and atmospheric pollution due to aircraft emissions, both in the vicinity of airports and by aircraft en route, and is making plans to participate in the forthcoming UN Conference on the Human Environment to be held in Stockholm in June 1972.

Following the trend of preceding years, there was a continued increase in activities in the legal field, requiring many more meetings than in the past and putting great pressure on national experts and on the Legal Bureau. Results have been positive: a diplomatic conference, held in Guatemala City in 1971, adopted a far-reaching revision of those provisions of the Warsaw Convention of 1929, as amended by the Hague Protocol of 1955, which pertain to the liability of the air carrier in respect of the international carriage by air of passengers and baggage. Another diplomatic conference, based on a draft convention prepared by the Legal Committee, convened in The Hague in December 1970, and adopted a Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft. After the deposit of ten instruments of ratification, this Convention entered into force on October 14th, 1971. In September 1971, a diplomatic conference held in Montreal adopted a Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Civil Aviation. This Convention is mainly concerned with acts of violence against civil aviation other than those pertaining to the unlawful seizure of aircraft and will come into force on the thirtieth day after the deposit of the tenth instrument of ratification. The Seventeenth Session (Extraordinary) of the Assembly, meeting in New York in March 1971, recommended that the Council "shall be composed of thirty contracting states elected by the Assembly". (A protocol to the Chicago Convention, concerning the increase of membership of the Council, requires eighty ratifications, at which time it will come into effect.)

In November, a meeting was held in Geneva to formulate a new ten-year air navigation plan for the European-Mediterranean region. As a result of the steady growth of air traffic in Europe, it was recognized that long-range planning was necessary for the next decade to meet the increasing demands of air transport operations through the co-ordinated efforts of all ICAO member states in that area.

The Council re-elected Mr. Walter Binaghi as its President for a sixth consecutive three-year term.

As recommended by the Plenary Session of the Assembly, the Russian language will be introduced in ICAO as rapidly as possible with the object of utilizing it before the end of 1974 to the same extent as English, French and Spanish, its other languages.

On August 20th and September 5th, 1971, Bahrain and Qatar, respectively, deposited their instruments of adherence to the Chicago Convention, bringing the number of ICAO member states to 122.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION—ILO

154 Rue de Lausanne, CH-1211 Geneva 22, Switzerland

The ILO was founded in 1919 to work for social justice as a basis for lasting peace. It carries out this mandate by promoting decent living standards, satisfactory conditions of work and pay and adequate employment opportunities. Methods of action include the creation of international labour standards; the provision of technical co-operation services; and research and publications on social and labour matters. In 1946, the Organisation became a specialized agency associated with the UN. The ILO was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1969.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

President (June 1971): PIERRE WALINE (France).

Vice-Presidents (June 1971): STEFAN MURIN (Czechoslovakia), FERNANDO YLLANES RAMOS (Mexico), N. DE BOCK (Belgium).

The supreme deliberative body of ILO. Normally meets annually in Geneva, with a session devoted to maritime questions when necessary. Attended by more than 1,200 delegates, advisers and observers. National delegations are composed of two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate. Non-governmental delegates can speak and vote independently of the views of their government. Conference elects the Governing Body and adopts the Budget and International Labour Conventions and Recommendations.

The President and Vice-Presidents hold office for the term of the Conference only.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

Director-General: C. W. JENKS (United Kingdom).

Deputy Directors-General: A. M. ANMAR (Egypt), F. BLANCHARD (France).

Assistant Directors-General: BERTIL BOLIN (Sweden), ALBERT TÉVOÉDJRÉ (Dahomey), XAVIER CABALLERO TAMAYO (Bolivia), YUJIRO OHNO (Japan), PAVEL ASTAPENKO (U.S.S.R.).

The International Labour Office is the Organisation's secretariat, operational headquarters and publishing house. It is staffed in Geneva and in the field by more than 3,000 people of some 100 nationalities. Operations are decentralized to regional, area and branch offices in nearly 40 countries.

GOVERNING BODY

Chairman (1971-72): UMARJADI NJOTOWIJONO (Indonesia).

Employers' Vice-Chairman (1971-72): GULLMAR BERGENSTRÖM (Sweden).

Workers' Vice-Chairman (1971-72): JOSEPH MORRIS (Canada).

ILO's executive council. Normally meets three or four times a year in Geneva to decide policy and programmes. Composed normally of 24 Government members, 12 employers' members and 12 workers' members. Nine of the government members represent "states of chief industrial importance"—Canada, France, German Federal Republic, India, Italy, Japan, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, United States. The remaining 14 are elected from other countries every three years. Employers' and workers' members are elected as individuals, not as national candidates.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR LABOUR STUDIES

Established by ILO in March 1960. The Institute is an advanced educational and research institution dealing with social and labour policy, and brings together international experts representing employers, management, workers and government interests. Activities include international and regional study courses, and are financed by grants and an Endowment Fund to which governments and other bodies contribute.

Director: R. W. Cox (Canada).

INTERNATIONAL CENTRE FOR ADVANCED TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Established by ILO in Turin, Italy, the Centre became operational in October 1965. It marshals the latest techniques in management, technology and teaching methodology and makes them available to key personnel from all over the world. It does this by giving advanced training courses to experienced managers, instructors, technicians and directors of training services. Programmes are geared primarily to the needs of developing countries. The ILO Director-General is Chairman of the Board of the Centre.

Director: PHILIPPE BLAMONT (France).

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR STANDARDS

One of the ILO's primary functions is the adoption by the International Labour Conference of Conventions and Recommendations setting minimum labour standards. Through ratification by member states, Conventions create binding obligations to put their provisions into effect. Recommendations provide guidance as to policy and practice. A total of 136 Conventions and 144 Recommendations have been adopted, ranging over a wide field of social and labour matters, including basic human rights such as freedom of association, abolition of forced labour and elimination of discrimination in employment. Together they form the International Labour Code. By November 1971 almost 5,000 commitments to observe the Conventions had been made by member states.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

In 1970-71, technical co-operation continued to be the ILO's major activity in terms of expenditure. An estimated $62.9 million from all sources, including the United Nations Development Programme, was spent on ILO projects in aid of social and economic development. About 900 ILO experts were at work in 105 countries. Regional distribution of such expenditure in 1970 was as follows: Africa, $13 million; Latin America and the Caribbean, $5 million; Asia, $7 million; Europe, $2.7 million; Near and Middle East, $1.6 million; inter-regional projects, $0.6 million.

THE WORLD EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME

In 1969, its 50th anniversary year, the ILO launched a World Employment Programme designed to help national and international efforts to provide productive employment for the rapidly growing population, thus enabling the world's peoples to share in the fruits of economic progress through gainful work. Under this programme, the ILO has co-operated with national authorities and with other international organizations in promoting policies designed to overcome unemployment and under-employment in Colombia, Ceylon and Iran. Further missions have been invited by the governments of Kenya and other African countries to help with employment planning in 1972.

MEETINGS

Among meetings scheduled for 1972, besides those of the International Labour Conference and the Governing Body, are the following: Meetings of Experts on Paid Educational Leave and on Occupational Cancer; Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations; Inland Transport Committee; Inter-American Advisory Committee; Meeting on the Occupational Safety and Health Programme.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

The 56th session of the International Labour Conference (June 1971) adopted the following new international standards: a Convention and a Recommendation on the protection of workers from hazards of poisoning arising from benzene; and a Convention and Recommendation on protection and facilities to be afforded to workers' representatives in the undertaking. The Conference adopted resolutions stressing the importance of tripartism (participation by governments, employers and workers) in ILO activities; and calling for effective action against apartheid. Other resolutions requested ILO action on the problems of migrant workers; the extension of social security protection; and the social problems raised by multinational undertakings. A further resolution called for study of the relationship between international trade and employment, and requested efforts to ensure that the employment effects of economic development and trade are taken into consideration by other international organizations during the Second Development Decade.

President Léopold Sédar Senghor of Senegal addressed the Conference, which was attended by about 1,250 delegates, advisers and observers from 113 countries.

The 57th session of the International Labour Conference will take place in Geneva in June 1972 to consider new international standards on minimum age for admission to employment and on social repercussions of new methods of cargo handling in docks. The Conference will also discuss labour and social implications of automation and other technological developments.

Each member has one vote at the Conference, whose main tasks are to approve budget policy and accounts, to negotiate with other international organizations, and generally direct policy. Last Conference: Montreux, September 1965. Next Conference, Geneva 1973.

WORLD ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCES

The Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference: revises telegraph and telephone regulations.

World Administrative Radio Conference: revises radio regulations, elects the members of the International Frequency Registration Board, and reviews its activities.

World Administrative Conferences meet at irregular intervals according to technical needs, and there may also be regional Administrative Conferences held ad hoc.

A World Administrative Radio Conference for Space Telecommunications was held in Geneva in June 1971 for a duration of six weeks.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

The Administrative Council meets annually in Geneva; the 26th session was held in May 1971. The Council is composed of 29 members elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference.

The Council helps the implementation of the Convention's provisions, and executes the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference and, where appropriate, the decisions of the conferences and meetings of the Union. It conducts relations with other international organizations, and approves the annual budget.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: MOHAMED MILI (Tunisia).

Deputy Secretary-General: RICHARD E. BUTLER (Australia).

Director of External Affairs: CLIFFORD STEAD (United Kingdom).

Chief, Department of Common Services: RUSSELL COOK (U.S.A.).

The Secretary-General is elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference, and is responsible to it for the General Secretariat's work, and for the Union's administrative and financial services. The General Secretariat's staff totals 305; the working languages are English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL FREQUENCY REGISTRATION BOARD (IFRB)

Chairman: ABDERRAZAK BERRADA (Morocco); 5 mems.; number of staff 105.

IFRB records assignments of radio frequencies and provides technical advice to enable members of the Union to operate as many radio channels as possible in overcrowded parts of the radio spectrum. It also investigates cases of harmful interference and makes recommendations for their solution.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCITT)

Director: JEAN ROUVIERE (France); number of staff 35.

CCITT is currently organizing sixteen study groups and two special study groups covering transmission problems, operation and tariffs, maintenance, electromagnetic dangers, protection of equipment, definitions, vocabulary and symbols, apparatus, local connecting lines, facsimile and photo-telegraphy, quality of transmission, specifications, telegraph and telex switching, telephone signalling and switching and planning the development of an international network. It has its own telephony laboratory.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCIR)

Director: JACK W. HERBSTREIT (U.S.A.); number of staff 26.

CCIR is currently organizing twelve study groups covering spectrum utilization and monitoring; space research and radioastronomy services; fixed services below about 30 MHz; fixed services using satellites; propagation in non-ionized media; ionospheric propagation; standard frequency and time-signal services; mobile services; fixed services using radio-relay systems; sound broadcasting service; television broadcasting service; Interim Study Group on Vocabulary. The television study group is working on the following matters: television recording, television standards for both black and white and colour transmission, ratio of the wanted to unwanted signal in television, reduction of band width, conversion of a television signal from one standard to another, estimates of the quality of television pictures, etc.

PLAN COMMITTEES

The Plan Committees are joint CCIR/CCITT committees responsible for preparing plans setting out circuit and routing requirements for international telecommunications and for giving estimates of the growth of international traffic. They comprise a World Plan Committee and four regional committees, for Africa, for Latin America, for Asia and Oceania and for Europe and the Mediterranean Basin.

A meeting of the World Plan Committee was held in Venice in October 1971, and the Regional Plan Committee for Africa met in Lagos, Nigeria, in January 1971.

HISTORY OF ITU

The General Assembly of the United Nations acknowledged ITU as the specialized agency in the field of telecommunication on November 15th, 1947. ITU is the oldest of the specialized agencies. Its origin dates back to May 1865, when the International Telegraph Union was founded in Paris by the signing of the International Telegraph Convention. The Paris Convention was revised in Vienna in 1868, in Rome in 1872 and in St. Petersburg in 1875. At Vienna it was decided to create a permanent international bureau, which became the forerunner of the present General Secretariat of ITU. From 1869 to 1948 its headquarters were in Berne.

In 1932 two plenipotentiary conferences were held in Madrid: a Telegraph and Telephone Conference and a Radio-telegraph Conference. The two existing Conventions were amalgamated in a single International Telecommunication Convention, and the countries which signed or acceded to it formed the International Telecommunication Union, replacing the Telegraph Union. Four sets of regulations were annexed to the Convention: Telegraph, Telephone, Radio and the Additional Radio Regulations.

A Plenipotentiary Conference met in Atlantic City in 1947 to revise the Madrid Convention. It introduced radical changes in the organization of the Union: new organs were created; it became a UN specialized agency; and in 1948 its headquarters were transferred from Berne to Geneva.

The Radio Conference, which met in 1947 at the same time as the Plenipotentiary Conference, prepared a new frequency allocation table for the various radio services. The new procedure provided for an engineering study to be made of each frequency notified to the International Frequency Registration Board. At the Radio Conference held in Geneva in 1959, the radio frequency spectrum was re-apportioned. (Within this, various bands are allocated to the Fixed, Broadcasting, Aeronautical Mobile, Land Mobile, Maritime Mobile, Radionavigation, Radiolocation, Space, Earth-Space, Radio Astronomy, Meteorological Aids, Amateur, Standard Frequency and Time Signal Services). Advances in knowledge, techniques and usage required allocations to be made beyond the previous limit of 10,500 MHz; allocations were therefore made up to 40,000 MHz. Although the future radio requirements for the new services of space and earth-space and for radio astronomy could not be foreseen, care was taken to ensure that the research in this field would not be hampered by lack of frequency allocation.

A Plenipotentiary Conference was held in Buenos Aires in 1952, in Geneva during 1959 and in Montreux in 1965. Telegraph and Telephone Conferences and Radio Conferences are normally held every five years. The last Telegraph and Telephone Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Paris in 1949 and in Geneva in 1958; Radio Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Atlantic City in 1947, and in Geneva in 1959. In October and November 1963, ITU held a world Space Radiocommunications Conference in Geneva at which over 6,000 megahertz (about 15 per cent of the entire radio frequency spectrum) were allocated for outer space purposes.

Other recent ITU conferences were an Aeronautical Radiocommunications Conference held in Geneva in March–April 1966, an African Broadcasting Conference held in Geneva during January–February 1964 and September–October 1966, and a World Maritime Radiocommunications Conference which took place in September 1967.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

ITU's programme of technical co-operation in developing countries is carried out within the framework of UNDP.

In 1970, 241 experts were on mission, 395 fellows were undergoing training abroad and $780,187 of equipment was delivered. The total cost of this assistance amounted to $6,050,198.

The three main objectives of ITU's activity in the field of technical co-operation continued to be: (a) promoting the development of regional telecommunication networks in Africa, Asia and Latin America; (b) strengthening telecommunications technical and administrative services in developing countries; and (c) developing the human resources required for telecommunications.

Fifty-three per cent of the Union's field experts were directly engaged in the training of telecommunication personnel in developing countries as organizers, advisers, lecturers or instructors.

The expenses incurred in connection with the training of telecommunication staff in 1970 represented approximately two-thirds of the total cost of the ITU field programme.

Considerable assistance was also provided by ITU in the specialized fields of telephony, telegraphy, radio-communications, frequency management, satellite communications, planning, organization, administration and management.

CONVENTION AND REGULATIONS

MONTREUX CONVENTION

The International Telecommunications Convention (Montreux, 1965), which replaced the 1959 Geneva Convention and lays down the organization and structure of ITU, came into force on January 1st, 1967. It contains the fundamental provisions which bind the Member and Associate Member Governments of the Union with the object of facilitating relations and co-operation between the peoples by means of efficient telecommunication services. These provisions deal with the composition, functions and structure of the Union, the application of the Convention and Regulations, relations with the United Nations and with International Organizations, and with special rules for radio.

TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE REGULATIONS

The Telegraph and Telephone Regulations were adopted during the 1958 Geneva Telegraph and Telephone Conference and are still in force. They deal with problems of telegraph and telephone rates and tariffs among ITU Member countries. These two Regulations lay down the rules to be observed in the international telephone service. Their provisions are applied to both wire and wireless telegraph and telephone communications so far as the Radio Regulations and the Additional Radio Regulations do not provide otherwise.

RADIO REGULATIONS

The Regulations are attached to the Geneva Convention, and bind all Members and Associate Members. They include general rules for the assignment and use of frequencies and—the most important part of the Regulations—a Table of Frequency Allocations between 10 kHz and 275 GHz to the various radio services: broadcasting, television, radio astronomy, navigation aid, point-to-point service, maritime mobile, amateur, etc. Chapter III deals with the duties of the International Frequency Registration Board. The Regulations governing measures against interference follow. Subsequently, there are the administrative provisions for stations (secrecy, licences, identification, service documents, inspection of mobile stations).

Chapters VI and VII are concerned with personnel and working conditions in the mobile services, and Chapter VIII with radio assistance in life saving. The last two chapters deal with radiotelegrams and radiotelephone calls and miscellaneous stations and services. Partial revision of the Radio Regulations, Geneva 1959, entered into force on January 1st, 1965 for space service and on July 1st, 1967 for the Aeronautical Mobile Services.

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION—UNESCO

7 & 9 place de Fontenoy, Paris 7e, France

Telephone: 566 57-57, 705 97-49, 705 99-48.

UNESCO was established in 1945 "for the purpose of advancing, through the educational, scientific and cultural relations of the peoples of the world, the objectives of international peace and the common welfare of mankind".

FUNCTIONS

In practice, UNESCO's activities take three main forms: encouraging international intellectual co-operation; operational assistance to its 125 member states; and the promotion of peace, human rights and mutual understanding among peoples. These activities are funded through a regular budget provided by member states and also through other sources, particularly the UNDP.

International Intellectual Co-operation

International intellectual co-operation is the basis of all UNESCO's work and involves the communication of knowledge, the comparison of experience and the exchange of ideas through a wide network of specialists. Apart from its professional staff, UNESCO can call upon educators, scientists, artists, writers and sociologists in national associations and international federations which regularly work with it and some of which it helped to establish. Typical activities include the convening of some hundred conferences and meetings a year; the co-ordination of international scientific efforts through mechanisms such as the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission; standardization of documentation procedures; providing clearing house services; provision of fellowships; and the publication of a wide range of specialized works including source books and works of reference. They also include the promotion of international agreements, for example the Universal Copyright Convention, which member states are invited to accept.

Operational Assistance

A major part of UNESCO's efforts have been devoted to operational assistance since the 1960s, when large numbers of newly independent nations joined the Organization and sought its help on development projects. Such help takes the form of expertise provided by missions which advise governments when projects are being planned and day-to-day technical assistance given by international experts posted to the projects when they become operational. Operational assistance ranges over projects such as functional literacy of workers involved in development undertakings; teacher training; the establishment of libraries and documentation centres; provision of training for journalists, radio, television and film workers, and improvement of scientific and technical education through to studies on problems of salinity in irrigation.

Promotion of Peace

Recognizing that "Since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defences of peace must be constructed", all UNESCO's activities are aimed at contributing to the promotion of peace, human rights and mutual understanding but a number are specifically directed to these objectives. Scientific research on problems of race is promoted by the Organization, which has also waged a continuous struggle against discrimination in education and undertaken programmes to improve the access of women to education. It has commissioned studies on various aspects of human rights and, through the associated schools which take part in its youth programme, has promoted activities to increase knowledge of international problems and improve mutual understanding.

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Is the supreme governing body of the Organization. Meets in ordinary session once in two years and is composed of representatives of the member states. Sixteenth Session: Oct.-Nov. 1970, Paris.

President: Atilio Dell'oro Maini (Argentina).

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 34 members. Prepares the programme to be submitted to the Conference and supervises its execution. Meets twice or sometimes three times a year.

Chairman: Prem Kirpal (India).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: René Maheu (France).

Deputy Director-General: John E. Fobes (U.S.A.).

Assistant Directors-General: Adriano Buzzati-Traverso (Italy), Mahdi Elmandjra (Morocco), Vladimir Erofeev (U.S.S.R.), Richard Hoggart (U.K.), Amadou Mahtar M'bow (Senegal), Alberto Ogligado (Argentina).

The Director-General has an international staff of 3,400 civil servants. UNESCO's projects are entrusted to four programme sectors, for education, science, culture and communication, each headed by an Assistant Director General.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

CO-OPERATING BODIES

National Commissions and Co-operating Bodies have been set up in most member states. These help to integrate work within the member states and the work of UNESCO.

ACTIVITIES

UNESCO's programme of activities is wide, embracing continuing action, such as the provision of fellowships and the publication of around 200 issues of periodicals and more than 100 new publications yearly, as well as fixed-term projects. Around 130 conferences, ministerial meetings and specialized seminars are held every year and UNESCO maintains close relations with 188 non-governmental organizations, some of which carry out projects for specific parts of the Organization's programme. A selection of activities under the programme for the biennium 1971 and 1972, which was approved by the 16th General Conference, is given below.

Education. In this sector, as in the others, the aim is to ensure continuity while trying to match the changing needs of the modern world. Here, the governing idea is to make qualitative improvement keep pace with the quantitative expansion in education which member states strive for and which past programmes have aided. Activities along these lines include: studies on the democratization of education; investigation by a seven-member international commission, headed by former French Premier and Education Minister, Edgar Fauré, of strategies for the development of education; the organization of a regional conference of ministers of education at Singapore in June 1971 and another for Latin America at Caracas in December; a meeting of the International Conference at Geneva in September 1971 to consider "The social background of students and their chances of success at school"; help to member states for the development of national education policies and programmes for training abroad; and the setting up of mobile teams of experts to advise on the improvement of programmes and the use of the most modern educational technology.

Also approved for 1971 and 1972 were research into socio-cultural problems linked with the learning of languages; a series of pilot projects aimed at the reform of general and technical secondary education and the improvement of teacher training; help to member states for the development of higher education; and studies of alternative university structures.

At the same time, the struggle against illiteracy was continued through the expansion of the 13 projects of the Experimental World Literacy Programme. Work went on to improve the access of women to education and studies were made on how youth could participate in a changing society. Preparations were made in 1971 for a world educational conference in Japan in 1972.

Science. Science lends itself to international co-operation and UNESCO has consistently promoted regional and world undertakings in this field. In 1971, an inter-governmental conference convened in Paris approved a project to set up a world-wide scientific and technical information system by standardizing procedures and making the data of existing information systems generally available. An important innovation was the launching of an inter-governmental and multi-disciplinary programme of studies on man and the biosphere, while work continued with the Intergovernmental Oceanic Commission, with 65 nations collaborating, and with the International Hydrological Decade, for which UNESCO provides the secretariat.

A programme was approved to encourage a complete reevaluation of curricula, methods of instruction and the role of research in high-level science education. While help was made available to member states seeking to create or strengthen scientific and technological faculties, preparations were made for a 1973 meeting of African ministers responsible for the application of science and technology to development. UNESCO co-operated with the ECOSOC Advisory Committee in this field and provided for regular contact and consultation with such bodies as the International Council of Scientific Unions, the Pugwash Continuing Committee on Science and World Affairs and the World Federation of Scientific Workers. To strengthen links between science, technology and production, work went forward to set up prototype multi-disciplinary national institutions in Asia.

UNESCO, which has sent investigatory missions to areas struck by natural disasters, continued a survey of seismicity in the Balkan region and acted as executing agency for UNDP projects concerning natural disasters established in Japan, Mexico and Egypt. Drafting of a new edition of Current Trends in Scientific Research began in 1971 while promotion of fundamental research included participation in the running of the International Centre for Theoretical Physics at Trieste and co-operation with bodies such as the Latin American Centre for Biological Sciences, Caracas, the International Brain Research Organization and the International Cell Research Organization.

Cultural and Social Affairs. Culture is part of the responsibility of the Sector for Social Sciences, Human Sciences and Culture. While study of Asian, Arab and African cultures continued, publication of a General History of Africa was undertaken and a clearing-house for documentation on cultural development was launched as part of the follow-up to the 1970 Intergovernmental Conference on Cultural Policies at Venice. Help was given to member states in the development of museums and assistance was also provided to the Rome International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property to enable it to expand its training facilities. The programme in co-operation with the government of Italy for the safeguarding of Venice was continued and aid was also given to preservation programmes for monuments such as Borobudur in Indonesia and Mohenjo Daro in Pakistan.

Promotion of the social sciences has long been an important element in UNESCO's programme and this continued with payment of subsidies worth $245,000 during the biennium to non-governmental organizations in this field and to publications, including the quarterly International Social Science Journal. Activities on the application of the social sciences to human rights and peace included the launching of a study of the effects of apartheid policies on Rhodesian education, science, culture and communication, while the Organization supported the International Year to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination through publications and an international symposium in Paris. UNESCO also undertook a number of studies on the application of the social sciences to development.

UNESCO has its own Division of Philosophy and its work during the 1971-72 biennium was aimed at promoting regular international co-operation between research workers in the fields of philosophy, the human sciences and the social sciences. Subsidies were given to the International Council for Philosophy and Humanistic Studies and the International Social Science Council. To stimulate international critical reflection on questions of importance to UNESCO's programme, a symposium of specialists was held early in 1971 to examine the diversity of cultures as against the universality of science. Investigation was begun into aspects of the evolution of communication and preparatory studies were undertaken for a comparative encyclopaedia of philosophy.

Communication. Research undertaken by the Communication Sector under the current programme is intended to identify the effects of the media upon society while conventions and other arrangements required by new techniques are explored. Studies were prepared for the UN Working Group on Direct Broadcasting Satellites, for ECOSOC and for the Second World Administrative Radio Conference for Space Telecommunication convened by the ITU in 1971. UNESCO, which continued to act as executing agency for projects to use satellites in Latin America and India, continued its study of the regional use of shared satellite facilities.

A long-term programme for the development of books was put in hand during 1971, which also saw the preparations for International Book Year 1972, a conference which revised the Universal Copyright Convention in favour of developing countries and the establishment in Paris of an International Copyright Information Centre aimed at helping them further. Work continued in the Book Development Centres set up by UNESCO in Asia and Latin America.

A programme of research and studies in mass communication was extended and member states assisted in the formulation of mass communication policies. Support continued for mass media training at institutes in Strasbourg, Quito, Dakar, Philippines and Kenya. In the field of libraries and archives assistance was given to pilot projects in Ceylon, Latin America and Africa.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR EDUCATIONAL PLANNING—IIEP

9 rue Eugène Delacroix, Paris 16e, France

Established by UNESCO in 1963 to serve as a world centre for advanced training and research in educational planning. Its purpose is to help all member states of UNESCO in their social and economic development efforts, by enlarging the fund of knowledge about educational planning and the supply of competent experts in this field.

Legally and administratively a part of UNESCO, the Institute enjoys intellectual autonomy, and its policies and programme are controlled by its own Governing Board, under special statutes voted by the General Conference of UNESCO.

Chairman of Governing Board: Prof. TORSTEN HUSEN.

Director: RAYMOND POIGNANT.

Publications include Progress Report 1963-1967 and over 50 titles in English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU OF EDUCATION—IBE

Palais Wilson, 1211 Geneva 14, Switzerland

Founded in 1925 by a group of Genevese educationists, the IBE became an intergovernmental organization in July 1929 and was incorporated into UNESCO in January 1969.

COUNCIL

The Council of the IBE is composed of representatives of 21 member states designated by the General Conference of UNESCO. These are: Belgium, Brazil, Colombia, Cuba, Ethiopia, France, Gabon, Federal Republic of Germany, India, Lebanon, Mauritania, Nigeria, Senegal, Spain, Switzerland, Turkey, U.K., U.S.A., U.S.S.R., Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Director: LEO FERNIG.

FUNCTIONS

International Conference on Public Education. The 34th session, to take place in 1972, will have as its main theme "The relationship between education, training and employment with particular reference to secondary education, its aims, structure and content."

International Education Library: 70,000 volumes; some 700 journals received regularly.

Permanent International Exhibition on Education: 38 exhibiting countries.

BUDGET

Financed from the budget of UNESCO, the IBE has a budget for 1971 and 1972 of $900,000.

PUBLICATIONS

International Yearbook of Education, Volume XXXIII, 1972.

Educational Documentation and Information, quarterly.

Educational Trends in 1971.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

PERIODICALS

UNESCO Courier: monthly illustrated journal devoted to the general interests of UNESCO; English, French, German, Spanish, Russian, Italian, Arabic, Japanese, Hindi, Tamil, Hebrew and Persian.

UNESCO Chronicle: monthly, giving official information, records of meetings, reports, and articles on UNESCO's programme, etc.; English, French, Arabic and Spanish.

Bulletin for Libraries: bi-monthly, containing information of use to libraries, scientific research institutes, etc.; chapters offering publications on exchange and for free distribution as well as lists of publications wanted by libraries; English, French, Spanish and Russian.

Copyright Bulletin: quarterly review of special studies and documentation on the legislation in different countries, and on UNESCO's work on behalf of the harmonization of the various copyright laws; trilingual (English-French-Spanish).

Museum: quarterly international review of museographical techniques intended for museum specialists; bilingual (English-French).

Impact of Science on Society: quarterly review of current events and trends in science and of their social consequences; English, French and Spanish.

International Social Science Journal: quarterly journal providing a forum for professional debate on important topics of timely significance by international panels of scholars. Other features provide a regular documentation service to social scientists; English and French.

Prospects in Education: quarterly, providing educators, educational institutions and teaching personnel in Unesco's Member States with articles and information from world-wide sources, and at the same time designed to help teachers—particularly at primary level—by offering them insight into the educational problems and solutions of other lands.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION—UPU

3000 Berne 15, Switzerland

Telephone: (031) 43 22 11.

By the Treaty of Berne, 1874, the General Postal Union was founded, beginning operations in July 1875. Three years later its name was changed to the Universal Postal Union. In 1948 UPU became a Specialized Agency of UN.

PRINCIPLES GOVERNING THE ACTIVITIES OF THE UNION

The essential principles of the Union, introduced by the Berne Convention (1874) and still appearing in the Constitution and the present Convention are the following:

1. Formation of one single postal territory.
2. Unification of postal charges.
3. Abolition of the sharing of charges between the sender country and the country of destination.
4. Guarantee of freedom of transit.

5. Settlement of disputes by arbitration.

6. Establishment of a central office (secretariat) under the name of the International Bureau paid for by all members.

7. Periodical meeting of Congresses.

8. Promotion of the development of international postal services and postal technical assistance to Union members. (Vienna Congress, 1964.)

MEMBERSHIP

(see Table on pages 28–30)

CONGRESS

The Supreme body of the Union is Congress which meets every five years. Its duties are legislative and consist mainly of revision of the Acts. Sixteen Congresses have been held:

Berne . . .	1874	London . . .	1929
Paris . . .	1878	Cairo . . .	1934
Lisbon . . .	1885	Buenos Aires . . .	1939
Vienna . . .	1891	Paris . . .	1947
Washington . . .	1897	Brussels . . .	1952
Rome . . .	1906	Ottawa . . .	1957
Madrid . . .	1920	Vienna . . .	1964
Stockholm . . .	1924	Tokyo . . .	1969

The next Congress will be held at Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1974.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Between Congresses, an Executive Council, created by the Paris Congress 1947, meets annually at Berne. It is composed of 31 member countries of the Union elected by Congress on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution. Its role is to ensure continuity of the Union's work in the interval between Congresses, namely to study the problems submitted to it by Congress.

CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL FOR POSTAL STUDIES

At the Ottawa Congress 1957 a Consultative Committee for Postal Studies was established, the aim of which was to make recommendations on technical, operational and economic questions related to the postal service. At the Tokyo Congress 1969 this Committee became the Consultative Council for Postal Studies (CCPS), whose 30 member countries meet annually, in principle at Berne.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The day-to-day work of UPU is executed through a permanent organ called the International Bureau stationed at Berne. It serves as an instrument of liaison, information and consultation for the postal administration of the member countries.

Director-General of the International Bureau: Dr. MICHEL RAHI (Egypt).

BUDGET

The Executive Council fixed 9,842,000 Swiss francs as the maximum figure for annual expenditure in the year 1972. This sum, and any extraordinary expenses, are borne by members. Members are listed in seven classes setting out the proportion they should pay.

PUBLICATIONS

UPU publications are listed in Liste des publications du Bureau international; all are in French, some also in English, Arabic and Spanish.

Union Postale (monthly review): published in French, German, English, Arabic, Chinese, Spanish and Russian.

CONSTITUTION, GENERAL REGULATIONS AND CONVENTIONS

The Constitution, which came into being as a result of the division of the Universal Postal Convention by the Vienna Congress in 1964, contains the basic organic provisions of the UPU. It took effect on January 1st, 1966, and was thenceforth the permanent Act of the Union.

The provisions providing for the application of the Constitution and the operation of the Union are contained in the General Regulations, which, like the other UPU Acts and unlike the Constitution, is renewable at each Congress.

The common rules applicable to the international postal service and to the letter-post provisions are contained in the Universal Postal Convention and its Detailed Regulations. Owing to their importance in the postal field and their historical value, these two Acts, together with the Constitution and the General Regulations, constitute the compulsory Acts of the Union. It is therefore not possible to be a member country of the Union without being a party to these Acts and applying their provisions.

SPECIAL AGREEMENTS

The activities of the international postal service, other than letter mail, are governed by Special Agreements. These are binding only for the countries which have acceded to them. There are eight such Agreements:

1. Agreement concerning Insured Letters and Boxes.
2. Agreement concerning Postal Parcels.
3. Agreement concerning Postal Money Orders and postal Travellers' Cheques.

4. Agreement concerning Giro Transfers.
5. Agreement concerning Cash on Delivery items.
6. Agreement concerning the Collection of Bills.
7. Agreement concerning the International Savings Bank Service.
8. Agreement concerning Subscriptions to Newspapers and Periodicals.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION—WHO

Avenue Appia, 1211 Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 61.

Established in 1948 to promote and protect the health of all peoples. WHO tries to give each country on request the aid it needs to improve national health services. WHO also provides a number of world-wide technical services and encourages and co-ordinates international research on health problems. In individual cases the Organization works with health departments to improve services, mainly in the developing countries. Aid chiefly takes the following forms, in decreasing order of importance: technical assistance; opportunities for professional training; operational research; the provision of health teams in campaigns against widely prevalent diseases; and related activities.

ORGANIZATION

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

President: Sir WILLIAM REFSHAUGE (Australia).

Vice-Presidents (1971–72): Dr. S. PHONG-AKSARA (Thailand), A. N. ANSARI (Pakistan), Dr. A. TODOROV (Bulgaria), Dr. J. I. DIAZ GRANADA (Colombia), B. M. LESETELI (Lesotho).

Chairman, Committee A: Dr. ABDUL RAZZAK-AL-ADNANI (Kuwait).

Chairman, Committee B: Dr. F. A. BAUHOFFER (Australia).

The World Health Assembly meets once a year, usually in Geneva, but occasionally away from headquarters, at the invitation of a member state. The Assembly determines policy, adopts a programme and budget for the following year, appoints the Director-General, admits new members and decides the scale of assessments for members' contributions to the budget.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Chairman: Dr. S. PAUL ERLICH (U.S.A.).

Vice-Chairmen: Dr. VASSOS P. VASSILOPOULOS (Cyprus), Dr. ALI BARRAUD (Upper Volta).

Rapporteurs: Dr. HASHIM ABDUL-GHAFFAR (Saudi Arabia), Dr. A. SAENZ SANQUINETTI (Uruguay).

The Board is composed of twenty-four health experts designated by, but not representing, their governments. It meets at least twice a year to review the Director-General's programme, which it forwards to the Assembly with any recommendations that seem necessary. It also advises the Assembly on questions referred to it by that body.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: Dr. M. G. CANDAU (Brazil).

Deputy Director-General: Dr. P. DOROLLE (France).

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. LUCIEN BERNARD (France), WARREN W. FURTH (U.S.A.), Dr. THOMAS A. LAMBO (Nigeria), Dr. HALFDAN MAHLER (Denmark), Dr. ALEXANDER S. PAVLOV (U.S.S.R.).

REGIONS

Africa: Dr. A. QUENUM, P.O.B. 6, Brazzaville, Congo.

Americas: Dr. ABRAHAM HORWITZ, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, 525 23rd St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, U.S.A.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. A. H. TABA, P.O.B. 1517, Alexandria, Egypt.

Europe: Dr. LEO KAPRIO, 8 Scherfigsvej, Copenhagen Ø, Denmark.

South-East Asia: Dr. V. T. HERAT GUNARATNE, Indraprastha Estate, Ring Rd., New Delhi 1, India.

Western Pacific: Dr. FRANCISCO J. DY, P.O.B. 2932, Manila, Philippines.

Each of WHO's six geographical regions has its own organization consisting of a regional committee composed of the member states and associate members in the region concerned, and a regional office staffed by experts in various fields of health that work under a regional director.

ACTIVITIES IN 1971

WORLD HEALTH DAY

April 7th is designated as World Health Day to commemorate the coming into existence of the Organization on that date in 1948. Each year a theme is chosen to draw attention to an outstanding health problem: in 1971, the theme was "A full life despite diabetes" to emphasize the fact that once this disease has been diagnosed and the appropriate form of treatment prescribed, it is possible for the diabetic to live life to the full. Dr. M. G. Candau, WHO Director-General, called for better detection of diabetes, noting that information and education at all levels can help to promote both early diagnosis and assure proper care. Physicians and other members of the health team including nurses, dieticians, health educators, medical social workers and pharmacists, all have a part to play in the educational process.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

The Twenty-Fourth World Health Assembly met in Geneva in May 1971. An effective working budget of $82,023,000 was adopted to finance the work of the Organization in 1972, an increase of 9 per cent over the 1971 figure. WHO programmes of assistance to governments and of technical services are also financed with the help of voluntary contributions and the UNDP. Many projects receive substantial aid from UNICEF.

Cholera. As the seventh cholera pandemic continued to spread, discussions in the World Health Assembly repeatedly stressed that no country is safe from the importation of this disease. However, delegates agreed that the invasion could be stopped in places where sanitary conditions were good, since the spread of cholera is closely linked to poor environmental conditions. In the first six months of 1971, 27 countries had reported the presence of cholera to WHO. In mid-year, the figures stood at 65,000 cases and 10,600 deaths. WHO launched an appeal for funds and contributions in kind to fight the epidemic. A number of countries gave large amounts of cholera vaccine and other supplies. WHO assistance in Asia was mainly directed at alleviating the health situation among Pakistani refugees in West Bengal with shipments of supplies for the prevention and treatment of cholera and other diseases. In Africa, depots of vaccine and rehydrating fluid were set up in both West and East Africa, as well as at the WHO Regional Office for Africa in Brazzaville.

Smallpox eradication. In 1971, figures on the incidence of smallpox throughout the world were slightly higher than in 1970, a result of the improvement in notifications from Ethiopia which began its eradication campaign only in January 1971. By October 26th, 1971, 38,015 cases had been reported to WHO, 4 per cent more than the 1970 total. This, at 31,318 cases was the lowest number ever reported to the Organization.

In 1967, when the Smallpox Eradication Campaign began, 15 countries had smallpox incidence rates of more than 5 per 100,000 population, whereas in 1971 only Ethiopia was expected to record so high a rate.

WHO continues to give substantial support to the programme in the endemic countries, providing technical aid and consultants, furnishing supplies, equipment, and teaching materials, and holding courses and seminars. Considerable assistance is also being given on a bilateral basis by the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. and in the past year 28 more countries made contributions—usually in the form of vaccine—to the WHO Special Account for Smallpox Eradication.

Malaria eradication. Although some countries experienced difficulties and delays in malaria eradication programmes, progress was maintained in many others. By the end of 1970, 1,347 million people (74 per cent) of the estimated 1,814 million living in the originally malarious areas of the world were free from the threat of malaria or were being protected by malaria eradication programmes. With the inception of the revised strategy of malaria eradication in certain countries, control operations were being undertaken as an interim measure, since for financial and administrative reasons eradication was impracticable.

Environmental health. The Assembly endorsed a long-term programme for environmental health presented to it by the Director-General. A study made by the Secretariat emphasized the need to determine as rapidly as possible the permissible levels of pollutants for man and to enlarge knowledge of the adverse effects on health of other components of the environment. The study also recommended that a surveillance and monitoring system should be set up to give early warning of a deterioration in community health or well-being. It is to be expected that the study of the environment and its effect on health will occupy an increasingly important place in the Organization's research programme in coming years. WHO is co-operating closely with the Preparatory Committee for the Conference on the Human Environment which is to be held in Stockholm in June 1972.

Water supplies. An increasing number of governments are seeking the Organization's assistance in making pre-investment surveys towards the planning and implementation of national water supply programmes and the installation of rural water supplies. WHO has set a target for 1980 of ensuring clean and abundant water in the developing countries for all city dwellers and for 20 per cent of the people in rural areas. This presupposes that financing from many sources, in addition to WHO, will be developed in the context of the Second UN Development Decade (1971–80).

Medical research. WHO continued to provide advisory services to research centres and individual workers throughout the world; to award research grants and fellowships and to sponsor the training of research workers. The WHO-sponsored research programme covers matters ranging from the use of cannabis to the prevention of Rh sensitization, and from psychogeriatrics to mathematical models in health planning. The Organization is able to avail itself of the advice of experts who meet throughout the year to consider specific subjects. In addition, a broader review of the programme is undertaken by the Advisory Committee on Medical Research (ACMR) which recommends how specific projects might be strengthened and draws attention to research needs that it considers of especial urgency.

Family health. In view of the need to develop safe, effective and acceptable methods, an expanded programme to harness the talents of scientists in an international effort to develop new approaches to the regulation of human fertility was undertaken in the course of the year. The programme is being supported by a number of governments and a private foundation. Plans were drawn up after consultations with leading scientists and representatives of research institutions in 23 countries. The method of work is as follows: to provide support for a number of research centres in different regions to expand their research and research training in human reproduction; to establish a world-wide network of clinical centres to study new and existing fertility regulating agents; to establish the 'first truly international mechanism' for undertaking clinical trials simultaneously in a number of countries; to organize a WHO task force to promote collaborative research in fertility regulation; to set up a WHO documentation centre to provide a central place for all published material on the biomedical aspects of reproduction. In addition, WHO's programme of grants to scientists and institutions to support research and to provide essential supplies to collaborating institutions is being expanded. An international group of scientists in advising WHO on research priorities and the allocation of resources.

INTERNATIONAL AGENCY FOR RESEARCH ON CANCER

Lyons, France

Members: Australia, Belgium, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Netherlands, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Director: Prof. H. HIGGINSON.

Established in 1965 to provide participating states with a means of co-operating in the stimulation and support of all phases of cancer research. The Agency is an autonomous body within the framework of WHO to participate and promote international co-operation in cancer research.

At the ninth session of the Governing Council, which met in October 1971, it was decided that the Agency should make available to governments all the documentation in its possession on the evaluation of carcinogenic risk of chemicals to men and the conclusions the Agency had been able to draw from this documentation. It was considered very desirable that the authorities responsible for the control or banning of such substances should be able to call on competent and independent scientific opinion.

FEDERATION OF WORLD HEALTH FOUNDATIONS

The Federation of World Health Foundations is the central agency of world health foundations that have been established in a number of countries throughout the world to encourage voluntary support for programmes to meet urgent health needs. Leadership is provided by business, industry, medicine, education and the arts. World health foundations, which now exist in Canada, Ceylon, Hong Kong, Iran, Ireland, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the United States, are independent and autonomous organizations under the laws of their countries. A formal agreement has been drawn up between WHO and each of them under which they have access to WHO technical expertise in health matters concerning programmes being supported. Contributions to foundations are channelled to health projects through the WHO Voluntary Fund for Health Promotion. The Federation of World Health Foundations, which represents these national bodies, is privately sponsored but has a de facto relationship with the World Health Organization.

CONSTITUTION

CHAPTER I

The objective of the World Health Organization shall be the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.

CHAPTER II

In order to achieve its objective, the functions of the Organization shall be:

- (a) to act as the directing and co-ordinating authority on international health work;
- (b) to establish and maintain effective collaboration with the United Nations, specialized agencies, governmental health administrations, professional groups and such other organizations as may be deemed appropriate;
- (c) to assist governments, upon request, in strengthening health services;
- (d) to furnish appropriate technical assistance and, in emergencies, necessary aid upon the request or acceptance of governments;
- (e) to provide or assist in providing, upon the request of the United Nations, health services and facilities to special groups, such as the peoples of trust territories;
- (f) to establish and maintain such administrative and technical services as may be required, including epidemiological and statistical services;
- (g) to stimulate and advance work to eradicate epidemic, endemic and other diseases;
- (h) to promote, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, the prevention of accidental injuries;
- (i) to promote, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, the improvement of nutrition, housing, sanitation, recreation, economic or working conditions and other aspects of environmental hygiene;
- (j) to promote co-operation among scientific and professional groups which contribute to the advancement of health;
- (k) to propose conventions, agreements and regulations, and make recommendations with respect to international health matters and to perform such duties as may be assigned thereby to the Organization and are consistent with its objective;
- (l) to promote maternal and child health and welfare and to foster the ability to live harmoniously in a changing total environment;
- (m) to foster activities in the field of mental health, especially those affecting the harmony of human relations;
- (n) to promote and conduct research in the field of health;
- (o) to promote improved standards of teaching and training in the health, medical and related professions;

- (p) to study and report on, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, administrative and social techniques affecting public health and medical care from preventive and curative points of view, including hospital services and social security;
- (q) to provide information, counsel and assistance in the field of health;
- (r) to assist in developing an informed public opinion among all peoples on matters of health;
- (s) to establish and revise as necessary international nomenclatures of diseases, of causes of death and of public health practices;
- (t) to standardize diagnostic procedures as necessary;
- (u) to develop, establish and promote international standards with respect to food, biological, pharmaceutical and similar products;
- (v) generally to take all necessary action to attain the objective of the Organization.

CHAPTER III

Membership in the Organization shall be open to all states.

CHAPTER IV

The work of the Organization shall be carried out by:

The World Health Assembly
The Executive Board
The Secretariat

CHAPTER V

THE WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

The functions of the Health Assembly shall be:

- (a) to determine the policies of the Organization;
- (b) to name the Members entitled to designate a person to serve on the Board;
- (c) to appoint the Director-General;
- (d) to review and approve reports and activities of the Board and of the Director-General and to instruct the Board in regard to matters upon which action, study, investigation or report may be considered desirable;
- (e) to establish such committees as may be considered necessary for the work of the Organization;
- (f) to supervise the financial policies of the Organization and to review and approve the budget;
- (g) to instruct the Board and the Director-General to bring to the attention of Members and of international organizations, governmental or non-governmental, any matter with regard to health which the Health Assembly may consider appropriate;
- (h) to invite any organization, international or national, governmental or non-governmental, which has responsibilities related to those of the Organization, to appoint representatives to participate, without right of vote, in its meetings or in those of the committees and conferences convened under its authority, on conditions prescribed by the Health

Assembly; but in the case of national organizations, invitations shall be issued only with the consent of the government concerned;

- (i) to consider recommendations bearing on health made by the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Security Council or Trusteeship Council of the United Nations, and to report to them on the steps taken by the Organization to give effect to such recommendations;
- (j) to report to the Economic and Social Council in accordance with any agreement between the Organization and the United Nations;
- (k) to promote and conduct research in the field of health by the personnel of the Organization, by the establishment of its own institutions or by co-operation with official or non-official institutions of any Member with the consent of its government;
- (l) to establish such other institutions as it may consider desirable;
- (m) to take any other appropriate action to further the objective of the Organization.

The World Health Assembly shall have authority to adopt regulations concerning:

- (a) sanitary and quarantine requirements and other procedures designed to prevent the international spread of disease;
- (b) nomenclatures with respect to diseases, causes of death and public health practices;
- (c) standards with respect to diagnostic procedures for international use;
- (d) standards with respect to the safety, purity, and potency of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce;
- (e) advertising and labelling of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce.

CHAPTER VI

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Board shall consist of twenty-four persons designated by as many Members.

The Board shall meet at least twice a year and shall determine the place of each meeting.

The Board shall elect its chairman from among its members and shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

The functions of the Board shall be:

- (a) to give effect to the decisions and policies of the Health Assembly;
- (b) to act as the executive organ of the Health Assembly;
- (c) to perform any other functions entrusted to it by the Health Assembly;
- (d) to advise the Health Assembly on questions referred to it by that body and on matters assigned to the Organization by conventions, agreements and regulations;
- (e) to submit advice or proposals to the Health Assembly on its own initiative;
- (f) to prepare the agenda of meetings of the Health Assembly;
- (g) to submit to the Health Assembly for consideration and approval a general programme of work covering a specific period;
- (h) to study all questions within its competence;
- (i) to take emergency measures within the functions and financial resources of the Organization to deal with events requiring immediate action. In particular it may authorize the Director-General to take the necessary steps to combat epidemics, to participate in the organization of health relief to victims of a calamity and to undertake studies and research the urgency of which has been drawn to the attention of the Board by any Member or by the Director-General.

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION—WMO

41 ave. Giuseppe Motta, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 64 00.

ORIGIN AND AIMS

HISTORY

International co-operation in meteorology was established on a regular basis at the first Congress of meteorological directors held in Vienna in 1873. In 1947, at Washington, it was decided to establish a new organization founded on an agreement between governments. The Convention of the new World Meteorological Organization was ratified by a large number of countries, and began activities in 1951. It was recognized as a Specialized Agency when the General Assembly, in December 1951, approved an agreement between WMO and the United Nations. Membership is open to any country with a meteorological service which ratifies the Convention, or to whom the Convention is applied.

AIMS

1. To facilitate international co-operation in the establishment of networks of stations and centres to provide meteorological services and observations.
2. To promote the establishment and maintenance of systems for the rapid exchange of weather information.
3. To promote standardization of meteorological observations and ensure the uniform publication of observations and statistics.
4. To further the application of meteorology to aviation, shipping, water problems, agriculture and other human activities.
5. To encourage research and training in meteorology.

MEMBERSHIP

(see Table on pages 28–30)

ORGANIZATION

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL CONGRESS

Supreme organ of WMO; convened every four years; all members are represented on it; adopts regulations, approves policy, programme and budget. Next meeting: 1975.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of twenty-four members, including the President, three Vice-Presidents and the Presidents of the six Regional Associations; meets at least yearly to prepare studies and recommendations for the Congress; supervises the implementation of Congress resolutions and regulations; informs members on technical matters and offers advice.

President: M. F. TAHA (Egypt).

Vice-Presidents: Dr. W. J. GIBBS (Australia), J. BESSEMOULIN (France), Dr. P. KOTESWARAN (India).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: Dr. D. A. DAVIES (United Kingdom).

Deputy Secretary-General: Dr. K. LANGLO (Norway).

The Secretariat serves as the administrative, documentary and information centre of the Organization; undertakes special technical studies; prepares and distributes the approved publications; organizes meetings of WMO constituent bodies; generally acts as a link between the meteorological services of the world, and provides information for the general public.

REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

Members are grouped in six Regional Associations, whose task is to co-ordinate meteorological activity within their regions and to examine, from a regional point of view, questions referred to them by the Executive Committee. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Africa . . . President: M. SECK (Senegal).

Asia . . . President: A. H. NAVA'I (Iran).

South America President: S. BRAVO FLORES (Chile).

North and Central America President: J. R. H. NOBLE (Canada).

South-West Pacific . . . President: K. RAJENDRAM (Singapore).

Europe . . . President: R. J. SCHNEIDER (Switzerland).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

TECHNICAL COMMISSIONS

Eight Technical Commissions composed of experts nominated by members study the applications of meteorology and problems and developments in specialized fields. Sessions are held at least once every four years. The Commissions are:

Commission for Basic Systems (CBS)	President: N. LEONOV (U.S.S.R.).
Commission for Special Applications of Meteorology and Climatology (CSAMC)	President: H. E. LANDSBERG (U.S.A.).

Instruments and Methods of Observation (CIMO)	President: V. D. ROCKNEY (U.S.A.).
Atmospheric Sciences (CAS)	President: J. S. SAWYER (U.K.).
Aeronautical Meteorology (CAeM)	President: P. DUVERGÉ (France).
Agricultural Meteorology (CAgM)	President: W. BAIER (Canada).
Hydrology (CHy)	President: E. G. POPOV (U.S.S.R.).
Marine Meteorology (CMM)	President: S. L. TIERNEY (Ireland).

WMO ACTIVITIES

The activities of WMO are grouped into four main programmes as follows: World Weather Watch, WMO Research Programme, WMO Programme on the Interaction of Man and his Environment, and the WMO Technical Co-operation Programme.

World Weather Watch. The World Weather Watch (WWW), a world-wide meteorological system composed of the national facilities and services provided by individual members, co-ordinated and in some cases supported by WMO and other international organizations, was first approved for implementation by the Fifth World Meteorological Congress (Geneva, April 1967). A revised and updated plan for the further development of the World Weather Watch during the four-year period 1972-75 was subsequently approved by the Sixth World Meteorological Congress (Geneva, April 1971).

The WWW was originally conceived as the best way to take advantage, for the benefit of all members, of the developments in meteorological satellites and in computer technology, using scientific progress in physical-mathematical procedures of numerical weather prediction. The WWW is a dynamic system, flexible enough to be adapted to changing conditions, and is organized on three levels: the global, the regional and the national.

One of the primary responsibilities of WMO is to co-ordinate the acquisition, processing and exchange of meteorological data to permit members to fulfil their responsibilities in the application of meteorology. The WWW therefore contains as essential operational elements the Global Observing System, the Global Data-Processing System and the Global Telecommunication System.

The purpose of the Global Observing System is to produce the basic meteorological and related environmental observational data from all parts of the globe as required by members for operational and research aims. It consists of the regional basic networks and other networks of stations on land and at sea, aircraft meteorological observations, meteorological satellites and other observational devices. The Global Observing System is divided into two sub-systems, the surface-based sub-system and the satellite sub-system. In the WWW plan it is recognized that the surface-based sub-system and the satellite sub-system of the Global Observing System should be regarded as being complementary to each other. The first includes the world-wide network of observing stations where observations are made at exactly the same agreed times, which constitutes the basic conventional source of data. The methods and practices followed are based on internationally agreed decisions and are practically uniform everywhere. In addition to reports from about 8,600 land stations in the regional basic networks some 3,000 aircraft and 6,000 ships contribute to the daily total of 120,000 observations for the surface of the earth and 12,000 observations for the upper-air. These figures are increasing from year to year as more stations are brought into service. Lists of weather stations on land and on ships, code manuals and transmission schedules are issued by WMO and kept up to date by a regular and frequent service of supplements. They are used by meteorological services, airlines, coastal vessels, ships on the high seas and other interested in meteorology.

The successful performance of meteorological satellites has opened up new possibilities of obtaining information on the structure and processes of the atmosphere. The most rapidly developing aspect of the Global Observing System has been in relation to the operational meteorological satellites. Since February 1966, when the first operational satellite was launched, a series of meteorological satellites have been maintained in continuous operation. About 100 members have already installed Automatic Picture Transmission (APT) read-out stations in their countries for the reception of cloud images from the satellites and many others plan to do so in the future.

Meteorological satellites can be divided into two groups: those in polar or near-polar orbits and those in geostationary orbit. The satellite sub-system for the WWW Global Observing System will contain both types in order to provide reasonably complete coverage of the globe and to be able to provide data on (1) clouds both in daylight and at night; (2) snow and ice cover (in cloudless skies); (3) radiation temperature of clouds and of the land and ocean surface (in cloudless regions); (4) distribution of total outgoing short-wave radiation; (5) distribution of total outgoing long-wave radiation; and (6) vertical profiles of temperature and water vapour.

Under the WWW plan a Data-Processing System with World Meteorological Centres (WMC's) at Melbourne,

Moscow and Washington and 23 Regional Meteorological Centres (RMCs) in addition to National Meteorological Centres (NMCs) has been developed and is continuously being improved. The purpose of the system is to make available to all members the basic processed data they require in the form of various analyses, prognoses and meteorological warnings. By making use of the processed data available from the WMCs and RMCs, many members find it possible to concentrate a greater part of their efforts on special-purpose forecasts as well as on small-scale analyses and forecasts, the requirements for which continue to grow rapidly in many fields of application.

To support these centres and the national meteorological services, a Global Telecommunication System has been organized under the WWW with specific regulations concerning the contents as well as the forms and mode of the transmissions. The WWW Global Telecommunication System has been organized on a three-level basis, i.e. the Main Trunk Circuit, linking the WMCs as well as certain Regional Telecommunication Hubs (RTHs), the regional telecommunication networks and the national telecommunication networks.

The WWW plan is being implemented through the application of the basic principle that each country will provide the facilities and services within its territory. However, those developing countries which are unable to do this have been and will be assisted, as far as possible, through the UNDP and through bilateral agreements. A third means of assistance has been and will be the WMO Voluntary Assistance Programme (VAP) which is made up of contributions in the form of equipment or services and in financial form offered by members of WMO. In the case of regions outside the territories of individual countries (i.e. outer space, ocean areas and Antarctica) implementation is based on the principle of voluntary participation of countries by providing facilities and services from their national resources.

The detailed planning and implementation of the WWW is supported by the work of a number of the WMO Technical Commissions in particular by the Commission for Basic Systems. The implementation of the plan is also supported by the activities of the Regional Associations.

WMO Research Programme. WMO's main research effort in collaboration with the International Council of Scientific Unions (ICSU) will be centered on the Global Atmospheric Research Programme (GARP). The aim of the programme is to investigate the scientific problems which stand in the way of a fuller understanding of the atmosphere's structure and behaviour.

GARP is being planned as a world-wide scientific effort involving both theoretical research and complex field experiments. It will enable the fundamental physical and mathematical bases of long-range weather prediction to be developed further and tested. In doing this, use will be made of what are known as numerical simulation models of the atmosphere's circulation.

GARP will be composed of several auxiliary programmes which will be known as GARP Sub-Programmes. The GARP Global Sub-Programme will have a leading role inasmuch as the large-scale motions of the global atmosphere is the central theme of GARP. Other Sub-

Programmes, such as the Tropical Sub-Programme and the Air/Sea Sub-Programme, will be concerned with smaller-scale phenomena associated, for instance, with the deep convection systems in the tropics of the exchange processes between the atmosphere and the underlying surfaces.

The research programme of WMO is supported in general by the work of one Technical Commission, CAS.

WMO Programme on the Interaction of Man and his Environment. This programme includes all the activities aimed at applying meteorological knowledge to human activities. They include such questions as agricultural meteorology, aeronautical meteorology, marine meteorology and other oceanographic matters, human biometeorology, hydrology and water resources, atmospheric pollution, meteorological factors involved in industry, recreation, etc.

In the field of agricultural meteorology, WMO has initiated in co-operation with FAO, UNDP, UNESCO and WHO, an inter-agency co-ordinating group on agricultural biometeorology. The objectives include the development and implementation of an agrometeorological programme in aid of world food production. Agroclimatological surveys in the Near East, in Africa south of the Sahara, and in the highlands of eastern Africa have been completed. Similar surveys are planned in other areas and related projects, including technical conferences, are being developed.

Through CAEm acting in co-operation with expert bodies of the International Civil Aviation Organization, universal regulations have been drawn up and are under continual revision for the supply of weather information for aircraft operations and for planning purposes.

In view of the intimate relation between oceanography and meteorology, WMO takes an active part in a number of international ocean research projects, in the establishment of ocean stations on the high seas for combined meteorological and oceanographic purposes and in the collection and exchange of the resulting data. WMO is responsible for co-ordinating the international aspects of the global ocean forecast service for meteorological and some of the physical oceanographic parameters. It also has responsibilities in the archiving of ocean-atmosphere environmental data.

Fields of interest common to the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission and WMO, such as the Integrated Global Ocean Station System, air-sea interaction studies, telecommunications arrangements and legal aspects relating to scientific investigations of the ocean, are handled through joint Working Groups and mutual representation at meetings. The Commission for Marine Meteorology, the marine component of WMO has recently been strengthened by the establishment of an Executive Committee Panel on meteorological aspects of ocean affairs.

WMO has a programme to promote international co-operation in the field of operational hydrology and water resources. These activities include: promoting development in hydrology related to meteorology and the application of meteorology to water resources; developing, improving and promoting the international standardization of methods, procedures, techniques and terminology in hydrology; promoting international co-operation in the operational aspects of the collection, transmission, processing, storage, retrieval and publication of basic hydrological data and in the development and improvement of methods, procedures and techniques in the design of networks, in the operational phases of hydrological forecasting, and in the supply of hydrological and related meteorological data for the design of water resources projects; providing for international exchange of experience and promotion of actions meeting the needs of national hydrological services or equivalent bodies concerned mainly with operational hydrology. Arrangements have been made for the representation of hydrological services (or equivalent bodies) of members on the appropriate policy-making bodies of WMO, and WMO Technical Regulations for Operational Hydrology are in the process of implementation in the relevant national services.

The meteorological aspects of air pollution have been under consideration by several of the Technical Commissions for some time. At its twenty-first session in June 1969, the Executive Committee decided to co-ordinate the work by establishing an expert panel on the subject and to invite representatives of UN, UNESCO and WHO to participate in the work.

The Technical Commissions whose work is most closely linked with this programme are CAGM, CHy, CSAMC and CIMO.

WMO Technical Co-operation Programme. In view of the important contributions of meteorological services to economic development and planning (in the fields of water resources, agriculture, aviation, shipping, fishing, etc.) many countries request the Organization to assist them in the establishment or development of national meteorological and hydrological services. Through its participation in the UNDP, WMO assists the countries by supplying equipment for observing networks; international experts for advisory, training and operational missions; fellowships, for training abroad; and support for training seminars and technical conferences. Advice is given on subjects ranging from the application of meteorology in special fields (e.g. utilization of data from meteorological satellites) to the establishment, organization and operation of national meteorological services. WMO also participates in large-scale economic development projects which are undertaken to enable countries to provide information needed for the development of water resource potential (e.g. hydro-electric power, irrigation and flood control projects) and agriculture and to develop institutions for the training of personnel and the carrying out of research. In 1971, technical assistance in meteorology was provided to 91 countries at a cost of approximately U.S. $5 million.

In addition to the assistance provided to developing countries under the UNDP mentioned above, requests have been received through the VAP for the implementation of WWW for 380 projects from 96 members. Of these, 23 projects have been completed and 170 have been approved for implementation, through offers received from various governments, and were in various stages of implementation during 1971.

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND—UNICEF

6th Floor, 866 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10017, U.S.A.

Established in 1946, UNICEF was created by the UN General Assembly to continue the relief work carried out by the UN Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in assisting mothers and children in war-devastated countries. During its existence UNICEF has broadened and reoriented its work. Instead of concentrating its activities in the war-devastated countries (mainly in Europe) its assistance is now provided mainly for developing countries. Although still supplying relief in emergency situations arising out of natural and man-made disasters its objective is now to make a major contribution to the economic and social development of the countries assisted, notably in connection with the first and second Development Decade. In its initial activities UNICEF concentrated on helping mothers and young children; its scope now also includes adolescents up to approximately 15 years of age. In its early years UNICEF's assistance was almost exclusively in the fields of health and nutrition; now it encompasses all the needs of children and young people—education, welfare services, training for later employment and community service.

ORGANIZATION

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of UNICEF meets once a year to determine policy and consider applications for aid. Countries receiving aid match UNICEF expenditure on all projects and are responsible for their implementation.

Members: Representatives of 30 Countries.

SECRETARIAT

UNICEF is an integral part of the United Nations and personnel are members of the UN Secretariat.

Executive Director: HENRY R. LABOUISSIE (U.S.A.).

REGIONAL OFFICES

Europe and North Africa: 20 rue Pauline Borghese, Neuilly-sur-Seine, France.

Africa South of the Sahara: 26-28 Marina, 2nd Floor, Lagos, Nigeria; Amber House, Kampala, Uganda; Shell Building, Ave. Lamblin, Abidjan, Ivory Coast.

South Central Asia: 11 Jorbagh, New Delhi, India.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. Raji Nasr Building, Beirut, Lebanon.

The Americas: Avenida Providencia 329, Santiago, Chile.

East Asia: 19 Phra Atit Rd., Bangkok, Thailand.

ACTIVITIES

In 1970 UNICEF approved activities, in co-operation with the appropriate Specialized Agencies, in developing and implementing projects undertaken by 97 governments plus 28 on a regional or inter-regional basis. In the field of health, which still represents the major share of UNICEF'S activities, assistance is provided in the creation and development of maternal and child health services, including assistance in the carrying out of family planning programmes and the prevention and treatment of specific diseases (e.g. tuberculosis, malaria, leprosy, yaws and trachoma). In endeavouring to ensure that mothers, children and young people consume adequate supplies of foods essential to health growth UNICEF has assisted in the development, production and distribution of milk supplies and of other protein foods. In the field of education aid has been concentrated on teacher-training by special courses and seminars, in the extension of primary and secondary education, and in the provision of books and equipment. Vocational training is provided in association with other agencies, special emphasis being placed upon training suited to both the rural and urban needs and to opportunities. In social welfare activities training is provided for workers engaged in the care of children living in slum and shanty-town conditions, particularly where parents are absent from home during the day, and in providing facilities whereby children can receive attention, care and recreation away from such homes.

In all these and related activities UNICEF devotes well over one-third of its resources to the training of national personnel required for the implementation of assisted projects. Otherwise its main contribution consists in the provision of supplies, equipment, transport, etc.

Whilst UNICEF's programme concentrates upon long-term programmes for the achievement of its wide range of objectives it continues to provide emergency help in the relief of the suffering of children resulting from war, earthquakes, cyclones, floods and other disasters and in the rehabilitation of emergency situations: East Pakistan, Nigeria, Viet-Nam, Middle East countries and Yugoslavia are among countries where such help has recently been provided. Help has also been provided in association with the UNHCR for the children of refugees in west Bengal, Africa, Asia and the Middle East.

FINANCE

UNICEF is financed by voluntary contributions from governments, non-governmental organizations and individuals. For 1970 UNICEF'S income was $59,400,000 from the following sources:

Government contributions . . .	42,300,000
Non-governmental contributions . . .	9,600,000
Greeting card operations . . .	4,300,000
Other income . . .	3,200,000

For 1971 income is estimated at $61-64 million.

At the meeting of the Executive Board in April 1971 commitments for the succeeding two years totalled $77.4 million. The amounts allocated for supplies, equipment, etc., required for projects in the various regions (omitting the cost of staff engaged in operating such projects, the cost of freight, etc.) were:

Africa	14,133,000
Asia	30,972,000
Eastern Mediterranean	6,513,000
Europe	200,000
The Americas	9,667,000
Inter-regional	1,670,000

The sums allocated for specific types of programmes were:

ACTIVITIES

Since 1950, UNRWA has fed and provided medical services for the needy among a registered refugee population which now numbers nearly 1,500,000, including 580,000 in refugee camps. It has served 200 million meals to young children and distributed about 12,000 tons of clothing. A simple but effective community health service has been built up with technical guidance from WHO and there has never been a major epidemic among the refugees in UNRWA's care. An education system has been developed with technical advice and guidance from UNESCO and there are 232,000 children in 497 elementary and preparatory schools operated by UNRWA. UNRWA also operates eight well-equipped residential centres for training young refugee men and women as teachers or in a variety of industrial and semi-professional skills, with the result that it has become one of the most important channels for this type of technical assistance in the Middle East.

THE REFUGEES

For UNRWA's purposes, a bona fide Palestine refugee is one whose normal residence was in Palestine for a minimum of two years before the 1948 conflict and who, as a result of the hostilities, lost his home and means of livelihood. To be eligible for assistance, a refugee must reside in one of the "host" countries in which UNRWA operates, and be in need. Children and grandchildren who fulfil certain criteria are also eligible for some or all forms of UNRWA assistance. By June 30th, 1971, there were 1,468,161 refugees registered with UNRWA.

THE EFFECTS OF THE 1967 HOSTILITIES

After the renewal of Arab-Israeli hostilities in the Middle East in June 1967, hundreds of thousands of people fled from the fighting and the occupied areas. UNRWA was additionally empowered by a UN General Assembly resolution to provide "humanitarian assistance, as far as practicable, on an emergency basis and as a temporary measure" for those persons other than Palestine refugees who were newly displaced and in urgent need. In practice, UNRWA has lacked the funds to aid the other displaced persons and the main burden of supporting them has fallen on the Arab governments concerned.

* Additionally in the 1970-71 school year a total of 54,322 refugee children received education in government schools and a total of 10,259 refugee children in private schools in the host countries, partly with grants paid by UNRWA.

FINANCE

BUDGET

UNRWA's budget for 1972 is $51,117,000.

In recent years about 80 per cent of the total income has been contributed by the governments of the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Sweden and the Federal Republic of Germany, the remainder being provided by some 75 other governments, as well as by voluntary agencies and private sources.

UNRWA's average expenditure per refugee per year is just $37, or 10 cents per day.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES

UNRWA has run a deficit every year since 1963, with the exception of 1967, and despite a significant improvement in the Agency's income for 1971 as a result of extraordinary efforts to raise funds, UNRWA will have another deficit in 1971. According to UNRWA's Commissioner-General, Sir John Rennie, the further deficit expected in 1972 will far exceed the remaining working reserve. Assurances of adequate finance were required to keep the Agency in existence over the period of its mandate.

UNRWA started 1971 with a prospective deficit of $5.5 million. Response by governments and others to appeals by the Working Group on UNRWA Finances established by the UN General Assembly, by the Secretary-General of the UN, by the Director-General of UNESCO, and by the Commissioner-General reduced the deficit by mid-year to a figure of $2.4 million.

The basic financial problem is a growing school population and rising unit costs set against an income which has been increasing less rapidly and a declining working capital reserve.

UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES— UNHCR

Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11, 33 10 00, 33 20 00, 33 40 00.

The main functions of the Office of the High Commissioner, which was set up in 1950, are to provide international protection for refugees, to seek permanent solutions to their problems by assisting governments and, subject to the former's approval, private organizations to facilitate voluntary repatriation, resettlement in other countries or integration into the country of present residence, as well as to provide supplementary aid and emergency relief to refugees as may be necessary. All activities are carried out under the policy directives of the UN General Assembly or of ECOSOC on a humanitarian and non-political basis. Among legal problems, the Office is called upon to devote special attention to the question of asylum, which is of crucial importance to refugees.

The Office of the High Commissioner concerns itself, as a rule, with groups and categories of refugees which have been determined on an individual basis to come within its mandate under the Statute, and with those refugees whom it is called upon to assist under the terms of the good offices resolutions adopted by the General Assembly of the UN.

The competence of the High Commissioner extends to any person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, remains unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it. Refugees meeting these conditions are entitled to the protection of the Office of the High Commissioner irrespective of their geographical location. Refugees who are assisted by other United Nations agencies, or who have the same rights or obligations as nationals of their country of residence, are outside the mandate of UNHCR.

ORGANIZATION

HIGH COMMISSIONER

High Commissioner (1966-73): Prince SADRUDDIN AGA KHAN.

Deputy High Commissioner: CHARLES H. MACE.

The High Commissioner is elected by the United Nations General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General, and is responsible to the General Assembly and to ECOSOC.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, established by ECOSOC, gives the High Commissioner policy directives, and advice at his request in the field of international protection. It meets once a year at Geneva, and special sessions may be called to consider urgent problems. Members: representatives of thirty-one states.

ADMINISTRATION

Headquarters consists of the following divisions: High Commissioner's Cabinet (which includes the Secretariat), Legal, Africa/Asia, Americas/Europe, Public Affairs as well as Administration and Finance. In addition there are 31 representatives and 11 correspondents, honorary representatives or consultants in various countries.

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

The main objective of international protection, which is the primary function of UNHCR, is to help refugees to cease being refugees through the acquisition of the nationality of the country of residence when voluntary repatriation is not applicable, and in the meantime to safeguard their rights and interests and improve their status. UNHCR pursues these objectives through seeking to facilitate naturalization of refugees, promoting the conclusion of inter-governmental legal instruments in favour of refugees and encouraging governments to adopt legal provisions for their benefit.

The main legal instruments concerning refugees are the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, and the 1967 Protocol which extends provisions of the Convention to new groups of refugees. The application of these two instruments is supervised by UNHCR.

Other legal instruments directly or indirectly affecting the refugees include the 1954 Convention on the Status of Stateless Persons, the United Nations Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness of 1961, the 1957 Agreement relating to Refugee Seamen and the European Agreement of 1959 on the Suppression of Visas for Refugees.

Other important instruments are: the UN Declaration on Territorial Asylum, a resolution by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe also concerning asylum, and the 1969 Convention adopted by the Organization of African Unity concerning the Specific Aspects of the Problems of Refugees in Africa.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

MATERIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES

EMERGENCY RELIEF AND SUPPLEMENTARY AID

Emergency relief is provided in the case of new refugee situations when food supplies and medical aid are required on a large scale at short notice. In recent years this has been the case many times in Africa where the World Food Program has provided considerable food supplies for the refugees' subsistence pending their first harvest.

Supplementary aid is provided for the neediest refugees and may take the form of supplementary feeding, medical aid, or clothing.

VOLUNTARY REPATRIATION

The Office assists refugees wherever possible to overcome difficulties in the way of their repatriation. In cases where no funds are available for their transportation to their homeland, arrangements for payment of the cost involved may be made by UNHCR under its material assistance programmes.

RESETTLEMENT

From its inception UNHCR has been actively engaged in the promotion of resettlement through emigration, in close co-operation with interested governments, the Inter-governmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), the United States Refugee Program and voluntary agencies concerned with the resettlement of refugees. The task of UNHCR in this field is to negotiate with governments in an endeavour to obtain suitable resettlement opportunities for those refugees both able-bodied and handicapped who opt for this solution, to encourage governments to liberalize their criteria for the admission of refugees and to draw up special immigration schemes for them wherever possible.

INTEGRATION OF REFUGEES IN THEIR COUNTRY OF RESIDENCE

The object of local integration is to assist refugees to become self-supporting in their country of residence. In Europe, this is done either by granting refugees loans for establishment in agriculture, or by assisting them through vocational training or in other ways to learn a skill, or to establish themselves in gainful occupations. One major form of assistance to help refugees leave camps is to provide them with housing.

In addition there are projects for the settlement in institutions of the aged and the sick, rehabilitation projects for handicapped refugees, and counselling projects which are essential for the guidance of refugees in the choice of a solution to their problems.

In accordance with the policy whereby primary responsibility for aid to refugees falls upon their country of residence, arrangements for the provision of material assistance to refugees in various European countries are being increasingly taken over by governments, local authorities and social welfare agencies. UNHCR intervenes where it is necessary for the international community to provide additional aid.

The new groups of refugees in Africa and some of the refugees in Asia are mainly assisted through local settlement in agriculture. In Africa consolidation of the settlement of refugees is effected through close co-operation between UNHCR and other members of the UN system which provide development assistance to the areas concerned.

Educational assistance continues to be provided from UNHCR programmes as far as primary education is concerned and from the UNHCR Education Account as far as post-primary education is concerned. UNHCR continues to co-operate closely with UNESCO in this field, as also with the UN.

The increasing problem of needy individual refugees in urban areas of Africa, mainly without agricultural background, is requiring increasing attention. A Bureau for the Placement and Education of Refugees established within the Organization of African Unity in Addis Ababa, with the support of UNHCR and other members of the UN system is seeking solutions to the problems of these refugees through their resettlement in various countries in Africa.

FINANCE

The UNHCR material assistance programmes are financed from voluntary contributions made by governments and also from private sources. The target of the UNHCR programme for 1971, as revised, was $7,052,000, and that of 1972 is $7,968,900. The target for the 1972 Programme was approved by the Executive Committee at its Twenty-Second Session held on October 11th, 1971.

In addition there is a $500,000 Emergency Fund on which UNHCR can draw to meet emergency situations. Furthermore, assistance measures outside the current programme are financed from Special Trust Funds donated to or channelled through UNHCR.

ACTIVITIES, 1971-72

As of October 31st, 1971, 61 States had become parties to the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees and 47 States had acceded to the 1967 Protocol. During the twelve-month period ending October 31st, Malta ratified the Convention and Burundi, France, Luxembourg and Morocco adhered to the Protocol. In response to a questionnaire, a number of States supplied information about the manner in which they were implementing these instruments.

The Central African Republic, the People's Republic of the Congo, Togo and Senegal became parties to the Convention concerning the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa which was adopted by the Organization of African Unity in 1969.

With a view to fulfilling its obligation to provide international protection to refugees falling within its mandate, the Office continued to promote the adoption and implementation of international agreements affecting refugees, to assist in determining the status of refugees, to promote recognition of the principles of asylum and non-refoulement, to safeguard the economic and social rights of refugees, to promote the reuniting of families, to further the issuing to refugees of identity and travel documents, and to promote measures to further the acquisition by refugees of the nationalities of their countries of residence.

During 1970, some 270,000 refugees, including 230,000 in Africa, benefitted from UNHCR material assistance programmes. A total of 258,232 refugees received assistance in settling in the country in which they had taken refuge; 10,180 received aid in resettling through migration to another country; and 1,122 were helped to regain their homelands. Legal assistance was given to 3,587 refugees and supplementary aid was supplied to 25,758.

In carrying out its programmes of material assistance, the Office continued to receive the co-operation and assistance of governments, voluntary agencies, and, especially in Africa, other organizations and programmes of the UN system, including in particular WFP, UNICEF, UNDP, and the specialized agencies, ILO, FAO, WHO and UNESCO. Although the execution of the rural settlement programmes was made more difficult by drought and the arrival of new refugees in some African countries, it was in general achieved in accordance with plans.

Among allocations approved by the Executive Committee within the 1972 regular assistance programme, the largest were for the Republic of Zaire, the Central African Republic, Ethiopia, Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia. Total allocations for 1972 exceeded the target for 1971 by some $900,000. This increase was necessitated mainly by new movements of refugees into some African countries and by rising costs. Increases in the allocations in a number of countries were to some extent offset by reductions in others in which the number of needy refugees has declined.

In Africa the major effort of the UNHCR continued to be directed toward the development of projects for the settlement of refugees on the land. Assistance was also given in providing educational facilities and in promoting measures to safeguard the refugees' health. Special attention was given to measures to assist the increasing number of refugees in some of the larger African cities.

During the latter part of 1970, the Governments of Gabon, the Ivory Coast and Nigeria requested the assistance of the UNHCR in facilitating the return to Nigeria of some 5,000 children evacuated during the civil war. This operation was successfully concluded in February 1971.

In Asia, UNHCR programmes were devoted principally to the assistance of Chinese refugees in Macao, Tibetan refugees in India and Nepal as well as to groups in the Khmer Republic and Viet-Nam. In Latin America efforts were mainly directed to aiding the aged and a limited number of handicapped refugees. In Europe, where the main responsibility for assistance is borne by the local authorities, a limited number of UNHCR complementary projects were aimed at furthering the local settlement of refugees, promoting resettlement elsewhere and providing legal assistance, where such aid could not be provided from other sources.

Activities of UNHCR in its capacity as focal point for co-ordination of assistance from the United Nations to the refugees from East Pakistan in India. On April 29th, 1971, the Secretary-General of the UN, after consulting the Executive Heads of the various UN bodies, decided that the UNHCR should act as the Focal Point for co-ordination of assistance from the UN to the refugees who had crossed into India from East Pakistan beginning in March. The High Commissioner thereupon established a standing inter-agency consultation unit at Geneva whose functions are to secure international support and contributions, to arrange for the co-ordinated procurement and delivery of supplies and to maintain liaison with a Co-ordinating Committee established at New Delhi by the Indian Government. Subject to consultation with the Government of India, with members of the UN system and, where appropriate, with donors, the Focal Point makes funds available either directly to the Government of India or through UN programmes or specialized agencies which purchase food and medical supplies, vehicles, blankets, clothing and shelter material, and arranges for the delivery of these supplies to India. The High Commissioner also delegated a small staff to represent the Focal Point in India, and assigned staff to East Pakistan to assist in the voluntary repatriation of refugees.

As of November 16th, 1971, the Focal Point had received pledges totalling $161,412,986.84. Of this amount, $89,261,753.35 was pledged in cash and $72,151,233.49 in kind.

INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AGENCY—IAEA

Kaerntnerring 11, 1010 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 52 45 11.

Founded in 1957, an autonomous intergovernmental organization related to the United Nations by the terms of an Agreement which recognizes it as "the agency under the aegis of the United Nations responsible for international activities concerned with the peaceful uses of atomic energy". Its objectives are "to seek to accelerate and enlarge the contributions of atomic energy to peace, health and prosperity throughout the world" and "to ensure that assistance provided by it or at its request or under its supervision or control is not used in such a way as to further any military purpose."

MEMBERSHIP

(see Table on pages 28-30)

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Consists of representatives of all member states. It convenes each year to participate in the general debate on the Agency's policy and programme, to approve the budget and the annual report, to approve applications for membership, to elect new members to the Board of Governors and to consider all matters referred to it by the Board of Governors; and, every four years, to approve the appointment of a Director-General.

President (1971): Prof. JOSÉ M. OTERO NAVASCUES (Spain).

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Consists of 25 member states, 13 designated by the Board of Governors and 12 elected by the General Conference. It has authority to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with the Statute and subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference. It meets four or five times a year to consider matters proposed to it by member states or the Director-General. It approves and submits the draft budget and the Agency's programme to the General Conference. Every fourth year it appoints a Director-General subject to approval by the General Conference.

Board Members (1971-72): Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Ceylon, Chile, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, India, Japan, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Romania, South Africa, Syria, Thailand, U.S.S.R., U.K., U.S.A.

Chairman (1971-72): Baron C. W. VAN BOETZELAER VAN ASPEREN (Netherlands).

SECRETARIAT

Consists of approximately 348 professional staff and about 768 general service staff. It is headed by the Director-General who is responsible for the administration and implementation of the Agency's programme. He is assisted by four Deputy Directors-General and an Inspector-General. The Secretariat is divided into five departments: Technical Assistance and Publications; Technical Operations; Research and Isotopes; Safeguards and Inspection; Administration.

Director-General (reappointed 1969 for a term of four years): Dr. SIGVARD EKLUND (Sweden).

SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Committee was set up in 1958 to advise the Board of Governors and the Director-General upon scientific and technical matters. In June 1969, the following distinguished scientists were appointed for terms of three years.

Dr. M. A. EL-GUEBEILY (Egypt), Dr. BERTRAND GOLDSCHMIDT (France), Dr. W. B. LEWIS (Canada), Prof. I. MALEK (Czechoslovakia), Prof. S. MITSUI (Japan), Prof. L. CINTRA DO PRADO (Brazil), Prof. ISIDOR I. RABI (U.S.A.), Dr. HOMI N. SETHNA (India), Prof. V. I. SPITSYN (U.S.S.R.).

ACTIVITIES

Technical Assistance and Training. In 1970 the IAEA provided 272 experts, lecturers and visiting professors to 48 developing countries; awarded 640 fellowships for individual study and participation in short-term regional training projects; and supplied equipment valued at $1,270,000 to 53 countries and 10 regional projects. Twelve regional training courses, three demonstration projects, three study tour-seminars and one summer school made possible the instruction of 895 participants from 71 different countries in advanced methods and technology in the peaceful applications of nuclear energy.

Food and Agriculture. In co-operation with FAO, the Agency programme covers research on the use of radiation and radioisotopes in six fields: plant improvement by radiation mutation; eradication of destructive insects by the sterile-male technique; improvement of livestock and preparation of animal vaccines; study of effect of insecticide residues; preservation of food by irradiation; improvement of the use of nitrogen and phosphate fertilizer. Over 200 projects are carried out annually in co-ordination with member states.

Life Sciences. The programme in life sciences includes medical applications of radioisotopes, radiation, biology and dosimetry. Thirty-one countries have undertaken research on applications of radioisotopes in endocrinology, immunology or nutrition with Agency support. Research in radiation biology with Agency support is being conducted in 32 countries. The Agency has prepared a Manual on Radiation Sterilization of Medical and Biological Materials. Dosimetry, the science of measurement of radiation doses, included as one of its services a world-wide postal dose comparison with over 50 members states participating. This service assisted in improving considerably radiation therapy services. Several manuals on dosimetry were also published.

Physical Sciences. The Agency's programme in physical sciences is designed to develop or disseminate basic knowledge that may be applied to practical problems in the use of atomic energy; particularly the introduction of nuclear power into developing countries. Regular international conferences on fission physics, neutron inelastic scattering, and controlled nuclear fusion are held for this purpose. Panel meetings of experts are also frequently convened usually to obtain up-to-date information and advice on topics of special interest to the technical assistance programmes, such as: the utilization of neutron generators; pulsed neutron sources; low-energy accelerators; and the Mössbauer technique. Agency experts, in co-operation with UNESCO and FAO, have made use of isotope techniques to investigate water sources. A sub-regional co-operation plan in the Far East will study the upgrading of bagasse and other fibre boards by radiation for low-cost housing. In mining, radioisotope X-ray fluorescence makes possible on-the-spot analysis of the mineral content of ore samples. This technique is being tested in India, the Philippines and Yugoslavia.

Nuclear Power and Reactors. The Agency provides advice and assistance to member states on the technical feasibility, design, technology and economics of power reactor systems. Economic studies relating to nuclear power are made, including world energy needs and the future role of nuclear power. Assistance is given to member states in the utilization of research reactors and in the exploration and evaluation of uranium reserves. Information is collected and disseminated on power and research reactors, on operational experience with power reactors and on world resources of uranium. The Agency's role in co-ordinating research and developing and exchange of information is carried out by a number of international working groups, panels and training courses. Regional study groups have been used to stimulate reactor science and technology in developing countries. Since small and medium-sized power reactors are of particular interest to developing countries, the Agency has also carried out studies and held meetings on this subject.

Health, Safety and Waste Management. In co-operation with other international organizations, the Agency has established basic standards and recommendations relating to all aspects of radiation safety under normal and emergency conditions. Thirty-six publications concerning these standards and recommendations have been issued. IAEA regulations for the safe transport of radioactive materials by rail, road, sea and air have been adopted as legal standards by many governments and have been included in the conventions and recommendations of nearly all international organizations concerned with transport. These regulations will be revised in 1972. There has been continued emphasis on environmental pollution. In co-operation with other international organizations the first steps have been taken in the setting-up of an international register of releases of radioactive materials to any sector of the environment which may go beyond national boundaries. Work has been completed on the determination of principles for limiting introduction of radioactive wastes into the sea and studies are continuing on the behaviour of radionuclides in the marine environment. One of the major achievements in 1971 was the very successful panel meeting on the practical applications of peaceful uses of nuclear explosions for industrial purposes, which was attended by participants from 25 member states and three other international organizations. The interest generated and the progress achieved by this third panel meeting on this topic led to a preparatory meeting of experts, which recommended that a further panel meeting should be held in mid-1972 to intensify IAEA's programme.

Information and Technical Services. Twelve to fifteen large international conferences and symposia are organized each year as well as some 40 smaller panels and meetings. Papers presented at these meetings are published by the Agency and distributed for sale all over the world. The headquarters library contains approximately 30,000 books, 150,000 reports and 515 films. The International Nuclear Information System (INIS), an information-handling scheme, began operations in 1970. Employing computer techniques for storage, correlation and retrieval, INIS provides a world catalogue of technical information relating to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. When in full operation, it is estimated that approximately 85,000 pieces of new literature will be catalogued annually by INIS. The Nuclear Data Section is an international centre for neutron data basic for reactors. In co-operation with three other principal centres at Brookhaven (U.S.A.), Obninsk (U.S.S.R.) and the European Nuclear Energy Agency (ENEA) centre at Saclay (France), the world's neutron data are collected, reviewed and distributed, free of charge.

Safeguards. Emphasis has shifted from the application of safeguards to nuclear material in individual facilities to nuclear material in entire fuel cycles in terms of the Treaty for the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. The Safeguards Committee, established to advise the Agency on the content of the agreements to be concluded between parties to NPT and the Agency, completed its work in March 1971. Austria, Finland, Poland and Uruguay have concluded such agreements. In addition, the Agency is applying safeguards to all nuclear activities in Mexico under the terms of the Tlatelolco Treaty, which creates a nuclear-free Latin America. Under agreements in relation to individual facilities as well as the new agreements the Agency is now applying safeguards to nuclear materials in 11 nuclear power stations, 66 other reactors, 10 conversion/fabrication/fuel-processing plants and 85 other facilities. Attention continues to be given to safeguards research and development to meet the special needs of NPT and with a view to achieving maximum cost effectiveness with minimum interference in facility operations.

Laboratories. The IAEA operates three laboratories, one in Seibersdorf, Austria, one at the Agency's headquarters in Vienna and one in Monaco devoted to the study of marine radioactivity. The Seibersdorf and Headquarters

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

Laboratories, working jointly, provide services for many of the Agency's programmes in physics, chemistry, hydrology, nuclear medicine and agriculture. This work involves the analysis of hundreds of samples of plant material in fertilizer research, the preparation and inter-comparison of labelled compounds for use in nuclear medicine and the analysis of water samples for isotope content. An agreement between the Agency, the Government of the Principality of Monaco and the Oceanographic Institute at Monaco established the IAEA International Laboratory on the Mediterranean coast. This agreement has been extended until the end of 1974. The laboratory will concentrate on the study of health and safety aspects concerning radioactive pollution of the sea.

Centre for Theoretical Physics. One of IAEA's outstanding contributions in pure science has been the establishment, in 1964, of the International Centre for Theoretical Physics at Trieste, Italy. Generous support from the Italian Government and a number of other organizations has enabled the Centre to bring together in a working relationship scientists from both developed and developing countries. Eight Nobel laureates attended the four-week symposium held in June 1968 to review the entire field of contemporary physics. With effect from January 1st, 1970, agreement was reached between the Agency and UNESCO to operate the Trieste Centre jointly.

Supplying Fissionable Materials. The Agency is empowered by its Statute to serve as an intermediary in arranging the delivery of special fissionable materials to member states. By October 1971, 143 transfers of such material, about half of them gifts, had been made to 31 recipient countries. All material supplied was for research reactors or other research purposes. Supplier States have been Belgium, Canada, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Sweden, the U.S.S.R., U.K. and the U.S.A. The fund of special fissionable material still available to the Agency for supply to its members is almost 5,000 kilograms of uranium-235 contained in enriched uranium.

BUDGET

The Regular Budget for 1972 amounts to $16,561,000. The new target for voluntary contributions to finance the IAEA programme of technical assistance is $3.0 million.

SUMMARY OF THE STATUTE

(Adopted October 23rd, 1956)

The Agency is authorized:

1. To encourage and assist research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful uses throughout the world; and, if requested to do so, to act as an intermediary for the purposes of securing the performance of services or the supplying of materials, equipment, or facilities by one member of the Agency for another; and to perform any operation or service useful in research on, or development or practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes.
2. To make provision, in accordance with this Statute for materials services, equipment, and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes, including the production of electric power, with due consideration for the needs of the under-developed areas of the world.
3. To foster the exchange of scientific and technical information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.
4. To encourage the exchange and training of scientists and experts in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.
5. To establish and administer safeguards designed to ensure that special fissionable and other materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its supervision or control are not used in such a way as to further any military purpose; and to apply safeguards, at the request of the parties, to any bilateral or multilateral arrangement or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

6. To establish or adopt, in consultation and, where appropriate, in collaboration with the competent organs of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies concerned, standards of safety for protection of health and minimization of danger to life and property (including such standards for labour conditions), and to provide for the application of these standards to its own operations as well as to the operations making use of materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its control or supervision; and to provide for the application of these standards, at the request of the parties; to operations under any bilateral or multilateral arrangement, or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

7. To acquire or establish any facilities, plant and equipment useful in carrying out its authorised functions, whenever the facilities, plant, and equipment otherwise available to it in the area concerned are inadequate or available only on terms it deems unsatisfactory.

ORGANIZATION

General Conference. A General Conference consisting of representatives of all members shall meet in regular annual session and in such special sessions as shall be convened. The Conference may discuss any matters within the scope of this statute or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in this Statute, and may make recommendations.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

The General Conference shall:

1. Elect members of the Board of Governors.
2. Approve statutes for membership.
3. Consider the annual report of the Board.
4. Approve reports to be submitted to the United Nations.
5. Approve any agreement or agreements between the Agency and the United Nations and other organizations.
6. Approve rules and limitations regarding the exercise of borrowing powers.
7. Approve amendments to the Statute.
8. Approve the appointment of the Director-General.

Board of Governors. The Board of Governors is chosen by rules laid down in Article VI of the Statute.

The Board shall have authority to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with the Statute, subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference. It shall meet at such times as it may determine and may establish such committees as it deems advisable.

The Board shall prepare an annual report and any other reports the Agency is required to make. These shall be submitted to the General Conference.

Staff. The staff of the Agency shall be headed by a Director-General. The Director-General shall be appointed by the Board of Governors with the approval of the General Conference for a term of four years. The Director-General shall be responsible for the appointment, organization, and functioning of the staff. The staff shall include such qualified scientific and technical and other personnel as may be required to fulfil the objectives and functions of the Agency. The Agency shall be guided by the principle that its permanent staff shall be kept to a minimum.

Information and Materials. Each member should make available such information as would, in the judgment of the member, be helpful to the Agency.

Members may make available to the Agency such quantities of special fissionable materials as they deem advisable and on such terms as shall be agreed with the Agency. On request of the Agency a member shall deliver to another member or group of members such quantities of such materials as the Agency may specify. The Agency shall be responsible for storing and protecting materials in its possession. It shall ensure that these materials shall be safeguarded against hazards of the weather, unauthorised removal or diversion, damage or destruction, including sabotage, and forcible seizure. In storing special fissionable materials in its possession, the Agency shall ensure the geographical distribution of these materials in such a way as not to allow concentration of large amounts of such materials in any one country or region of the world.

Projects and Safeguards. Any member or group of members of the Agency desiring to set up any research project for peaceful purposes may request the assistance of the Agency in securing special fissionable and other materials. For the purpose of considering the request, the Agency may send into the territory of the member or group persons qualified to examine the project.

With respect to any Agency project the Agency shall have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To examine the design of specialised equipment and facilities, including nuclear reactors, and to approve it only from the viewpoint of assuring that it will not further any military purpose, that it complies with applicable health and safety standards.
2. To require the maintenance and production of operating records and progress reports.
3. To approve the means to be used for the chemical processing of irradiated materials solely to ensure that this chemical processing will not lend itself to diversion of materials for military purposes and will comply with applicable health and safety standards.
4. To send into the territory inspectors who shall have access at all times to all places and data and relevant persons.

Finance. The Board of Governors shall submit to the General Conference the annual budget estimates for the expenses of the Agency.

Expenditure shall be classified as:

1. Administrative expenses (including costs of staff and meetings and costs of implementing safeguards).
2. Expenses in connection with any materials, facilities, plant, and equipment acquired or established by the Agency.

The Board shall have the authority to exercise borrowing powers on behalf of the Agency.

Privileges and Immunities. The Agency shall enjoy in the territory of each member such legal capacity and such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the exercise of its functions.

Disputes. Any question or dispute concerning the interpretation or application of this Statute which is not settled by negotiation shall be referred to the International Court of Justice unless the parties concerned agree on another mode of settlement.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

WORLD FOOD PROGRAM—WFP

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, Rome, Italy

WFP is a joint UN-FAO effort to stimulate economic and social development through aid in the form of food and to provide emergency relief. It became operational in January 1963 after parallel resolutions of the UN General Assembly and the FAO Conference to establish it in late 1961.

ORGANIZATION

Intergovernmental Committee: 24 members, 12 elected by ECOSOC and 12 by FAO.

Joint UN-FAO Administrative Unit: carries out the day-to-day activities of the WFP.

Executive Director: FRANCISCO AQUINO.

ACTIVITIES

Member governments of the United Nations and FAO make voluntary contributions of commodities, cash, and services (particularly shipping) to WFP, which uses the food for emergency relief for victims of natural and man-made disasters and for support for economic and social development projects in the developing countries. The food is supplied, for example, as an incentive in development self-help schemes, as part wages in labour-intensive projects of many kinds, particularly in the rural economy, but also in the industrial field, and in support of institutional feeding schemes where the emphasis is mainly on enabling the beneficiaries to have an adequate and balanced diet. In some cases it is feed for livestock that is supplied, the introduction of modern feeding practices leading to increased production and thus to an improvement of the people's nutrition. Recipient governments are encouraged to take steps to replace the WFP aid as soon as each project, which may be for anything up to five years, comes to an end.

As at October 1st, 1971, 506 development projects in 84 countries had been approved since the beginning of the Programme's operations at a total cost to WFP of $1,076,440,805. Broken down by region: in Latin America and the Caribbean, 78 projects in 21 countries; in North Africa and the Near East, 113 projects in 11 countries; in West Africa, 94 projects in 22 countries; in Mediterranean Europe and East Africa, 88 projects in 17 countries; in Asia and the Far East, 133 projects in 14 countries. In addition, 144 emergency operations have been undertaken in 70 countries at a total cost to the Programme of $107,583,944.

The biggest single project ever undertaken is for the development of the dairy industry in several areas of India at a total cost to the Programme of nearly $56 million.

RESOURCES

As at October 31st, 1971, the resources made available to the Programme through voluntary contributions by governments, including pledges for the period 1969-70, stood at a total of $740,569,688; $532,077,066 were in commodities and $208,492,622 in cash and services. A further $49,130,902 worth of food grains was made available to the Programme by signatories of the Food Aid Convention. The target set by the UN and FAO for the pledging period 1971-72 amounts to $300 million. By the end of September 1971 a total of $225,710,320 had been pledged by 58 countries.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS—UNFICYP

P.O. Box 1642, Nicosia, Cyprus

Set up in March 1964 by Security Council Resolution, for a three-month period, subsequently extended to June 1972. The purpose of the Force is to keep the peace between the Greek and Turkish communities pending a resolution of outstanding issues between them.

Commander: Maj.-Gen. D. PREM CHAND (India).

Special Representative of the Secretary-General: BIBIANO F. OSORIO-TAFALL (Mexico).

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT— UNCTAD

Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11, 33 40 00, 33 20 00, 33 10 00.

Set up as an organ of the UN General Assembly by a resolution of December 1964 on the recommendation of the UN Conference on Trade and Development held March–June 1964 UNCTAD aims to promote international trade, especially with a view to accelerating economic development. It initiates action for the negotiation and adoption of multi-lateral legal instruments in the field of trade, serves as a centre for harmonizing the trade and related development policies of governments and regional economic groupings and, generally, facilitates the co-ordination of activities of other institutions within the UN system in the field of international trade and related problems of economic development and also co-operates with other inter-governmental and international non-governmental organizations concerned with problems that fall within UNCTAD's competence.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

First session, Geneva, March 23rd–June 16th, 1964.
Second session, New Delhi, February 1st–March 29th, 1968. Third session to be held in Santiago, April 13th–mid-May, 1972.

Secretary-General: MANUEL PÉREZ GUERRERO (Venezuela).

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

UNCTAD's main executive organ, the Board carries out the functions of the Conference when the latter is not in session. Members: 55 states elected by the Conference having regard to geographical distribution and continuing representation for the principal trading states; 31 members of the Board are developing countries. Early in 1971 the Board completed its tenth session, and from August 24th–September 21st held its eleventh session.

At its latest session the Board made arrangements for the third session of the Conference and prepared its work with a view to reaching the widest possible agreement in advance on the numerous issues confronting UNCTAD: commodity problems, including access to markets and pricing policy, competition from synthetics, diversification; problems of manufactures including the question of preferences, liberalization of non-tariff barriers, adjustment assistance, restrictive business practices; export promotion; the question of financial resources for development including terms and conditions of aid, debt servicing, problems of mobilization of internal resources of developing countries; development of shipping; the impact of the current international monetary situation on world trade and especially on the economy of developing countries; trade expansion and regional integration among developing countries; trade relations among countries with different economic systems; transfer of modern technology to developing countries; and technical assistance.

President (1971): HORTENCIO J. BRILLANTES (Philippines).

MAIN COMMITTEES

The Board has four main committees, a Special Committee on Preferences and an Intergovernmental Group on Transfer of Technology.

Committee on Commodities: 55 members. Chairman (1971): GEORGES HENRI JANTON (France). Sixth Session,

July 5th–16th, 1971. Adopted recommendations on diversification, on problems of marketing and distribution systems and on assistance for improving the competitive position of natural products facing competition from synthetics.

Permanent Group on Synthetics and Substitutes: 21 members. Chairman (1971): B. O. AWOKOYA (Nigeria). Fifth session, June 28th–July 3rd, 1971. Made recommendations relating to research with a view to improving the market situation of particular commodities experiencing competition from synthetics and gave guidance for international action on rubber. Also discussed problems of cotton; oilseeds, oils and fats; kenaf and allied fibres; hard fibres; mica; and shellac.

Committee of Manufacturers: 45 members. Chairman (1971): ANDREY LUKANOV (Bulgaria). Fifth session, May 3rd–14th, 1971. Discussed the problem of non-tariff barriers to trade, endorsed studies undertaken by the secretariat on the subject of restrictive business practices affecting the exports of developing countries.

Committee on Preferences: open to all interested UNCTAD members countries. Did not meet in 1971.

Committee on Invisibles and Financing related to Trade: 45 members. Chairman (1971): PAUL BLANC (France). Fifth session, December 1st–14th, 1971. Reviewed external development finance and the outflow of debt service payments, examined lending policies and methods for evaluating the economic effects of private foreign investment, studied the progress of developing countries in mobilizing their resources for development and for improving the efficiency of their use during the past five years. International monetary issues, studies of insurance legislation and supervision in developing countries and economic aspects of tourism were other topics on the Committee's agenda.

Committee on Shipping: 45 members. Chairman (1971): Y. K. QUARTEY (Ghana). Fifth session, March 22nd–April 3rd, 1971. Adopted resolutions concerning the trends of shipping problems and also studied a draft convention on the international combined transport of goods, port statistics and a code of good conduct for liner conferences.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

Intergovernmental Group on Transfer of Technology: 45 members. Chairman: LJUBOMIR SEKULIC (Yugoslavia). First session, June 14th–21st, 1971. Adopted a detailed work programme as a framework for national and international action in the field of transfer of technology to the developing countries in the coming years. UNCTAD's contribution will be integrated with the total efforts of the UN system in this field.

DEVELOPMENTS IN 1971

Other important activities in 1971, in addition to those cited above, included renewal of the International Wheat Agreement negotiated at a conference convened by UNCTAD at the request of the International Wheat

Council and with its active participation. In addition to this instrument, agreement was reached simultaneously on a new Food Aid Convention, which is of importance to an increasing number of developing countries.

BUDGET

1971: U.S. $10,072,300.

1972 (Estimate): U.S. $11,993,900.

PUBLICATIONS

The complete proceedings of UNCTAD II (New Delhi February 1st–March 29th, 1968) appear in the following five volumes:

Volume I, Report and Annexes: Background, list of resolutions, declarations and other decisions, and adoption of the report of the Conference.

Volume II, Commodity Problems and Policies: The development of an international commodity policy, liberalization of trade, recent developments and long-term trends.

Volume III, Problems and Policies of Trade in Manufactures and Semi-Manufactures: Preferences, trade liberalization, export credits, labour implications for developing countries.

Volume IV, Problems and Policies of Financing: Growth, development finance, mobilization and evaluation of resources, economic management and international monetary issues.

Volume V, Special Problems in World Trade and Development: The international division of labour and the developing countries, trade relations, trade expansion and economic integration, special preferences, needs of the least developed countries, and the world food problem.

The reports of the main UNCTAD bodies, as well as several important studies on specific problems, were published during 1971.

UNITED NATIONS RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT—UNRISD

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Established in 1964 as an autonomous UN activity to conduct research into problems and policies of social development and economic development during different phases of economic growth.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD

Supervises the activities of the Institute. Members include representatives of the Secretary-General of UN, of two of the four Specialized Agencies directly concerned (ILO, UNESCO, FAO, WHO) in rotation, and of the UN regional institutes for Asia, Latin America and Africa, as well as the Institute's Director and seven individuals nominated by the Commission for Social Development and elected by the Economic and Social Council.

Chairman: JAN TINBERGEN (Netherlands).

Members: JAN SZCZEPANSKI (Poland); GONZALO AGUIRRE BELTRÁN (Mexico); JACQUES DELORS (France); MOHAMED ENNACEUR (Tunisia); PHILIP M. HAUSER (U.S.A.); AKHTER HAMEED KHAN (Pakistan); GUNNAR KARL MYRDAL (Sweden).

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Director: D. V. McGRANAHAN (U.S.A.).

Ten research officers and assistants plus various experts and consultants.

FUNCTIONS

The Institute was created to conduct research into problems and policies of social development and relationships between various types of social development and economic development during different phases of economic growth. It was intended that the studies of the Institute should contribute to (a) the work of the United Nations Secretariat in the field of social policy, social development planning and balanced economic and social development; (b) regional planning institutes already existing or in the process of being set up under the auspices of the United Nations; (c) national institutes in the field of economic and/or social development and planning.

The Institute was set up with the active support of the Social Commission of the United Nations (now the Commission for Social Development), which had for some time been emphasizing, in reports and resolutions, the importance of taking social factors into account in development planning and of achieving a balanced and integrated economic and social development policy. Intensified research on the means of achieving that goal was felt to be desirable.

ACTIVITIES

Research is carried out under four programmes as listed below:

1. The Inter-relations between Social and Economic Development.
2. Methodology of Social Planning.
3. The Introduction of Social Change and Innovation.
4. Regional Development.

Major current projects include studies of:

A unified approach to development analysis and planning;
The social and economic implications of the "green revolution";

Preparation of the child for economic and technological modernization.

BUDGET

1971: U.S. $320,300.

1972 (Estimate): U.S. $229,580 (excluding grants allotted to specific projects).

UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING AND RESEARCH— UNITAR

801 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established 1965 as an autonomous body within the framework of the United Nations. Provides training to personnel, particularly from developing countries, for national and international service, and conducts research and study related to the functions and objectives of the United Nations.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Composed of eighteen members appointed by the UN Secretary-General to serve for two years. The UN Secretary-General and the Presidents of the General Assembly and ECOSOC, and the Executive Director of the Institute are ex-officio members. Specialized agencies are represented appropriately at meetings. The Board meets usually once a year and is responsible for determining basic policies of the Institute and for reviewing and adopting the annual budget.

Subsidiary Committees: Administrative and Financial; Research; Training.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director is appointed by the Secretary-General, after consultation with the Board, and is responsible for the overall organization, direction and administration of the Institute.

Executive Director: Chief S. O. ADEBO, C.M.G. (Nigeria).

FUNCTIONS

The purpose of the Institute is to enhance, by training and research, "the effectiveness of the United Nations in achieving the major objectives of the Organization, in particular the maintenance of peace and security and the promotion of economic and social development". Training at various levels is provided to persons, particularly from the developing countries, for assignments with the UN or the specialized agencies and for assignments in their national services which are connected with the work of the UN. The Institute also conducts research and study into problems which may concern the UN.

Training Programmes in 1972:

1. Three in-depth courses for members of Permanent Missions and Secretariat in New York. The subjects are: (a) Recent developments in the international monetary system; (b) Programming and budgeting procedures in the UN; and (c) Procedures and techniques of peaceful settlement of disputes.
2. General seminars on the structure and functioning of the U.N. system.
3. Seminars on the General Assembly for delegates to the 27th session.
4. Symposia on: (a) Role of non-governmental organizations in the UN; (b) Problems of international civil service; (c) Co-ordination of national activities at the regional and international levels; (d) Work of the UNITAR Commission on the Future.
5. Regional seminars on development.
6. Colloquium on development.
7. Training course on development.

8. Seminars on international procurement.
9. International Law Fellowship Programme.
10. Regional refresher course in international law.
11. Colloquium for senior officials.
12. UNITAR "weekends", which bring together senior diplomats, UN officials and eminent scholars for informal exchanges of views.
13. Staff College courses.

Research Programmes in 1972:

1. Functioning and procedures of UN organs and agencies:
 - (a) Relations between the UN and regional intergovernmental organizations;
 - (b) General Assembly procedures;
 - (c) Functioning of the Economic and Social Council.
2. Peaceful settlement of disputes.
3. Economic and social development:
 - (a) "Brain drain"—the international migration of professionals from developing to developed countries;
 - (b) New forms of technical co-operation in international organizations;
 - (c) Manual on technical assistance.
4. Information and communication: the UN and the news media.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

5. Implications of science and technology for international organization:
 - (a) Environmental problems: international co-operation for pollution control;
 - (b) Use and application of scientific expertise in the decision-making process of the UN system.

6. International law and human rights:
 - (a) Problems of the Law of the Sea (for Conference in Asia);
 - (b) Studies on race relations.
7. UNITAR Commission for the Future project:
"Global review of trends and developments having implications for the UN system."

FINANCE

Expenses are met from voluntary contributions made by governments, inter-governmental organizations, from foundations and other non-governmental sources.

Estimated Budget (1972): $1,627,700.

UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME—UNDP

New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established in 1965 to aid the developing countries in increasing the wealth-producing capabilities of their natural and human resources by supporting economic and social projects, with pre-investment, help and technical assistance. The UNDP came into effect in January 1966, bringing together the previous activities of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and the UN Special Fund.

ORGANIZATION

EXECUTING AGENCIES

UN	IBRD	UNCTAD
ILO	ITU	UNIDO
FAO	WMO	IDB
UNESCO	IAEA	AfDB
ICAO	UPU	AsDB
WHO	IMCO

The UNDP functions under the authority of ECOSOC and of the General Assembly.

Governing Council: 37 mems., representing both developed and developing countries; the policy-making body of the UNDP.

President (1971): HERNÁN SANTA CRUZ (Chile).

Administrator: PAUL G. HOFFMAN (U.S.A.).

Co-Administrator: C. V. NARASIMHAN (India).

Inter-Agency Consultative Board (IACB): composed of the UN Secretary-General and the Executive Heads of the Specialized Agencies and other bodies; provides guidance and advice.

ACTIVITIES

The UNDP today is the world's largest programme of multinational technical co-operation. It works in partnership with over 130 governments, representing almost three thousand million people. Voluntary contributions from almost every nation in the world provide the UNDP with its financial resources. Governments of low-income countries all over the world, together with the United Nations and 16 other international agencies, are currently carrying out UNDP-assisted activities which will cost almost $2,500 million on completion. Development work already completed has cost close to $1,500 million, more than half of it paid by the developing countries themselves.

In pursuit of its basic objective—helping the poorer nations to develop their human and natural resources more fully—the UNDP affords the international community a significant opportunity for productive co-operation. The sharing of technical knowledge, skills, personnel and facilities by participating countries is an essential part of the UNDP's day-to-day operations.

By mid-1971 almost 1,200 large-scale pre-investment projects had been undertaken by the developing countries with UNDP support, and more than 200 others were about to get under way. These projects cost an average of over $2 million each, generally take between four and five years to complete, can engage the services of a score of international experts and require a large inventory of specialized modern equipment.

UNDP-supported pre-investment projects assist the development efforts of low-income countries in one or more of four basic ways:

- (a) By uncovering, inventorying and determining the economic potential of natural resources;
- (b) By educating and training people in the knowledge and skills necessary to build and maintain modern economic and social systems;
- (c) By establishing research centres for the development and application of modern productive technologies;
- (d) By strengthening national and regional frameworks for development planning and administration.

In addition, during a typical year the UNDP supports about 2,500 smaller-scale development projects. With average yearly expenditures of some $25,000 each, these projects often employ only a single international expert, can be completed in several months, rarely require outlays for equipment, but do provide low-income countries with critically needed advisory, consultant and training services.

UNDP support for close to 500 large-scale and tens of thousands of smaller projects has now been completed and country and regional projects are currently operational in all parts of the world.

UNDP-assisted projects—large and small—annually engage the services of some 8,000 international experts, provide over 5,000 fellowships for advanced study abroad and supply almost $30 million worth of equipment. The projects help stimulate progress in virtually every economic and social sector.

UNDP Resident Representatives direct Field Offices in over 90 developing countries throughout the world. These officials, as leaders of the team of representatives of all United Nations organizations concerned, assist governments in formulating programmes of UNDP aid and in seeing that the Programme's field operations are carried out.

UNDP Headquarters in New York, with an international staff drawn from more than 60 countries, maintains a close and co-ordinated supervision of all Programme activities.

UNITED NATIONS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION— UNIDO

Lerchenfelderstrasse 1, A-1070 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 43 50

Established January 1967 to promote industrial development by encouraging the mobilization of national and international resources, and to assist in, promote and accelerate the industrialization of the developing countries, with particular emphasis on the manufacturing sector.

ORGANIZATION

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Composed of 45 members elected by the UN General Assembly from among the members of the UN or its related agencies for a term of three years. Both developed and developing countries are equitably represented. The principle functions and powers of the Board are to formulate principles and policies to achieve the purpose of the Organization, to consider and approve the programme of its activities and also to review and facilitate the co-ordination of activities within the United Nations system in the field of industrial development. The Board normally holds one session a year.

President (1971): KWAKU BAPRUI ASANTE (Ghana).

Secretary: ALMAMY SYLLA (Mali).

SECRETARIAT

Has overall responsibility for administration and research programmes and is in charge of operational programmes, including activities executed by UNIDO as a participating organization of the UNDP. The Secretariat consists of the Office of the Executive Director, the Technical Co-operation Division, three Divisions of Industrial Technology, Industrial Policies and Programming and Industrial Services and Institutions, and a Division of Administration, Conference and General Services.

Executive Director: IBRAHIM HELMI ABDEL-RAHMAN (U.A.R.).

FUNCTIONS

Operational Activities

Carrying out surveys of industrial development possibilities, formulation of industrial development plans and programmes, pre-investment and feasibility studies;

Advising at the various stages of implementation and follow-up of industrial projects;

Assistance in achieving the efficient utilization of new and existing industrial capacity, including the solution of technical and technological problems, and the improvement and control of quality, management and performance;

Assistance in developing and improving marketing and distribution techniques and the development of export-orientated industry;

Assistance in the training of technical and other appropriate categories of personnel, including such forms of training as management workshops and in-plant training;

Assistance in the dissemination of information on technological innovations and know-how, the development of systems of patents and industrial property, and the adaptation and application of existing technology to the needs of developing countries;

Assistance in promoting domestic financing and in obtaining external financing for specific industrial projects;

Assistance in establishing or strengthening institutions to deal with various aspects of industrial development, including planning and programming, project formulation and evaluation, engineering and design, training and management, applied research, standardization and quality control, marketing, small-scale industry, investment promotion and pilot plants.

Seminars, workshops and in-plant training: These are organized by UNIDO in various sectors of industry and mostly in industrialized countries for the training of personnel and the acceleration of the flow of technical know-how and skills from industrialized countries to developing countries. Participation in this activity is on a regional or interregional level and is open to all interested governments.

Studies and Research

Include, in particular, the compilation, analysis, publication and dissemination of data concerning various aspects of industrialization, such as industrial technology, investment, financing, production, management and planning.

ACTIVITIES IN 1971

Technical Assistance

As a participating and executing agency in the United Nations Development Programme, UNIDO was responsible in 1971 for the execution of 63 long-term pre-investment projects financed from the Special Fund component of UNDP. In addition UNIDO was associated in the implementation of 14 projects executed by another Agency including ILO, FAO, UNESCO and the United Nations. The total value of the 63 projects executed by UNIDO was about $113.1 million, of which $45.8 million were in UNDP allocations and $67.3 million in counterpart contributions by recipient governments. These costs cover both the services of experts engaged on the projects and the training of their counterparts as well as equipment need for the project.

The purpose of these projects which had a duration of three to five years is the establishment of industrial development and design centres, research and standards institutes, small industries and industrial estate and pilot plants in various fields of activity including metalworking, petrochemicals, fertilizers, asbestos, textiles, engineering and electrical industries.

UNIDO's participation in the Technical Assistance component of UNDP, which is devoted mainly to medium-term experts' services and fellowships, was in 1971 in the order of $3.0 million. This amount represented the cost of 260 fellowship posts and the services of 242 experts in all aspects of the manufacturing industry, development, policies and productivity, small-scale industries, promotion of export orientated industries, standardization, repair and maintenance. Experts were also attached to governmental planning, development or financial institutions active in the industrial field.

The Special Industrial Services programme provided as in previous years speedy short-term assistance in the rehabilitation of existing industries and the development of new ones, with about 380 new projects approved in 1971. In terms of expenditures on the implementation of projects financed under the Programme, these amounted in 1971 to $4.4 million.

Assistance provided under the programme was of the "trouble shooting" nature to solve technical and operational problems of manufacturing enterprises, preparation and implementation of industrial projects and practical assistance at different stages in the preparation of new projects until financing is assured, among others.

UNIDO's Regular Programme with 1971 resources of $1.5 million is utilized for short-term assistance not exceeding one year. A major part of the programme was devoted to the financing of fellowship posts for training in industrialized countries. The remainder of the funds was used in financing experts engaged on field projects as well as a number of regional advisers attached to the Regional Economic Commissions in Africa, the Americas and Asia and the UN Economic and Social Office in Beirut.

The UNIDO General Trust Fund which is supported from voluntary contributions by member states made annually at a pledging conference amounted in 1971 to $1.9 million. The Fund was utilized in supplementing UNIDO's activities under other technical assistance programmes and initiating new ones in such fields as the establishment of physical units including foundries, workshops, in-plant training and other technical meetings, industrial information and plant design and laboratory testing.

In the field of training the number of individual fellowship posts established in 1971 under all UNIDO programmes amounted to 939 posts, representing 5,300 man-months, in various fields of specialization. In addition, thirty-four programmes of group in-plant training programmes, seminars and symposia partly or wholly financed from UNDP/TA funds were organized in 1971 with 600 fellowship holders from developing countries. The majority of these programmes were in the metalworking, mechanical textiles, pulp and paper, electrical, small-scale industries, and development financing.

Special International Conference

A Special International Conference of UNIDO, which was convened by the General Assembly of the UN, was held in Vienna from June 1st-8th, 1971. The Conference was attended by representatives of 106 states as well as by a number of UN bodies. The agenda of the Conference included: (i) the long-range strategy and orientation of UNIDO's activities, including the Organization's role in the Second Development Decade and the transfer and adaptation of technology for the industrial development of the developing countries; (ii) the organizational structure of UNIDO; and (iii) the question of UNIDO's financing.

The Conference adopted a consensus resolution which recommended, in particular, the implementation of such measures as: formulating plans for industrial development mobilizing domestic and external resources for industrial development; carrying out the appropriate social and economic reforms; developing industrial co-operation among the developing countries; special consideration of the industrialization needs of the least-developed among the developing countries; creating conditions for the training of highly skilled national personnel. The resolution also recommended the appointment of a small group of high-level experts to formulate the long-range strategy for the activities of UNIDO. It further recommended that the General Assembly convene another international conference of UNIDO in 1974 or 1975 to review the progress achieved during the first part of the Development Decade. The consensus resolution also requested the Governing Council of UNDP to facilitate measures to ensure an increase in the level of UNDP funds allocated for industrial development and emphasized the importance of the Special Industrial Services programme of UNIDO, which provides emergency short-term aid to industry.

FINANCE

Administrative and Research Budget: part of the regular budget of the UN; total (1971) U.S. $12,500,000.

Operational Programmes: financed from voluntary contributions by governments, from the UNDP, and from the UN regular programme of technical assistance.

Special Industrial Services (SIS): financed from voluntary contributions, these services provide, at short notice, assistance to governments wishing to rehabilitate existing industry or develop new industrial projects.

UNITED NATIONS CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

c/o United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established by the UN General Assembly in December 1966, the Capital Development Fund was due to begin operations in January 1968.

ORGANIZATION

Owing to initial lack of financial resources, it has not yet been possible to give full effect to the institutional arrangement described below.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Composed of twenty-four representatives elected by the UN General Assembly for a term of three years from among members of the UN or its related intergovernmental agencies. There is equitable representation of developed and developing countries. The Board exercises control of the policies and operations of the Capital Development Fund and is the final authority for the approval of grants and loans submitted to it by the Managing Director. The Board meets at least once a year.

The functions of the Board will provisionally be performed by the Governing Council of UNDP.

MANAGING DIRECTOR

Chief executive officer; exercises his functions under general direction of Executive Board; has overall responsibility for the operations of the Capital Fund; submits, with his recommendations, requests for grants and loans to Executive Board. Appointed by the UN Secretary-General for a period of four years.

Managing Director: The Administrator of UNDP (pro tem.).

FUNCTIONS

Assists developing countries in the development of their economies by supplementing existing sources of capital assistance by means of grants and loans, particularly long-term loans made free of interest or at low rates of interest.

Assistance is directed towards the achievement of the accelerated and self-sustained growth of the economies of those countries and is orientated towards the diversification of their economies, with due regard to the need for industrial development as a basis for economic and social progress.

Assistance is given to a Member Government of the UN or of its related intergovernmental organizations or to a group of such States or to an authorized entity within such a State.

Assistance may be given to support general development plans or to meet general development requirements, and is not necessarily limited to specific projects.

Assistance is co-ordinated with aid from other sources. Close liaison is maintained with the Regional Economic Commissions, UNIDO, UNDP, the UN intergovernmental organizations and the regional development banks.

FINANCE

Administrative Activities: financed by the regular budget of the UN.

Operational Activities: financed by voluntary contributions, in cash or kind, from governments or other sources. The First Pledging Conference, held in October 1967, was attended by representatives of 64 countries. $1,292,267 was pledged by governments of 21 developing countries. At the Second Pledging Conference, held in November 1968, $1,315,334 was pledged by the governments of 31 countries. $821,590 was pledged by the governments of 26 countries at the Third Pledging Conference held in October 1969. At the Fourth Pledging Conference held in October 1970, the equivalent of $950,055 was pledged by the governments of 27 developing countries.

At the Fifth Pledging Conference held in November 1971 the equivalent of $832,060 was pledged by the governments of 29 developing countries.

UNITED NATIONS MIDDLE EAST MISSION—UNMEM

P.O.B. 2324, Nicosia, Cyprus

Established by the UN Security Council in November 1967 to form and maintain contacts with the States concerned in the 1967 Arab-Israeli conflict, in order to assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and acceptable settlement in the area.

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

We the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small,
and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends

to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.
Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

Article 1

The Purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion;
and

4. To be a centre for harmonizing the aspirations of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Article 2

The Organization and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles.

1. The Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members.

2. All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfil in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter.

3. All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations.

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The Organization shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

MEMBERSHIP

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the Principles contained in the present Charter may be expelled from the Organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER III

ORGANS

Article 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations; a General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Composition

Article 9

1. The General Assembly shall consist of all the Members of the United Nations.

2. Each Member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

Functions and Powers

Article 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the Members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or to both on any such questions or matters.

Article 11

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the Members or to the Security Council or to both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any Member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a state which is not a Member of the United Nations in accordance with Article 35, paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such question to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or to both: Any such question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set forth in this Article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary-General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the Members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13

1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) promoting international co-operation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) promoting international co-operation in the economic, social, cultural, educational, and health fields, and assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in paragraph 1(b) above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

Article 14

Subject to the provision of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has decided upon or taken to maintain international peace and security.

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other organs of the United Nations.

Article 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

Article 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the Organization.

2. The expenses of the Organization shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialized agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialized agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

Voting

Article 18

1. Each member of the General Assembly shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1(c) of Article 86 the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

THE UNITED NATIONS

3. Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Article 19

A Member of the United Nations which is in arrears in the payment of its financial contributions to the Organization shall have no vote in the General Assembly if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a Member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the Member.

Procedure

Article 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary-General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the Members of the United Nations.

Article 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its President for each session.

Article 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

CHAPTER V

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Composition

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 24

1. In order to ensure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII, and XII.

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Article 25

The Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the Members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments.

Voting

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Procedure

Article 28

1. The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the seat of the Organization.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the Organization as in its judgment will best facilitate its work.

Article 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

Article 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

Article 31

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate, without vote, in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that Member are specially affected.

Article 32

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state which is not a Member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate, without vote, in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it deems just for the participation of a state which is not a Member of the United Nations.

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER VI PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their disputes by such means.

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34, to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court.

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE, AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations.

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

Article 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to prove armed forces in fulfilment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces.

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement and agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional sub-committees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self-defence shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organization may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL CO-OPERATION

Article 55

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

- higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;
- solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation; and
- universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialized agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

THE UNITED NATIONS

2. Such agencies thus brought into relationship with the United Nations are hereinafter referred to as specialized agencies.

Article 58

The Organization shall make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies.

Article 59

The Organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new specialized agencies required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the functions of the Organization set forth in this Chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Composition

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

- (a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;
- (b) to develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;
- (c) to further international peace and security;
- (d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialized international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this Article; and
- (e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitations as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principles of good-neighbourliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic, and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII

INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereinafter referred to as trust territories.

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

- (a) to further international peace and security;

- (b) to promote the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development towards self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;
- (c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and
- (d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

- (a) territories now held under mandate;
- (b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and
- (c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration of amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned, including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a Member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which Members of the United Nations may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organization itself.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defence and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

Composition

Article 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations:

- (a) those Members administering trust territories;
- (b) such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and

- (c) as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

Functions and Powers

Article 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

- (a) consider reports submitted by the administering authority;
- (b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

- (c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and
- (d) take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

Voting

Article 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter.

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgement.

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV

THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97

The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary-General and such staff as the Organization may require. The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the Organization.

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organization.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the Organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the Organization.

2. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

Article 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the present Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present Charter shall prevail.

Article 104

The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII

TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the Four-Nation Declaration signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 5 of that Declaration, consult with one another and as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action, in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII

AMENDMENTS

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organization when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

AMENDMENTS

The following amendments to Articles 23, 27 and 61 of the Charter came into force in August 1965.

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect ten other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members after the increase of the membership of the Security Council from eleven to fifteen, two of the four additional members shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of twenty-seven Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, nine members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election after the increase in the membership of the Economic and Social Council from eighteen to twenty-seven members, in addition to the members elected in place of the six members whose term of office expires at the end of that year, nine additional members shall be elected. Of these nine additional members, the term of office of three members so elected shall expire at the end of one year, and of three other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

The following amendment to Paragraph 1 of Article 109 of the Charter came into force in June 1968.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any nine members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK—AfDB

B.P. 1387, Abidjan, Ivory Coast

Established September 1964 under the aegis of the UN Economic Commission for Africa, the Bank began operations in July 1966.

MEMBERS

Total Membership: 31 African countries.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Composed of one representative from each member state.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Consists of nine members; responsible for the general operations of the Bank.

President and Chairman of Board of Directors: ABDELWAHAB LABIDI (Tunisia).

Vice-Presidents: Sheikh M. A. ALAMOODY (Kenya), LOUIS NEGRE (Mali), OLA VINCENT (Nigeria).

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The initial authorized capital stock of the Bank, consisting of 250,000 shares, is equivalent to $250 million. It is to be subscribed solely by African countries. Half of the capital stock will be paid-up, the other half remains callable. Each member must subscribe equally to both paid-up shares and callable shares. The paid-up capital stock was to be paid in gold or convertible currency in six instalments over a period of five years, ending March 1969.

At December 31st, 1968, the equivalent of $217.8 million had been subscribed, of which $65.3 million had been paid in by May 31st, 1970.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Bank seeks to contribute to the economic and social development of members either individually or jointly. To this end, it aims to promote investment of public and private capital in Africa, to use its normal capital resources to make or guarantee loans and investments, and to provide technical assistance in the preparation, financing and implementation of development projects. The Bank may grant direct or indirect credits; it may operate alone or in concert with other financial institutions.

A Pre-Investment Unit has been established within the Bank. For the purpose of identification, evaluation and preparation of projects in member countries the UNDP is to provide $2.7 million and the Bank $2.2 million over a five-year period. A co-ordinating committee for the identification of multinational projects in the field of power, transport and telecommunications has been established with ECA, IBRD and UNDP under the chairmanship of the African Development Bank. The Bank has entered into an agreement of co-operation with FAO and UNESCO and it is now in the process of establishing formal working relationship and co-operation with other specialized agencies of the United Nations. It is one of the executing agencies for UNDP projects in Africa.

In order to increase its capital resources and raise money for lending at concessionary terms, the Bank has promoted the establishment of an African Development Fund; a special fund within the meaning of its Agreement. Contributions to the proposed fund are open to industrialized countries. From the contacts already made, very promising reactions have been received.

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

Together with a number of private banks, AfDB is promoting the International Financial Corporation for Investment and Development in Africa (Société internationale financière pour les investissements et le développement en Afrique—SIFIDA), registered in Luxembourg in July 1970, with a capital of $12.5 million.

Other activities of the Bank are in the field of co-operation with national finance institutions, by joint financing of projects, equity participation in national finance institutions by the Bank, joint financing and appraisal of projects and the granting of technical assistance.

The Bank is participating in a study regarding possible economic co-operation between Ghana and its neighbours, the Entente States (see chapter on Conseil de l'Entente), which would assist the promotion of trade between the six countries and also facilitate the establishment of larger industries which for their economic viability need a large market.

In association with UN, the Bank has also undertaken a survey on tourism in fourteen west African countries.

SECURITY TREATY

(Between Australia, New Zealand and the U.S.A.)

The parties to this treaty:

reaffirming their faith in the purposes and principles of the UN Charter and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and Governments, and desiring to strengthen the fabric of peace in the Pacific area;

noting that the United States already has arrangements pursuant to which its armed forces are stationed in the Philippines, and has armed forces and administrative responsibilities in the Ryukyus, and upon the coming into force of the Japanese peace treaty may also station armed forces in and about Japan to assist in the preservation of peace and security in the Japan area;

recognizing that Australia and New Zealand, as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, have military obligations outside as well as within the Pacific area; desiring to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that any of them stand alone in the Pacific area; and desiring further to co-ordinate their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security pending the development of a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific area; declare and agree as follows:

Article 1

The parties undertake, in conformity with the UN Charter, to settle by peaceful means any international disputes in which they might be involved, and to refrain in their international relations from the use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Article 2

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of the treaty, the parties will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack "by means of continuous self-help and mutual aid".

Article 3

The parties will consult together when, in the opinion of any one of them, the territorial integrity, political independence, or security of any one of them is threatened in the Pacific.

ANZUS TREATY

Article 4

"Each party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on any of the other parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety, and declares that it will act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes." Any such attack, and all measures taken as a result of such attack will be reported to the UN Security Council. Such measures will be terminated when the Security Council has taken the necessary steps to restore and maintain international peace and security.

Article 5

For the purpose of Article 4, an armed attack on any of the three countries will be deemed to include "an armed attack on the metropolitan territory of any of the parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific, or on its armed forces, public vessels, or aircraft in the Pacific".

Article 6

The treaty will not affect the rights and obligations of the three countries under the UN Charter, or the responsibility of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 7

The three countries will establish a Council, consisting of their Foreign Ministers or deputies, to consider matters concerning the implementation of the treaty. The Council will be organized as to be able to meet at any time.

Article 8

Pending the development of a more comprehensive regional security system in the Pacific, and the development by the UN of more effective means to maintain international peace and security, the Council established under Article 7 will maintain a consultative relationship with States, regional organizations, associations of States, and other authorities in the Pacific area which are in a position to further the purpose of the treaty and contribute to the security of the area.

Article 9

The Treaty is to be ratified by the parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification are to be deposited with the Australian Government.

Article 10

The Treaty is to remain in force indefinitely. Any party may cease to be a member of the Council established by Article 7 one year after notice has been given to the Government of Australia, which will inform the Governments of the other parties.

THE PACT OF THE LEAGUE OF ARAB STATES

(March 22nd, 1945)

Article 1

The League of Arab States is composed of the independent Arab States which have signed this Pact.

Any independent Arab state has the right to become a member of the League. If it desires to do so, it shall submit a request which will be deposited with the Permanent Secretariat-General and submitted to the Council at the first meeting held after submission of the request.

Article 2

The League has as its purpose the strengthening of the relations between the member states; the co-ordination of their policies in order to achieve co-operation between them and to safeguard their independence and sovereignty; and a general concern with the affairs and interests of the Arab countries. It has also as its purpose the close co-operation of the member states, with due regard to the organization and circumstances of each state, on the following matters:

- (a) Economic and financial affairs, including commercial relations, customs, currency, and questions of agriculture and industry.
- (b) Communications: this includes railways, roads, aviation, navigation, telegraphs and posts.
- (c) Cultural affairs.
- (d) Nationality, passports, visas, execution of judgments, and extradition of criminals.
- (e) Social affairs.
- (f) Health problems.

Article 3

The League shall possess a Council composed of the representatives of the member states of the League; each state shall have a single vote, irrespective of the number of its representatives.

It shall be the task of the Council to achieve the realization of the objectives of the League and to supervise the execution of agreements which the member states have concluded on the questions enumerated in the preceding article, or on any other questions.

It likewise shall be the Council's task to decide upon the means by which the League is to co-operate with the international bodies to be created in the future in order to guarantee security and peace and regulate economic and social relations.

Article 4

For each of the questions listed in Article 2 there shall be set up a special committee in which the member states of the League shall be represented. These committees shall be charged with the task of laying down the principles and extent of co-operation. Such principles shall be formulated as draft agreements, to be presented to the Council for examination preparatory to their submission to the aforesaid states.

Representatives of the other Arab countries may take part in the work of the aforesaid committees. The Council shall determine the conditions under which these representatives may be permitted to participate and the rules governing such representation.

Article 5

Any resort to force in order to resolve disputes arising between two or more member states of the League is prohibited. If there should arise among them a difference which does not concern a state's independence, sovereignty, or territorial integrity, and if the parties to the dispute have recourse to the Council for the settlement of this difference, the decision of the Council shall then be enforceable and obligatory.

In such a case, the states between whom the difference has arisen shall not participate in the deliberations and decisions of the Council.

The Council shall mediate in all differences which threaten to lead to war between two member states, or a member state and a third state, with a view to bringing about their reconciliation.

Decisions of arbitration and mediation shall be taken by majority vote.

Article 6

In case of aggression or threat of aggression by one state against a member state, the state which has been attacked or threatened with aggression may demand the immediate convocation of the Council.

The Council shall by unanimous decision determine the measures necessary to repulse the aggression. If the aggressor is a member state, his vote shall not be counted in determining unanimity.

If, as a result of the attack, the government of the State attacked finds itself unable to communicate with the Council, that state's representative in the Council shall have the right to request the convocation of the Council for the purpose indicated in the foregoing paragraph. In the event that this representative is unable to communicate with the Council, any member state of the League shall have the right to request the convocation of the Council.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Article 7

Unanimous decisions of the Council shall be binding upon all member states of the League; majority decisions shall be binding only upon those states which have accepted them.

In either case the decisions of the Council shall be enforced in each member state according to its respective basic laws.

Article 8

Each member state shall respect the systems of government established in the other member states and regard them as exclusive concerns of those states. Each shall pledge to abstain from any action calculated to change established systems of government.

Article 9

States of the League which desire to establish closer co-operation and stronger bonds than are provided by this Pact may conclude agreements to that end.

Treaties and agreements already concluded or to be concluded in the future between a member state and another state shall not be binding or restrictive upon other members.

Article 10

The permanent seat of the League of Arab States is established in Cairo. The Council may, however, assemble at any other place it may designate.

Article 11

The Council of the League shall convene in ordinary session twice a year, in March and in September. It shall convene in extraordinary session upon the request of two member states of the League whenever the need arises.

Article 12

The League shall have a permanent Secretariat-General which shall consist of a Secretary-General, Assistant Secretaries, and an appropriate number of officials.

The Council of the League shall appoint the Secretary-General by a majority of two-thirds of the states of the League. The Secretary-General, with the approval of the Council shall appoint the Assistant Secretaries and the principal officials of the League.

The Council of the League shall establish an administrative regulation for the functions of the Secretariat-General and matters relating to the Staff.

The Secretary-General shall have the rank of Ambassador and the Assistant Secretaries that of Ministers Plenipotentiary.

The first Secretary-General of the League is named in an Annex to this Pact.

Article 13

The Secretary-General shall prepare the draft of the budget of the League and shall submit it to the Council for approval before the beginning of each fiscal year.

The Council shall fix the share of the expenses to be borne by each state of the League. This share may be reconsidered if necessary.

Article 14

The members of the Council of the League as well as the members of the committees and the officials who are to be designated in the administrative regulation shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunity when engaged in the exercise of their functions.

The building occupied by the organs of the League shall be inviolable.

Article 15

The first meeting of the Council shall be convened at the invitation of the head of the Egyptian Government. Thereafter it shall be convened at the invitation of the Secretary-General.

The representatives of the member states of the League shall alternately assume the presidency of the Council at each of its ordinary sessions.

Article 16

Except in cases specifically indicated in this Pact, a majority vote of the Council shall be sufficient to make enforceable decisions on the following matters:

- (a) Matters relating to personnel.
- (b) Adoption of the budget of the League.
- (c) Establishment of the administrative regulations for the Council, the Committees, and the Secretariat-General.
- (d) Decisions to adjourn the sessions.

Article 17

Each member state of the League shall deposit with the Secretariat-General one copy of every treaty or agreement concluded or to be concluded in the future between itself and another member state of the League or a third state.

Article 18

If a member state contemplates withdrawal from the League, it shall inform the Council of its intention one year before such withdrawal is to go into effect.

The Council of the League may consider any state which fails to fulfil its obligations under this Pact as having become separated from the League, this to go into effect upon a unanimous decision of the states, not counting the state concerned.

Article 19

This Pact may be amended with the consent of two-thirds of the states belonging to the League, especially in order to make firmer and stronger ties between the member states, to create an Arab Tribunal of Arbitration, and to regulate the relations of the League with any international bodies to be created in the future to guarantee security and peace.

Final action on an amendment cannot be taken prior to the session following the session in which the motion was initiated.

If a state does not accept such an amendment it may withdraw at such time as the amendment goes into effect, without being bound by the provisions of the preceding article.

Article 20

This Pact and its Annexes shall be ratified according to the basic laws in force among the High Contracting Parties.

The instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Secretariat-General of the Council and the Pact shall become operative as regards each ratifying state fifteen days after the Secretary-General has received the instruments of ratification from four states.

This Pact has been drawn up in Cairo in the Arabic language on this 8th day of Rabi' II, thirteen hundred and sixty-four (March 22nd, 1945), in one copy which shall be deposited in the safe keeping of the Secretariat-General.

An identical copy shall be delivered to each state of the League.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Annex Regarding Palestine

Since the termination of the last great war the rule of the Ottoman Empire over the Arab countries, among them Palestine, which had become detached from that Empire, has come to an end. She has come to be autonomous, not subordinate to any other state.

The Treaty of Lausanne proclaimed that her future was to be settled by the parties concerned.

However, even though she was as yet unable to control her own affairs, the Covenant of the League (of Nations) in 1919 made provision for a regime based upon recognition of her independence.

Her international existence and independence in the legal sense cannot, therefore, be questioned, any more than could the independence of the other Arab countries.

Although the outward manifestations of this independence have remained obscured for reasons beyond her control, this should not be allowed to interfere with her participation in the work of the Council of the League.

The states signatory to the Pact of the Arab League are therefore of the opinion that, considering the special circumstances of Palestine and until that Country can effectively exercise its independence, the Council of the League should take charge of the selection of an Arab representative from Palestine to take part in its work.

Annex Regarding Co-operation with Countries which are not Members of the Council of the League

Whereas the member states of the League will have to deal in the Council as well as in the committees with matters which will benefit and affect the Arab world at large;

And whereas the Council has to take into account the aspirations of the Arab countries which are not members of the Council and has to work toward their realization;

Now therefore, it particularly behoves the states signatory to the Pact of the Arab League to enjoin the Council of the League, when considering the admission of those countries to participation in the committees referred to in the Pact, that it should do its utmost to co-operate with them, and furthermore, that it should spare no effort to learn their needs and understand their aspirations and hopes; and that it should work thenceforth for their best interests and the safeguarding of their future with all the political means at its disposal.

SUMMARY OF CHARTER OF ARAB CULTURAL UNITY

ARAB ECONOMIC UNITY AGREEMENT

The Economic Unity Agreement between the member states of the Arab League was drawn up in Cairo on June 6th, 1962, and subsequently came into effect on April 30th, 1964. The Agreement was signed in 1962 by Jordan, Kuwait, Morocco, Syria and U.A.R., in 1963 by Iraq and Yemen, and in 1968 by Sudan. It has been ratified by Kuwait (1962), U.A.R. (1963), Iraq, Jordan and Syria (1964), Yemen (1967) and Sudan (1969). The Unity Council held its first meeting in Cairo on June 3rd, 1964.

The Agreement is summarized below.

OBJECTS

Preamble

The Governments of the member-states of the Arab League, desirous of organizing between them and unifying their relations on bases accommodating to the natural and historical ties between them, and for the purpose of creating the best conditions for the growth of their economy, for promoting their riches, and for ensuring the prosperity of their peoples, have agreed on creating a complete unity between them, to be achieved gradually with the maximum possible speed ensuring the transition to the desired situation without causing harm to their essential interests.

Article 1

The main objective of the Agreement is to attain complete Arab Economic Unity. The Arab State will thus have a unified, integrated, proportionate Arab economy guided by one single economic policy for all the component parts. The member-states and their nationals are guaranteed equality in the following:

- (1) Freedom of movement of persons and capital.
- (2) Freedom of exchange of domestic and foreign goods and products.
- (3) Freedom of residence, work, employment, and exercise of economic activities.
- (4) Freedom of transport and transit and of using means of transport, ports and civil airports.
- (5) Rights of ownership, of making one's will, and of inheritance.

METHODS

Article 2

The Arab states are required to work for accomplishing the following:

(1) The Arab states should be made one customs zone subject to a single administration. Customs tariffs, legislations, and regulations applied in these states should be standardized. This is to be achieved by gradual abolition of customs duties between the Arab states for ensuring the exchange of Arab-made goods and the eventual removal of duties altogether. In addition customs duties should be adjusted between the Arab states so as to arrive at standard rates in respect of the outside world. In this way, the Arab states would be converted into one market where both home-produced and imported goods could move without being subject to any duties other than those imposed in respect of the outside world.

(2) The Arab states should work for standardizing their import-export policies and all relevant regulations. It is a prerequisite for the creation of one Arab market to have import-export policies and regulations unified and co-ordinated.

(3) Standardizing transport and transit systems. As the means of transport will enjoy freedom of movement between all parts of the Arab homeland, they should necessarily become subject to standard regulations.

(4) Trade agreements and payments agreements with outside countries are to be concluded collectively by the Arab states. The creation of one Arab market makes it necessary to have such agreements concluded jointly. Relations with the outside world will be unified.

(5) Policies related to agriculture, industry and internal trade should be co-ordinated. Economic legislation should be standardized in a manner ensuring equal terms to all nationals of the contracting countries in respect of work in agriculture, industry, or any other calling. The co-ordination of these policies and legislations is an inevitable sequence to the creation of the United Arab Market where Arab nationals are to be guaranteed the right of taking up any profession or any economic activity anywhere in the Arab world.

(6) Steps should be taken to co-ordinate labour and social legislation. In so far as Arab workers are to enjoy the freedom of working anywhere they please in the Arab homeland, it is necessary to make them all subject to one labour law and to the same social security rules.

(7) (a) Steps should be taken to co-ordinate legislation concerning government and municipal taxes and duties and all other taxes pertaining to agriculture, industry, trade, real estate, and investments in a manner ensuring equal opportunities.

(b) Measures should be taken to prevent the duplication of taxes and duties levied on the nationals of the contracting countries.

(8) The monetary and fiscal policies and all relevant regulations of the contracting countries should be co-ordinated before the standardization of currency.

(9) Standardizing the methods of the classification of statistics.

(10) All necessary measures should be taken to ensure the attainment of the goals specified in Articles 1 and 2 of the Agreement.

It is however possible to by-pass the principle of standardization in respect to certain circumstances and certain countries—this being made with the approval of the Arab Economic Unity Council.

ORGANIZATION

Articles 3-10

Article 3 provides for the establishment of a body with the name of "The Arab Economic Unity Council". This Council will have its centre in Cairo and will be composed of a full member from each of the contracting parties. Decisions are taken by a two-thirds majority. Each state has one vote.

The Council has been vested with all necessary powers for implementing the rules of the Agreement and its protocols, for running the subsidiary committees and establishments and for appointing members of staff and experts.

Branching from the Unity Council are a number of permanent and provisional committees.

The permanent committees are:

(1) The Customs Committee, whose task will be to handle customs technical and administrative affairs and transit affairs.

(2) The Monetary and Financial Committee. This Committee will undertake the handling of affairs pertaining to monetary matters, banking taxes, duties and other financial affairs. Two Sub-Committees have been formed:

(a) Sub-Committee on Financial and Taxation Affairs;

(b) Sub-Committee on Monetary Affairs.

(3) The Economic Committee. It will be the duty of this Committee to handle matters pertaining to agriculture, industry, trade, transport, communications, labour and social affairs. Five Sub-Committees have been formed:

(a) Agricultural Growth Sub-Committee; (b) Industrial Co-ordination and Mineral Wealth Development Sub-Committee; (c) Planning and Trade Co-ordination Sub-Committee; (d) Planning and Transport and Communications Co-ordination Sub-Committee; (e) Social Affairs Sub-Committee.

The Council and its subsidiaries enjoy financial and administrative autonomy. The Council will have a special budget to which the member-states will subscribe at the rate of their subscriptions to the budget of the Secretariat-General of the Arab League. The Council has been entrusted with the tasks of formulating regulations and legislations aiming at the creation of a unified Arab customs zone and at co-ordinating foreign trade policy. The conclusion of trade agreements and of payments agreements has been made subject to the approval of the Council. The Council is also entrusted with the task of co-ordinating economic growth, laying down programmes for the attainment of common economic development plans, co-ordinating policies for agriculture, industry and external trade, working out transport and transit regulations and unification of regulations on labour and social security, and harmonizing financial and monetary policies with the purpose of standardizing currency. It will also formulate all other legislation necessary for the achievement of the purposes of the Agreement.

IMPLEMENTATION

Articles 11-20, Protocols

The implementation of the Agreement is to take place in successive stages and in the shortest possible time. The Council has been required to draw up a practical plan for the stages of implementation and to define the legislative, administrative and technical measures necessary for each stage taking into consideration the appendix concerning the necessary steps for the realization of Arab Economic Unity, which is attached to the Agreement and constitutes an integral part of it. Article 15 stipulates that any two or more of the contracting parties have the right to conclude agreements for economic unity wider than that provided for under the Agreement.

The Council shall exercise its powers in accordance with resolutions which it will pass, which will be executed by the member-states in accordance with their constitutional rules.

The Governments of the contracting parties have pledged not to promulgate any laws, regulations or administrative decisions of a nature which might conflict with the Agreement or its Protocols. However, the contracting parties have been given the freedom, under the Agreement's First Protocol, to conclude bilateral economic agreements, for extraordinary political or defensive purposes, with outside parties, provided that such bilateral agreements contain nothing prejudicial to the objectives of this Agreement.

The Agreement's Second Protocol places limitations on the powers of the Arab Economic Unity Council. In the course of an initial period not exceeding five years (but which can be renewed for up to ten years) the Council is required to study the necessary steps for co-ordinating the economic, financial and social policies and for the attainment of the following objectives:

(a) The freedom of the movement of persons and the freedom of work, employment, residence, ownership, making one's will, and inheritance.

(b) Giving unrestricted and unqualified freedom to the movement of transit goods without any restrictions in respect of the type or nationality or the means of transport.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

(c) Facilitating the exchange of Arab goods and Arab products.

(d) The freedom of exercising economic activities—it should be understood that this should cause no harm to the interests of some of the contracting parties at this stage.

(e) The freedom of using ports and civil airports in a manner guaranteeing activation and development.

At its first session held in Cairo from June 3rd–6th, 1964, the Economic Unity Council decided to interpret the time periods suggested in the Second Protocol in such a manner as to speed up the accomplishment of the various phases. Thus the Council considered the five-year period proposed as a maximum limit for the completion of the necessary studies. The Council also resolved to benefit from the rule established in Article 4 of the Protocol, which provided for the following:

"Two parties or more can, if they so desire, agree on ending the introductory stage or any other stage, and move directly to comprehensive economic unity."

The Council has therefore begun by studying the practical steps to be taken for the achievement of economic unity. It was decided that the Arab Common Market project should be accomplished as quickly as possible. A Technical Committee was assigned with the study of the subject, and its detailed report was debated and approved by the Council at its second meeting on August 7th, 1964.

The resolution passed at that meeting called for exempting from customs duties all agricultural and animal products as well as natural resources and industrial goods exchanged between the members of the Arab Market. This exemption will be either complete or gradual. It was also resolved that, in the case of gradual exemption, the rate should be ten per cent in respect of industrial goods and twenty per cent for agricultural products, to be effective from the beginning of 1965.

The Arab Common Market came into operation on January 1st, 1965, with U.A.R., Iraq, Syria, Jordan and Kuwait as members. However, the Kuwait National Assembly voted against ratification of the Agreement in July 1965. The four remaining members of the Council met again in Amman in November 1965.

In mid-1966 the Economic Unity Council adopted a resolution calling for the creation of an Arab Payments Union. The purpose of the projected Union is to reduce or eliminate non-tariff restrictions, imposed by national governments for balance of payments reasons.

In May 1968 at a meeting of the Economic Unity Council it was agreed that free movement of industrial products between member states should be achieved by 1971, and tariffs on agricultural products were to be completely abolished during 1969.

AIMS

ASPAC is a consultative association of nine countries of the Asian and Pacific region, membership being open to other countries in the region. The organization aims to foster greater co-operation and solidarity among members and to assist the development of their national economies. Co-operation is envisaged in the political, economic, cultural and social fields. Ministers, in the communique released after the Third Ministerial Meeting, affirmed their determination to uphold the following principles and objectives:

1. Mutual respect for national sovereignty, political independence and territorial integrity.
2. Attainment of equality, freedom and justice for all.

3. Pursuit of peace and settlement of disputes by peaceful means and respect for the rule of law.
4. Realization of a regional community where peace, order and progress are ensured.
5. Emphasis upon the self-reliance of the Asian and Pacific peoples based on their sense of a common destiny and regional solidarity.
6. Promotion of close co-operation in economic, social and cultural fields in order to further the development of a prosperous community of Asian and Pacific nations.
7. Strengthening of collaboration with other nations and existing international and regional organizations.

ASPAC MINISTERIAL MEETINGS

The Second Ministerial Meeting, held in Bangkok, accepted as ASPAC Projects a Registry of Experts' Services (later renamed Registry of Scientific and Technical Services) based in Canberra, Australia and a Cultural and Social Centre in Seoul, Republic of Korea.

At the Third Ministerial Meeting the Registry of Experts' Services was officially opened, and an international agreement was signed establishing the ASPAC Cultural and Social Centre. The meeting considered proposals for the establishment of a Food and Fertiliser Technology Centre and an Economic Co-ordination Centre for the Asian and Pacific Region. It was agreed that a Standing Committee should examine the proposal for a non-permanent Study Group to study existing economic agencies in the area with a view to determining the field of ASPAC activities in trade and economic development.

The Fourth Ministerial Meeting established Bangkok as the seat of the Economic Co-operation Centre.

At the Fifth Ministerial Meeting economic and political developments in the Region were discussed, and hopes expressed for a settlement of outstanding problems and the continuance of economic growth. The Ministers urged the cessation of atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons in the Asian and Pacific Region which had continued despite repeated protests from ASPAC member countries. The agreement setting up the Economic Co-operation Centre was signed. The proposal for an ASPAC Maritime Co-operation Scheme was referred to the Standing Committee for detailed consideration as was the proposal for an ASPAC Youth Volunteer Programme.

ORGANIZATION

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

Composed of the Foreign Ministers of member states; first meeting held in Bangkok, Thailand, in August, 1967; second held in Djakarta, Indonesia, during August 1968; the third held in Cameron Highlands, Malaysia, in December 1969 and the fourth in Manila, Philippines, March 1971.

STANDING COMMITTEE

Meets once a month between Ministerial meetings for consultations; at present operating in Singapore.

PERMANENT COMMITTEES

Committee on Food Production and Supply including Fisheries: Djakarta, Indonesia.
Committee on Shipping: Bangkok, Thailand.
Committee on Communications and Air Traffic Services: Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.
Committee on Civil Air Transport: Singapore.
Committee on Commerce and Industry: Manila, Philippines.
Committee on Transport and Telecommunications: Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Committee on Mass Media: Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.
Committee on Finance: Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.
Committee on Tourism: Djakarta, Indonesia.

AIMS

To accelerate the economic growth, social progress and cultural development in the region through joint endeavours in the spirit of equality and partnership in order to strengthen the foundation for a prosperous and peaceful community of South-East Asian nations.

To promote regional peace and stability through abiding respect for justice and the rule of law in the relationship among countries of the region and adherence to the principles of the United Nations Charter.

To promote active collaboration and mutual assistance on matters of common interest in the economic, social, cultural, technical, scientific and administrative fields.

To provide assistance to each other in the form of training and research facilities in the educational, professional, technical and administrative spheres.

To collaborate more effectively for the greater utilization of their agriculture and industries, the expansion of their trade, including the study of the problems of international commodity trade, the improvement of their transportation and communication facilities and the raising of the living standards of their people.

To promote South-East Asian studies.

To maintain close and beneficial co-operation with existing international and regional organizations with similar aims and purposes, and explore all avenues for even closer co-operation among themselves.

PRINCIPAL PROJECTS OF ASEAN

ASEAN is to take over various projects that were operated or envisaged by ASA; the principal projects of ASA were:

Economic Co-operation and Development. The establishment of an Organization for Asian Economic Co-operation was agreed in principle and steps were taken to intensify trade among member countries by relaxing or eliminating regulations and restrictions on the free flow of trade. Efforts were also made to increase trade between the region and the rest of the world. A multilateral agreement on commerce and navigation was being prepared, and the private sector was to play a greater part in promoting economic development and developing industry.

Joint Research and Technology. Joint research programmes had been formulated and study tours organized. There was a wide exchange of technical experts and training facilities were made available for nationals of other member countries. An ASA Research Centre was to have been established in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Education. Exchanges of teachers and students and increased facilities for teaching the language, history and geography of member countries. Accreditation and equivalence of degrees were being studied to facilitate exchanges in higher education.

Transport and Tourism. The Malaysian and Thai national airlines have pooled services and it was planned that the Philippines join the pool at a later date. A project for a joint airline to operate supersonic aircraft was under discussion. The possibility of a U.S. $250 million Asian Shipping Line is being studied under a joint agreement between ASEAN countries, signed in June 1968. A minimum fleet of 600,000 d.w.t. is envisaged to maintain services to U.S.A. and Europe as well as within the region. In 1962 a through train service between Kuala Lumpur and Bangkok was inaugurated and further rail links are to be established. Visas had been abolished for officials and visa fees waived for nationals of ASA countries. Tourism was actively encouraged under ASA, and ASEAN members are jointly studying tourist promotion.

Cultural Exchanges. Tours by theatrical and dance groups, holding of art exhibitions, and exchange of radio and television programmes, films and visual aids.

ORGANIZATION

THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS OF THE ECONOMIC UNION

The Committee of Ministers consists of not less than three Ministers and generally speaking the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Trade, Economic Affairs, Agriculture, Finance and Social Affairs of the three countries. Resolutions in the Committee of Ministers must be carried unanimously, but an abstention will not be considered as a negative vote. It supervises the application of the Benelux Economic Union Treaty and ensures that the aims specified therein are pursued. To this end, the Committee of Ministers can take decisions, establish conventions, make recommendations and issue directives. The Committee may also set up Working Parties to which it may delegate certain of its powers.

THE CONSULTATIVE INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

Permanent Secretary: M. HONDEQUIN, Palais de la Nation, Brussels 1.

The Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council consists of forty-nine members, twenty-one each from the Netherlands and Belgian Parliaments and seven from Luxembourg Parliament. It was set up by a Convention which entered into force in September 1956. This Council may deliberate and communicate to the three Governments its views on problems of direct concern to the Economic Union, including cultural relations, foreign policy and the standardization of laws. The Interparliamentary Council receives an annual report, jointly established by the three Governments, on each of the above problems. These reports are published.

THE COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC UNION

Chairmen: Prof. G. BROUWERS (Netherlands), R. VAES (Belgium), A. DÜHR (Luxembourg).

The Council of Economic Union consists of three chairmen, one from each member country, and of the presidents of Committees; presidents of the Special Committees may be co-opted on to the Council when their special fields are under discussion.

The Council is responsible for ensuring the execution of the decisions of the Committee of Ministers and for making proposals to the Committee of Ministers; for co-ordinating the work of the Committees and Special Committees; for giving them directives and for transmitting their proposals to the Committee of Ministers.

COMMITTEES AND SPECIAL COMMITTEES

There are eight Committees: Foreign Economic Relations; Monetary and Financial; Industrial and Commercial; Agriculture, Food and Fisheries; Customs and Taxation; Transport; Social; Movement and Establishment of Persons.

There are nine Special Committees: Co-ordination of Statistics; Comparison of Government Budgets; Public Tenders; Public Health; Retail Trade and Handicrafts; Movement of Persons (control at external frontiers); Territorial Planning; Tourism; Administrative and Judicial Co-operation.

THE SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Secretary-General: Dr. C. D. A. Baron VAN LYNDEN.

Deputies: E. R. VAN DER AA, E. LEICK.

The Secretary-General is always of Netherlands nationality and is assisted by one Belgian and one Luxembourg Deputy Secretary-General. They are appointed by the Committee of Ministers and are directly responsible to this Committee. The Budget of the Secretariat for 1971 was 56,229,000 Belgian Francs to which Belgium and the Netherlands each contributed 48.5% and Luxembourg 3%.

JOINT SERVICES

The Committee of Ministers may establish Joint Services to improve the functioning of the Economic Union, and determine their tasks, operational layout and working methods. Up to now no joint services have been established.

THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Arbitration Tribunal is composed of six persons (two from each member country) appointed by the Committee of Ministers. Their function is to settle any disputes that may arise from the working of the Union.

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ADVISORY COUNCIL

President: A. H. M. ALBREGTS.

The Economic and Social Advisory Council consists of twenty-seven members and twenty-seven deputy members from representative economic and social organizations, each country supplying one third of the number. It may offer advice on its own initiative or prepare considered opinions when requested to do so by the Committee of Ministers.

COLLEGE D'IMPULSION

Chairman: A. DE SCHRIJVER.

Secretary: P. VAN DER MEIREN.

The Collège d'Impulsion, a body which is intended to provide an independent stimulus to the activities of the Union, was established in 1969 for one year and subsequently prolonged for the same period. It consists of six members (two from each member country) and is responsible for proposing the most appropriate measures for an integral achievement in the application of the Union Treaty.

HISTORY

During the later war years the governments-in-exile of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg began to lay plans for an economic and customs union of their countries. Their efforts crystallized in the London Monetary Agreement of October 21st, 1943. A firm exchange value was needed between the Belgian franc and the Dutch florin; the pre-war gold parity of 16.52 Belgian francs to one Dutch florin was agreed on, as well as a scheme of reciprocal credits between the two countries. There was also agreement on the need for continual consultation and for the co-ordination of such measures as each country felt compelled to take in their respective capital markets.

The London Customs Convention of September 5th, 1944, marked a further step forward. The principle was established of reciprocal tariff abolition, to lead in the first place to a "tariff community", which in its turn would be a preliminary step towards a full customs, and eventual economic union. Methods of procedure were established and three committees set up—the Administrative Customs Committee, the Administrative Foreign Trade Committee and the Committee for Trade Agreements. A tentative tariff list was drawn up, and provision made for withdrawal at one year's notice.

In the last months of the war Holland was devastated, whereas Belgium and Luxembourg emerged almost unscathed. A combination of factors brought economic prosperity to Belgium immediately after the war, and because of this discrepancy in recovery rates the envisaged Customs Convention could not be applied immediately. In March 1947 the first Hague Protocol was signed; the Customs Convention was given its final form and a General Secretariat established in Brussels. The Customs Union came into force on January 1st, 1948.

OPERATING THE UNION

A further step forward was made by the Pre-Union Agreement of October 15th, 1949. Among other provisions, three stand out as particularly important; these laid down the principles of progressive liberalization of exchange trade between the three partners, the systematic co-ordination of commercial and monetary policies with regard to other countries and the preparation of a unified system of foreign trade negotiation. In spite of these advances, Benelux ran into difficulties in the following year, 1950, largely arising from the war in Korea, to which the economies of Belgium and Luxembourg on the one hand and of the Netherlands on the other reacted sharply and differently. In the Netherlands the deficit in payments and gold reserves increased; in Belgium and Luxembourg gold reserves rose and the payments surplus grew to such a size as to be unhealthy. Wages and prices in the Netherlands were still at that period abnormally low; in the other two partners they rose.

In 1951 and 1952 the whole Benelux structure was in danger of breakdown, but was saved by the strenuous efforts of the three Governments, which were put into concrete and effective form by the important Hague Protocol of July 24th, 1953, the Commercial Protocol of December 9th, 1953, and the agreement on the liberalization of capital movements of July 8th, 1954. The Hague Protocol of July 1953 embodied agreements on the stabilization and adjustments of wages and rents in the three partners and the recognition of the principle that social legislation must be co-ordinated in order to avoid excessive differences between social charges which might adversely affect cost prices and the competitive positions of the three countries. The Commercial Protocol was complementary to this agreement. It laid down the guiding aim of maximum trade combined with maximum freedom, but emphasized the necessity of consultation in the case of export promotion, as well as joint action whenever complications arose with trade partners who refused reciprocity.

A convention providing for the free movement of labour was signed on June 7th, 1956, which was clarified and expanded by a further agreement on March 20th, 1957, while a protocol defining the procedure to be followed with regard to public tenders and government purchases was signed on July 6th, 1956, and came into force on August 29th, 1958.

By 1956, 96.5 per cent of the trade between the three partners was free, and of the remaining 3.5 per cent, 3.33 per cent was accounted for by food and agricultural products. Agriculture, as in all plans such as Benelux, had proved to be the most intransigent problem. In this sphere the Netherlands have a superior position, with a large export trade and low costs. In Belgium and Luxembourg the position is reversed, with a high import rate and high costs. Some price equalization duties are charged on Netherlands agricultural products exported to Belgium and Luxembourg. These duties are levied by the Netherlands Government, of which half are handed over to Belgium and Luxembourg for the development and improvement of their agriculture and half are retained by the Netherlands and devoted to the rationalization of their own agriculture.

SINGLE TRADING UNIT

One of the most significant dates in the evolution of Benelux is January 26th, 1956. On that date the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation announced that henceforth Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands were to be regarded as one country for all purposes of inter-European trade. In January 1955, O.E.E.C. had raised its compulsory trade liberalization requirements to 90 per cent between member countries; the Benelux Governments presented a unified single list applying to all three of them and covering 95.6 per cent of their imports from other member countries. Consequently, O.E.E.C. could now regard the three as one.

ECONOMIC UNION TREATY

The Benelux Treaty was signed in February 1958, and came into force in November 1960. By the Treaty, all trade agreements with outside countries were to be concluded by Benelux as an entity from January 1961. By November 1963, all tenders issued by national, provincial or local authorities were to be made accessible to tenders of all three countries. By November 1970, all obstacles to the free flow of goods between the three countries, including agricultural produce, were eliminated. A customs union came into force in February 1971.

The Benelux Economic Union's main aims are to raise prosperity by co-ordinating national economic policies, by pursuing a common foreign trade policy, and permitting the free movement of persons, goods, capital and services. Unlike EEC the Benelux Economic Union is not a supra-national institution. Its institutions are based on those which grew up empirically within the Benelux Customs Union.

RESULTS

Co-operation between the Benelux countries has resulted in the area becoming the first completely free labour market. Capital movement as well as services have been made almost completely free. A number of restrictions still exist as to the free movement of goods. Strenuous efforts are being made towards the abolition of these restrictions through the harmonization of national legislation, through a Convention on mutual recognition.

There is continuous co-ordination of economic, financial and social policies and the adoption and pursuit of a common policy on economic relations with third countries and on relative payments.

THE TREATY OF ECONOMIC UNION

The Treaty consists of 100 Articles and is valid in the first instance for fifty years.

I. DEFINITION OF PRINCIPLES

The main aim of the Economic Union is to raise the prosperity of the people by realizing the free mutual movement of persons, goods, services and capital, the co-ordination of national economic policy and the pursuance of a common foreign trade policy.

All nationals of the three member countries are free to move anywhere within the territory of the Union and to enjoy in the other two countries the same rights and privileges as are accorded to the nationals of those countries, with regard to freedom of movement, residence and establishment, the exercise of economic and professional activities, capital transactions, labour conditions, social provisions, dues, taxes and legal protection. Trade between the three countries is freed from all import dues and from all restrictions of a qualitative, quantitative or currency nature. This free intercourse must neither be unduly impeded by non-economic or non-financial measures, although controls and statistical inspections at frontiers will not be considered as restrictions within the meaning of the Treaty. Capital movements are also free and exchange of services are subject to the same principles as that of merchandise. Any distortion of competitive conditions are forbidden, lest they should impede the development of mutual free trade.

The three governments engage themselves to consult jointly on matters of economic policy in order to create the necessary conditions for full economic integration. Furthermore, they will also consult each other in order to determine the Union's policy at international meetings and in all matters concerned with regional economic integration or matters relating to foreign countries, in so far as these matters affect the purposes of the Union. There will also be a common policy with regard to foreign trade and payments and a common tariff in respect of import and other duties.

The Economic Union does not include a monetary union, but certain monetary rules are laid down, particularly that policy with regard to rates of exchange must be formulated by consultation. It is further provided that should the vital interests of a member country be in danger, the Committee of Ministers may deviate from the provisions of the Treaty.

2. INSTITUTIONS OF THE UNION

These are listed as the Committee of Ministers, the Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council, the Council of Economic Union, the Committees and Special Committees, the Secretariat-General, the Joint Services, the Arbitration Tribunal and the Economic and Social Consultative Council (see the section on Organization above).

3. SPECIAL PROVISIONS

This section elaborates certain principles laid down in Part I, and also de-limits certain fields in which the Committee of Ministers may take binding decisions and further provides that the principles of the Treaty shall be effected by special agreement in certain cases.

4. GENERAL PROVISIONS

The main provisions of this part are that the scope of the Treaty is limited to the territories of the member countries in Europe, though the interests of Belgian and Netherlands overseas territories should be safeguarded in foreign trade agreements; and that the Treaty should be valid for a period of fifty years, subject to tacit extension by periods of ten years, unless it is revoked by any member country on one year's notice before the end of the running period.

CARIBBEAN FREE TRADE ASSOCIATION—CARIFTA

Georgetown, Guyana

The Caribbean Free Trade Association, established by Antigua, Barbados and Guyana in January 1967, aims at a gradual reduction of customs barriers and the free interchange of labour forces within the region.

ORGANIZATION

In August 1967, technical experts met in Georgetown, Guyana, to discuss the measures required to bring about regional economic integration in the Caribbean, and the governments of Antigua, Barbados and Guyana agreed to establish a Caribbean Free Trade Area. The meeting recommended that CARIFTA should form the basis of a wider free trade area and during 1968 a further eight members were admitted. It was decided that on July 1st, 1968, all import duties and quantitative restrictions should be removed on all products trade among Caribbean member countries.

The Agreement signed in May 1968 aims at promoting trade expansion and diversification within the area, as well as encouraging the economic development of member countries. To achieve these goals, it provides for the immediate removal of all tariffs on trade among members, with the exception of certain manufactured goods included in a special Reserve List. The more-developed member countries, Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados, Guyana and Jamaica, will remove duties on imports from CARIFTA of these products over a five-year period. The Agreement also provides for incentives for the establishment of industry within the region and for agricultural development through protection from external competition. The Agricultural Marketing Protocol lists 21 commodities which may not be imported from sources outside the free trade area until all internal supplies have been exhausted.

At the meeting held in May 1968 it was also decided to establish a Caribbean Development Bank (see below).

The summit conference held in Port-of-Spain in February 1969 reaffirmed the decision to site the Bank in Barbados, in spite of Jamaica's opposition to the proposal.

Initial discussions on the establishment of a common external tariff also took place. Arrangements were made for the following studies to be carried out: rationalization of agriculture (CARIFTA Secretariat); establishment of industries on the smaller islands and regional policy of incentives (ECLA); foreign investment (University of the West Indies, Jamaica).

Belize, formerly British Honduras, was accepted for membership in June 1970. The Ministers of Education and representatives of the Universities decided on the establishment of an Examinations Council (see below) in June 1970. Also in June 1970 the Inaugural Meeting of the Statistical Co-ordinating and Advisory Committee (see below) was held. It has been decided that members will introduce the Brussels Tariff Nomenclature throughout the area with effect from January 1st, 1971.

In June 1971 Dominica, Grenada, Guyana, St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia and St. Vincent signed the Grenada Declaration with the aim of forming their territories into a new state by 1973.

Secretary-General: WILLIAM G. DEMAS.

CARIBBEAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

The Bank, inaugurated in January 1970 in Nassau, began operations early in 1970 with an equity capital of $50 million. Regional governments are to hold 60 per cent of the Bank's capital, and the remaining 40 per cent is to be provided by non-regional governments—Canada, and the United Kingdom. The regional members of the Bank include all CARIFTA member countries plus the Bahamas, British Honduras, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands and the Turks and Caicos Islands. Colombia applied to join the Bank in July 1970.

The aims of the Bank are to stimulate economic growth and development of the Caribbean region by assisting regional members in the co-ordination of their development programmes, mobilizing additional financial resources from within and outside the region, providing technical assistance, promoting public and private investment in development projects. A proposed $20 million soft-loan fund will provide resources for approved infrastructure projects.

President: Sir ARTHUR LEWIS.

STATISTICAL CO-ORDINATING AND ADVISORY COMMITTEE (SCOAC)

Committee of Commonwealth Caribbean countries established by the Sixth Conference of Heads of Government in Jamaica, April 1970. Aims to reach agreement on use by CARIFTA territories of a common classification for collecting and reporting trade statistics. The Inaugural Meeting of the Committee was held at the Caribbean Regional Secretariat in Guyana, June 1970.

CARIBBEAN EXAMINATIONS COUNCIL

At a meeting in Barbados in June 1970 CARIFTA Ministers of Education and representatives of the Universities in the region decided on the establishment of an Examinations Council for the setting, conduct and administration of examinations at secondary level for the Commonwealth Caribbean area.

FUNCTIONS

The Central American Common Market was established under the Tratado Multilateral de Libre Comercio e Integración Económica Centroamericana and the Tratado de Integración Económica Centroamericana. It visualises the eventual elimination of all tariffs and barriers between members, and the establishment of a common external tariff for the rest of the world. So far practically all internal barriers have been removed and agreement has been reached on 98 per cent of the items in the regional customs classification; uniform tariffs now apply to 87 per cent of these items and the others are to be equalized over a five-year period. Intra-regional trade has increased from $34 million in 1960 to $275 million in 1971.

It is expected that there will be a common customs administration by 1970 and further goals include a unified fiscal policy, a regional industrial policy and co-ordinated regional policies in public health, labour, education, transport and agriculture.

CENTRAL AMERICAN INTEGRATION

1952 Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua established the Central American Economic Co-operation Committee (CCE) to:

1. Establish a common market.
2. Integrate industrial development.
3. Co-ordinate their agricultural economies.

1954 Establishment of Central American Advanced School for Public Administration, San José, Costa Rica.

1956 Establishment of Central American Research Institute for Industry (ICAITI) in Guatemala City.

1958 Agreement on the Central American Agreement for Industrial Integration signed.

Multilateral treaty on Central American Free Trade and Economic Integration signed, providing free trade for products representing one-third of inter-Central American trade.

1958 Studies of problems of roads, railways, shipping, air transport, finance, weights and measures, statistical co-ordination and demography.

Panama became a member of the Central American Economic Co-operation Committee.

TREATIES, AGREEMENTS AND FUNDS

TREATIES

TRATADO MULTILATERAL DE LIBRE COMERCIO E INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in Tegucigalpa in 1958 by all members of ODECA, except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. For the equalisation of Customs duties between the members. All duties were removed from 237 groups of regionally produced commodities when the Treaty came into force and will be extended to include all regionally produced goods in the next ten years.

TRATADO DE INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in 1959 by all members of ODECA except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. In July 1962 the members signed agreements establishing uniform tariffs on more than 95 per cent of all products entering the area.

TRATADO DE ASOCIACIÓN ECONÓMICA

Signed in February 1960 by El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and came into force in April 1960. Tariffs were then removed on 95 per cent of all goods traded between the members, and most remaining tariffs had been removed by June 1966. At a later stage restrictions on the movement of capital and labour will be removed.

TRATADO DE INTERCAMBIO PREFERENCIAL Y DE LIBRE COMERCIO

Signed by Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Panama in 1961 and ratified in 1962, to speed economic integration through tariff reductions between members.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Convention on Integrated Industries: signed June 1958; provides that special monopoly status be given to an individual enterprise in each industry, to be established in one member country with a view to exporting to the rest. The operation of this convention has been limited and, to date, only two integration industries have been set up—a tyre factory in Guatemala and an insecticides plant in Nicaragua.

Special System of Promotion of Productive Industries: signed January 1963, this system uses tariff regulations to encourage projects requiring heavy investment, with the limitation that such projects must produce at least half the total of the regional demand.

Convention of Uniform Fiscal Incentives for Industrial Development: signed in July 1962, the Convention provides for a wide range of benefits to be applied to various categories of industries in Central America.

Agreement to establish the Central American Monetary Union: signed by the Governors of the Central Banks in 1964. The Monetary Union is not yet effective; it involves the alignment of foreign exchange and monetary policies, and the operation of a common currency (Central American peso at par with the U.S. dollar).

Treaty on Telecommunications: signed in April 1966 by Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and by Costa Rica in January 1967.

FUNDS

Guarantee Fund: set up 1969 by the Governors of the Central American Bank for Economic Integration. Capital of $40 million subscribed entirely by members of the Bank.

Fondo Centroamericano de Estabilización Monetaria (Central American Fund for Monetary Stabilization): agreement signed on October 1st, 1969, by Presidents of the five Central American Central Banks to provide short-term financial assistance to members facing temporary balance-of-payments difficulties. Capital to be subscribed equally by the five members: U.S. $20 million. Initial shares of $1 million each subscribed January 2nd, 1970. Additional funds will be sought from international sources. Mems.: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: R. DOERFLINGER (France).

Deputy Secretary-General: H. WATERMANN (German Federal Republic).

Chief Engineer: J. DUBOIS (Belgium).

FUNCTIONS

Navigational Security. The Commission draws up and executes rules for navigational signals and routes, for the construction and loading of boats, for minimum numbers of crew and for carrying of dangerous goods.

Customs. Customs regulations have been simplified and standardized.

Court of Appeal. A Chamber of Appeal judges for criminal and civil cases involving Rhine traffic.

Hydrology. The Commission gives navigational approval to plans of bridge and barrage construction, and assesses other hydro-technical projects.

Research. The Commission undertakes study voyages from time to time.

CONVENTION

Signed at Mayence in 1816. Revised at Mannheim in 1868 and at Strasbourg in 1963.

MAIN PROVISIONS

1. Freedom of navigation for vessels and crews of all nations without technical, fiscal, customs, professional or administrative hindrance.
2. Equality of treatment for all flags.
3. Freedom of transit for all merchandise with or without warehousing or trans-shipment.
4. All import, export and transit facilities available for other forms of transport to be accorded also to Rhine transport.
5. The claiming of special rights for a vehicle or its cargo based on the fact of navigation to be forbidden.
6. Customs formalities for direct transit to be limited to the presentation of a declaration, the closure of holds or guardianship.
7. States to be obliged to open free ports and places of loading and unloading.
8. Rules relating to vessel security, navigation police and transport police to be standardised and extended.
9. States to be obliged to maintain the waterway, to co-ordinate hydro-technical works and to eliminate all technical hindrance.
10. Special jurisdiction in the riparian states, with competence fixed by the Convention and the right of parties to have recourse either to the Central Commission or to a national court.
11. All interested parties have the right to lay complaints before the Central Commission.

CENTRAL COMMISSION FOR NAVIGATION OF THE RHINE

BUDGET

The budget is fixed annually and member states make an equal contribution.

CENTRAL TREATY ORGANIZATION

PACT OF THE CENTRAL TREATY ORGANIZATION

(February 24th, 1955)

Article 1

Consistent with Article 51 of the United Nations Charter the High Contracting Parties will co-operate for their security and defence. Such measures as they agree to take to give effect to this co-operation may form the subject of special agreement with each other.

Article 2

In order to ensure the realization and effect application of the co-operation provided for in Article 1 above, the competent authorities of the High Contracting Parties will determine the measures to be taken as soon as the present Pact enters into force. These measures will become operative as soon as they have been approved by the Governments of the High Contracting Parties.

Article 3

The High Contracting Parties undertake to refrain from any interference whatsoever in each other's internal affairs. They will settle any dispute between themselves in a peaceful way in accordance with the United Nations Charter.

Article 4

The High Contracting Parties declare that the dispositions of the present Pact are not in contradiction with any of the international obligations contracted by either of them with any third state or states. They do not derogate from, and cannot be interpreted as derogating from, the said international obligations. The High Contracting Parties undertake not to enter into any international obligation incompatible with the present Pact.

Article 5

This Pact shall be open for accession to any member state of the Arab League or any other state actively concerned with the security and peace in this region which is fully recognized by both of the High Contracting Parties. Accession shall come into force from the date of which the instrument of accession of the state concerned is deposited with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Iraq.

Any acceding State Party to the present Pact, may conclude special agreements, in accordance with Article 1, with one or more states Parties to the present Pact. The competent authority of any acceding State may determine measures in accordance with Article 2. These measures will become operative as soon as they have been approved by the Governments of the Parties concerned.

Article 6

A Permanent Council at Ministerial level will be set up to function within the framework of the purposes of this Pact when at least four Powers become parties to the Pact.

The Council will draw up its own rules of procedure.

Article 7

This Pact remains in force for a period of five years renewable for other five-year periods. Any Contracting Party may withdraw from the Pact by notifying the other parties in writing of its desire to do so, six months before the expiration of any of the above mentioned periods, in which case the Pact remains valid for the other Parties.

Article 8

This Pact shall be ratified by the Contracting Parties and ratifications shall be exchanged at Ankara as soon as possible. Thereafter it shall come into force from the date of the exchange of ratifications.

ORGANIZATION

THE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

The Consultative Committee, consisting of representatives of member governments at Ministerial level, is the senior directing body of the Colombo Plan. It meets once a year, in different countries. Reports submitted by member countries are discussed and the Committee provides the central co-ordinating body for Capital Aid and Technical Co-operation Schemes. All members take part on equal terms and the meetings are attended by representatives of the Observers (above) and the Colombo Plan Bureau as a participating body.

THE COUNCIL FOR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION IN SOUTH AND SOUTH-EAST ASIA

President: Dr. H. A. DE S. GUNASEKERA (Ceylon).

The Colombo Plan Council for Technical Co-operation, which holds sessions in Colombo several times a year is a forum for consultation on the general principles within which Technical Co-operation operates, subject to the general direction of the Consultative Committee. It serves as a co-ordinating and receiving body. It has also been charged by the Consultative Committee with the responsibilities of carrying out information activities on the Colombo Plan as a whole. It is composed of representatives of member governments, who are generally their diplomatic representatives in Colombo, but at times from representatives sent for that purpose. The executive arm of the Council is the Colombo Plan Bureau.

THE COLOMBO PLAN

THE COLOMBO PLAN BUREAU

Director: Brig.-Gen. A. B. CONNELLY (Canada).
Principal Information Officer: L. P. GOONETILLEKE (Ceylon).
Adviser on Intra-Regional Training: GREGORIO P. ESPINOSA (Philippines).
Information Officer: BYUNG HAK LEE (Republic of Korea).
Regional Adviser on Population: Dr. JOHN EDLEFSEN (U.S.A.).

The functions of the Bureau are:

1. Maintaining a record of technical assistance (experts, training places, equipment), capital assistance given and received under the Colombo Plan together with statistics on costs.
2. Preparing periodic progress reports on the scheme and on the Colombo Plan at such intervals as the Council may require.
3. Circulating among member countries general noti-

- fication of the availability of training facilities, experts and equipment within the region.
4. Promoting intra-regional training through the holding of seminars and colloquia.
 5. Stimulating increased knowledge of, and interest in, the Colombo Plan and support for its aims and objects in member countries and elsewhere through the production and issue of publications and mass media material.
 6. Encouraging the spread of information on population control.
 7. Providing assistance to host countries in the organization and administration of Consultative Committee meetings where requested; and providing assistance to co-operating countries in such other matters as may be requested.
 8. Representing the Colombo Plan at meetings where its representation is required and representing the Bureau as a participating body in the Consultative Committee Meetings of the Colombo Plan.

CO-OPERATION AND CAPITAL

FORMS OF CO-OPERATION

By the supply of experts and the provision of technical training to students from South and South-East Asia and the supply of special equipment for training and research.

From 1950 to December 1970, 72,544 trainees and students had received technical training and 14,102 experts and equipment to the value of $479.5 million had been provided.

During 1970, 7,000 students received training; 1,113 experts were sent out; value of equipment supplied was $28.5 million; total value of co-operation activities from the inception of the Plan to December 1970 was over $1,523.5 million. Only 10 per cent of this expenditure was incurred during the first ten years of the Plan, while 34 per cent was incurred during the next five years and 56 per cent during the last five years, with a peak of $200 million reached in 1968.

Of the 7,000 training places provided in 1970, the United States is the major donor country, providing 2,976 places, i.e. 43 per cent of the total. Other major donors are Japan (1,059), Australia (946) and United Kingdom (871).

Viet-Nam was the largest recipient of training and student awards during 1970 with 1,493 awards; followed by Thailand (1,002), India (787) and Indonesia (711).

Capital aid takes the form of grants and loans for national projects; commodities included foodgrains, fertilizers, consumer goods, machinery and equipment.

From 1950 to 1969 external assistance from the main group of donor countries (comprising Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, U.K., and U.S.A.) amounted to approximately $30,000 million, including technical assistance, capital aid and commodities.

The value of aid contributed in 1969 was about U.S. $2,600 million.

COLUMBIA RIVER TREATY

Provides for increased power generation and flood control in the Columbia River basin.

SIGNATORIES

Canada

U.S.A.

ORGANIZATION

Canada: Canadian Entity: c/o British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, 970 Burrard St., Vancouver 1, British Columbia; responsible for the representation of Canadian interests in the implementation of the Treaty, and for the construction and operation of the three treaty projects; Chair. Hon. RAY WILLISTON.

U.S.A.: United States Entity: c/o Bonneville Power Administration, P.O.B. 3621, Portland, Oregon 97208; responsible for U.S. interests in the operation of the treaty provisions; Chair. HENRY R. RICHMOND.

Columbia Storage Power Exchange: P.O.B. 1709, East Wenatchee, Washington; a non-profit corporation organized in 1964 to act as the single purchaser of the Canadian Entitlement to downstream power benefits of the Columbia River scheme; represents over forty bodies in the northwest U.S.A.

Joint Bodies: Permanent Engineering Board: composed of four representatives, two from each country; keeps under surveillance progress of the treaty projects; reports on any deviation from operation plans; assists, if requested, in reconciling technical or operational differences that may arise between the Entities.

International Joint Commission: differences arising under the Columbia River Treaty which Canada and the United States of America cannot solve may be referred by either to the International Joint Commission for decision. This Commission, established under a Britain-United States treaty signed January 11th, 1909, and ratified by Canada in 1911, is composed of six members (three appointed by the President of the United States and three by the Government of Canada). The Commission reports to the Secretary of State for External Affairs of Canada and to the Secretary of State of the United States.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER BASIN

The Columbia River flows 498 miles from its source in British Columbia to the Canadian-U.S. border and a further 745 miles through northwestern U.S.A. to the Pacific. With its tributaries, of which the Snake and Kootenay rivers are the largest, it drains an area of 259,000 square miles. Of this total, 85 per cent is in the U.S.A. The basin's annual discharge of 180 million acre feet and the steep descent from the Rocky mountains to sea level, combine to create the greatest hydro-electric potential in North America. Eleven main stream dams have been built on the United States section of river, six by federal and five by non-federal U.S. agencies. Until the commencement of the Columbia Treaty projects no dams had been built on the Canadian section. The extreme seasonal variations of the flow had, therefore, consistently caused flooding during the period of maximum flow in late spring and early summer and a shortage of power during the period of minimum flow in autumn and winter. The Treaty provides for the construction of three storage dams in British Columbia to eliminate this flooding and improve the flow of the river, enabling the eleven downstream dams in the U.S.A. to produce an additional capacity of 2.8 million kilowatts as well as protecting life and property from annual flooding. The additional installed generating capacity of the Columbia basin within Canada after development will amount to 5 million kilowatts.

In 1944, the Governments of Canada and the U.S.A. requested the International Joint Commission to determine whether the development of the water resources of the Columbia River basin would be practical and advantageous to both countries. The International Joint Commission established the International Columbia River Engineering Board to undertake these investigations, and the Board submitted its report in 1959 indicating suitable sites for the construction of storage reservoirs. Also in 1959, the Commission submitted a special report recommending the principles for calculation and apportionment of benefits that would result from the co-operative development of the basin. During 1960 and 1961 direct negotiations were conducted between the Governments of Canada and the U.S.A. concerning the selection, construction and co-operative use of specific projects. These negotiations led to the signing of the Treaty in January 1961. Canada concluded agreements in 1963 and 1964 with British Columbia (the owner of the Canadian water resources) on the respective responsibilities of each government in the development of the Columbia River. International negotiations continued until January 1964, when Canada and the U.S.A. approved an important protocol, which clarified the 1961 Treaty and in addition confirmed the sale for thirty years of the Canadian Entitlement to downstream power benefits.

COLUMBIA RIVER TREATY

PROJECTS

Three storage reservoirs to be built and operated in Canada:

Duncan: on Duncan River; completed July 31st, 1967; Storage 1.4 million acre feet.

Arrow: on Columbia River; completed October 1968; Storage 7.1 million acre feet.

Mica: on Columbia River; to be completed by April 1st, 1973; Storage 12 million acre feet; ultimate generating capacity 2.6 million kilowatts; generating plants will also be built downstream from Mica at Downie, Revelstoke and Murphy, with a combined capacity of 1.9 million kilowatts.

The U.S.A. has exercised the option to build and operate one storage reservoir:

Libby: on Kootenai River; to be completed by 1974; Storage 5 million acre feet; Capacity 840,000 kilowatts.

FINANCE

The three Canadian dams are financed by revenue from the U.S.A., derived as follows:

Canadian Entitlement Purchase: Canada sold, for a period of thirty years from the completion of each project, her half-share of the additional downstream power produced by the treaty projects. The sum of $253.9 million in U.S. funds received from the sale was transferred by Canada to the Government of British Columbia to be used for constructing the three dams.

Flood Control Benefits: As the storage reservoirs come into operation, U.S.A. will pay Canada a total of $64.4 million in U.S. funds for flood control benefits, and additional amounts if further flood control is required. By October 1968, $63.2 million had been paid on account of Duncan and Arrow projects.

COLUMBIA RIVER TREATY

Signed January 1961 and ratified September 1964.

ARTICLE I. Interpretation: technical terminology.

ARTICLE II. Development by Canada: 15.5 million acre feet of storage to be provided by Canada.

ARTICLE III. Development by the United States of America Respecting Power.

ARTICLE IV. Operation by Canada: Canada to operate storage for sixty years, and to operate additional storage when requested.

ARTICLE V. Entitlement to Downstream Power Benefits: Canada entitled to half these benefits.

ARTICLE VI. Payment for Flood Control.

ARTICLES VII, VIII, IX. Downstream Power Benefits: Determination, Disposal, Variation.

ARTICLE X. East-West Standby Transmission: Canadian costs.

ARTICLE XI. Use of Improved Stream Flow.

ARTICLE XII. Kootenai River Development: U.S.A. given option to build Libby Dam; each country to retain benefits accruing from this dam.

ARTICLE XIII. Diversions: limitation of diversion of waters that alters the flow within the Columbia River basin at the U.S.-Canadian border.

ARTICLE XIV. Arrangements for Implementation: U.S.A. and Canada each to designate entities to formulate and carry out the operating arrangements.

ARTICLE XV. Permanent Engineering Board.

ARTICLE XVI. Settlement of Differences: differences to be referred to the International Joint Commission, and after three months to a tribunal of three members; decisions of either body to be definitive and binding.

ARTICLE XVII. Restoration of Pre-Treaty Legal Status: upon termination of the Treaty, the Boundary Waters Treaty, 1909, shall apply to the Columbia River basin.

ARTICLE XVIII. Liability for Damage.

ARTICLE XIX. Period of Treaty: Treaty to remain in force at least sixty years.

ARTICLE XX. Ratification.

ARTICLE XXI. Registration with the United Nations.

PROTOCOLS

Signed January 1964.

Modify and clarify technical provisions and contain terms of the sale of Canada's entitlement to downstream power benefits.

HISTORY

The idea of the Commonwealth as a voluntary association of sovereign states developed during the First World War. The development of self-government in the original British Dominions resulted in the recognition at the Imperial War Conference of 1917 of the Dominions as "autonomous nations of an Imperial Commonwealth". The Dominions and India were represented individually at the Versailles Peace Conference and at the League of Nations, but it was not until 1926, at the Imperial Conference, that a formal statement of the nature of the Commonwealth relationship was made. Known as the "Balfour formula", after Lord Balfour, chairman of the Conference, the statement described member nations as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as Members of the British Commonwealth of Nations". This principle was legally formulated in the Statute of Westminster of 1931, which gave effect to this fully independent status of the Dominions in relation to Great Britain and, by implication, in relation to each other.

India and Pakistan became full members of the Commonwealth when India gained independence in 1947. Ceylon joined on independence the following year. The other colonial possessions became Commonwealth members as they regained their independence during the 1950s and 1960s. Cyprus joined in March 1961, six months after independence.

In 1949 India became a republic but the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' meeting of 1949 agreed to her continued membership on the basis of her recognition of the King as the symbol of the free association of the independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth. Other countries later followed this precedent, either at independence or subsequently; and other countries with traditional monarchs also became Commonwealth members.

The following countries did not join the Commonwealth on becoming independent: Burma (1947), Eire (1949), Sudan (1956), British Somaliland (in 1960, when it formed the Somali Republic together with the former UN Trust Territory of Italian Somaliland), Southern Cameroons (in 1961, when it joined the French Cameroons to form the Federal Republic of Cameroon), the Maldive Islands (1963, on ceasing to become a protected state) and the South Arabian Federation (Aden), which became the People's Republic of South Yemen in 1967. The Union of South Africa became a republic in May 1961 and ceased to be a member of the Commonwealth after the Prime Ministers' Meeting of March 1961 at which there was strong opposition to South Africa's racial policies.

On November 11th, 1965, the Government of Rhodesia unilaterally declared the country independent of the British Crown. The Queen, acting through her representative, the Governor, dismissed the Government of Rhodesia and the British Parliament passed the Southern Rhodesia Act which declares that the country continues to be a part of Her Majesty's dominions and that the Government and Parliament of the United Kingdom continue to have responsibility and jurisdiction for and in respect of it. The Southern Rhodesia Constitution Order (1965) declares that any constitution which the illegal regime may purport to promulgate is void and of no effect. However, in November 1971 the British Government and the Rhodesian régime agreed to a settlement of the dispute, based on a modified version of the régime's 1969 constitution. The settlement is subject to it being acceptable to the Rhodesian people as a whole in the opinion of a commission headed by Lord Pearce. The commission began its work in Rhodesia in January 1972.

In 1967, the islands of Antigua, St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, Dominica, St. Lucia and Grenada achieved the status of Associated States within the Commonwealth. After rebellion in 1969, Anguilla was in 1971 allowed to revert to Crown Colony status, separate from St. Christopher-Nevis.

On November 29th, 1968, Nauru (area 8½ sq. miles; population 6,056) became a "special" member of the Commonwealth.

Pakistan left the Commonwealth on January 30th, 1972, because of impending British recognition of Bangladesh. Following British recognition on February 4th, 1972, Bangladesh applied for membership of the Commonwealth. A decision on this will be reached after the Commonwealth Secretary-General has established a consensus of views of the other members.

THE COMMONWEALTH

DECLARATION OF COMMONWEALTH PRINCIPLES

Agreed by the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting at Singapore, January 22nd, 1971.

The Commonwealth of Nations is a voluntary association of independent sovereign states, each responsible for its own policies, consulting and co-operating in the common interests of their peoples and in the promotion of international understanding and world peace.

Members of the Commonwealth come from territories in the six continents and five oceans, include peoples of different races, languages and religions, and display every stage of economic development from poor developing nations to wealthy industrialized nations. They encompass a rich variety of cultures, traditions and institutions.

Membership of the Commonwealth is compatible with the freedom of member-governments to be non-aligned or to belong to any other grouping, association or alliance. Within this diversity all members of the Commonwealth hold certain principles in common. It is by pursuing these principles that the Commonwealth can continue to influence international society for the benefit of mankind.

We believe that international peace and order are essential to the security and prosperity of mankind; we therefore support the United Nations and seek to strengthen its influence for peace in the world, and its efforts to remove the causes of tension between nations.

We believe in the liberty of the individual, in equal rights for all citizens regardless of race, colour, creed or political belief, and in their inalienable right to participate by means of free and democratic political processes in framing the society in which they live. We therefore strive to promote in each of our countries those representative institutions and guarantees for personal freedom under the law that are our common heritage.

We recognize racial prejudice as a dangerous sickness threatening the healthy development of the human race and racial discrimination as an unmitigated evil of society. Each of us will vigorously combat this evil within our own nation.

No country will afford to regimes which practice racial discrimination assistance which in its own judgment directly contributes to the pursuit or consolidation of this evil policy. We oppose all forms of colonial domination and racial oppression and are committed to the principles of human dignity and equality.

We will therefore use all our efforts to foster human equality and dignity everywhere, and to further the principles of self-determination and non-racialism.

We believe that the wide disparities in wealth now existing between different sections of mankind are too great to be tolerated. They also create world tensions. Our aim is their progressive removal. We therefore seek to use our efforts to overcome poverty, ignorance and disease, in raising standards of life and achieving a more equitable international society.

To this end our aim is to achieve the freest possible flow of international trade on terms fair and equitable to all, taking into account the special requirements of the developing countries, and to encourage the flow of adequate resources, including governmental and private resources, to the developing countries, bearing in mind the importance of doing this in a true spirit of partnership and of establishing for this purpose in the developing countries conditions which are conducive to sustained investment and growth.

We believe that international co-operation is essential to remove the causes of war, promote tolerance, combat injustice, and secure development among the peoples of the world. We are convinced that the Commonwealth is one of the most fruitful associations for these purposes.

In pursuing these principles the members of the Commonwealth believe that they can provide a constructive example of the multi-national approach which is vital to peace and progress in the modern world. The association is based on consultation, discussion and co-operation.

In rejecting coercion as an instrument of policy they recognize that the security of each member state from external aggression is a matter of concern to all members. It provides many channels for continuing exchanges of knowledge and views on professional, cultural, economic, legal and political issues among member states.

These relationships we intend to foster and extend, for we believe that our multi-national association can expand human understanding and understanding among nations, assist in the elimination of discrimination based on differences of race, colour or creed, maintain and strengthen personal liberty, contribute to the enrichment of life for all, and provide a powerful influence for peace among nations.

Australia's external territories are: Ashmore and Cartier Islands; Australian Antarctic Territory; Christmas Island; Cocos (Keeling) Islands; Heard Island and MacDonalld Islands; Macquarie Island; Norfolk Island; and Papua and New Guinea.

New Zealand's island territories are: Niue Island; and Tokelau Islands. Cook Islands form an associated state with New Zealand. The Ross Dependency is also under New Zealand jurisdiction.

ORGANIZATION

The Commonwealth has no written constitution. The relationship between its members is to some extent defined by legislation, notably the Statute of Westminster, but for the most part rests on agreed constitutional conventions. The Commonwealth is not a federation, for there is no central government, nor are there any rigid contractual obligations such as bind the members of the United Nations. Membership is granted only by consent of all the members and the right of secession is implicit.

The citizens of the states of India, Ghana, Cyprus, Tanzania, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, The Gambia, Uganda, Zambia, Kenya, Singapore, Malawi, Botswana, Guyana and Fiji, which are Republics with a President as Head of State, do not owe allegiance to the Crown, but accept the Queen as Head of the Commonwealth. Malaysia, Lesotho, Swaziland, Tonga and Western Samoa have their own monarchs but also recognize the Queen as Head of the Commonwealth.

If the Rhodesian settlement is accepted by the Rhodesian people, Rhodesia will also become a republic, but its position in relation to the Commonwealth will still have to be settled.

The other member countries of the Commonwealth owing allegiance to the Crown are administered by their own governments, in the name of the Crown, and the Queen is represented by Governors-General appointed by her on the advice of the Ministers of the country concerned. The Governor-General acts in accordance with the constitutional practice obtaining in the country to which he is appointed in regard to the exercise of the powers of the Crown, and is wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom. In all essential respects, he holds the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs in the country to which he is appointed as the Queen holds in the United Kingdom.

The islands of Antigua, St. Christopher-Nevis, Dominica, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and Grenada are Associated States within the Commonwealth. The Queen remains the Head of State in these territories, represented in each country. There is a British Commissioner for the region to represent British interests. Britain retains responsibility for defence and foreign relations, but each territory is wholly responsible for internal affairs, can amend its own constitution, and both Britain and the Associated States can terminate the association unilaterally.

On November 29th, 1968, Nauru became a "special" member of the Commonwealth. This means that Nauru, which became independent on January 31st, 1968, will have the right to participate in all functional activities of the Commonwealth but will not be represented at Meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government. It may attend meetings at ministerial and official level in such fields as education, medical co-operation, finance, etc.

Independent member countries of the Commonwealth make their own laws, decide their own policies, negotiate and sign their own treaties, decide for themselves the issues of peace and war, and maintain their own diplomatic representation in foreign countries, who in turn accredit representatives separately and independently. Governments of member countries are represented in other Commonwealth countries by High Commissioners who have a status equivalent to that of Ambassadors.

The Commonwealth is bound by a complex system of consultation and co-operation in political, economic, educational, scientific and cultural fields, operating through a multitude of Commonwealth organizations, through continuous personal contacts, and through the periodic Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Meetings. It had no formal institutional expression until the establishment in 1965 of a Commonwealth Secretariat to foster closer and more informed understanding between their governments.

Succeeded the Colonial Conferences 1887-1907 and the Imperial Conferences 1911-37.

1944 May	First Meeting of new series of Commonwealth Conferences. United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa represented. India and Southern Rhodesia attended some sessions.	Singapore and Uganda attended some sessions.)
1946 April-May	Second Meeting.	1964 July Kenya, Malawi and Uganda represented.
1948 October	Ceylon, India and Pakistan represented.	1965 June Malta, Zambia and Gambia represented. Commonwealth Secretariat established. Discussions on Rhodesia.
1949 April	Decision to continue India's membership as a Republic recognizing the Sovereign as Head of the Commonwealth.	1966 January Lagos meeting on Rhodesia. Nineteen countries represented. Two special committees established: one on sanctions against Rhodesia and the special needs of Zambia, the other on the training of Rhodesian Africans.
1951 January	Fifth Meeting.	1966 September Guyana represented. Special statement issued defining Commonwealth attitude to Rhodesia.
1953 June	Sixth Meeting (following the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II).	1969 January Barbados, Mauritius, Lesotho, Botswana and Swaziland represented.
1955 January-February	Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland represented.	1971 January Singapore is host to first full-scale meeting held outside London. Name of meetings changed to Heads of Government Meetings. Tonga, Western Samoa and Fiji represented.
1956 June-July	Eighth Meeting.
1957 June-July	Ghana represented.
1960 May	Federation of Malaysia represented.
1961 March	Cyprus and Nigeria represented. Discussion of South Africa's position in a multi-racial Commonwealth. South Africa withdrew from membership.
1962 September	Jamaica, Sierra Leone, Tanganyika and Trinidad and Tobago represented. Discussion of United Kingdom's application to join the European Economic Community. (Barbados, British Guiana, Hong Kong, Kenya, Malta, Mauritius,

Meetings are private and informal. A communiqué is issued, but decisions are not normally taken except in matters of immediate constitutional importance, such as membership. All meetings, except that held in January 1966 in Lagos devoted to the topic of Rhodesia, have taken place in London. The 1971 meeting, however, departed from this tradition, being held in Singapore.

COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT

Marlborough House, Pall Mall, London, S.W.1.

The Secretariat, established by Commonwealth Heads of Government at their meeting in London in July 1965, operates as an international organization at the service of all Commonwealth countries. It promotes consultation and disseminates information on matters of common concern to member governments. It services the meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government, Ministers and officials, and assists appropriate agencies in the fostering of Commonwealth links.

The scope and diversity of the Secretariat's work are indicated by its seven Divisions: (1) Development, Aid and Planning, (2) Education, (3) Establishment and Finance, (4) General Economic, Trade and Commodities, (5) Information, (6) International Affairs, and (7) Legal. There are also senior Scientific and Medical Advisers, and the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation, established in 1971, provides multilateral assistance for economic and social development.

The cost of the Secretariat is borne by Commonwealth Governments in agreed shares based on the UN formula. A Finance Committee composed of Commonwealth High Commissioners and a representative of the British Government recommend a budget for 1971-72 of £690,937.

The Secretariat is staffed from member countries and the Secretary-General is appointed by the Prime Ministers for a period of five years.

Secretary-General: ARNOLD C. SMITH (Canada).

Deputy Secretaries-General: A. HUSAIN (India), HUNTER WADE.

Assistant Secretary-General (Education): Dr. Y. K. LULE.

The following organizations are administered by the Commonwealth Secretariat:

Commonwealth Secretariat Education Division: Marlborough House, Pall Mall, London, S.W.1; formerly the Commonwealth Education Liaison Unit which was integrated into the Commonwealth Secretariat in April 1967; the Unit was formed in 1960 on the recommendation of the First Commonwealth Education Conference, July 1959, to assist the Commonwealth Education Liaison Committee in the task of matching educational needs and educational resources in Commonwealth countries; Assistant Sec.-Gen. for Education Dr. Y. K. LULE; Dir. J. MARAJ.

Commonwealth Secretariat Commodities Division: 10 Carlton House Terrace, London, S.W.1; formerly known as the Commonwealth Economic Committee; f. 1925 as the Imperial Economic Committee, became official body in 1933 to provide economic and statistical services on subjects affecting Commonwealth production and trade, until it was integrated into the Commonwealth Secretariat in 1966; Dir. D. K. SRINIVASACHAR; publs. Commodity Series (annual), Intelligence Service Series (quarterly and monthly).

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE

Marlborough House came into use as a Commonwealth centre in 1962, to serve as a centre for Commonwealth meetings in London. In addition to the Secretariat, it houses offices for Prime Ministers and their accompanying delegations and staffs, the Commonwealth Foundation and an Information Centre.

COMMONWEALTH CO-OPERATION

ECONOMIC AND TRADE CO-OPERATION

Since 1959 official economic co-operation has been co-ordinated in the Commonwealth Economic Consultative Council. The Council generally meets at the level of Finance Ministers each year before the meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. In 1966 there was also a meeting of the Council at the level of Commonwealth Trade Ministers, at which it was decided to instruct the Commonwealth Secretariat to explore the feasibility of a Commonwealth Market Development Fund to assist developing member countries in the technique of export promotion. A conference was accordingly held in Nairobi in May 1967 on co-operation in planning, Commonwealth assistance and trade promotion.

A Commonwealth conference on the problems facing the tourist industry in member countries was held in Valletta in November 1967.

COMMONWEALTH PREFERENCE

Commonwealth Preference is a system of tariff preferences operating among Commonwealth states and territories (except Rhodesia), South Africa, South West Africa (Namibia), Burma and the Republic of Ireland. Members accord a preferential tariff rate on imports from the Commonwealth, which is lower than both Most Favoured Nation and general rates of duty. The system is not, however, necessarily reciprocal. For example, Commonwealth countries in Africa enjoy tariff preferences on their exports to Britain, but few of them accord preferences to British goods.

The present system dates from the Imperial Economic Conference, Ottawa, 1932. Under the 1947 UN General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), existing imperial preferences were retained but no new ones were permitted.

THE COMMONWEALTH

Commonwealth Preferences have been considerably eroded, but they remain an important trade factor. Commonwealth countries have raised protective tariffs against other Commonwealth goods, while retaining a margin of preference over imports from outside the Commonwealth in the interests of national development. World-wide cuts in tariffs have reduced the margin of preference afforded by the Commonwealth Preference System. As a result, intra-Commonwealth exchanges have declined as a share of the total trade of Commonwealth countries from two-fifths in the mid-1950s to a third a decade later. In 1954 the Commonwealth took 48 per cent of British exports, but by 1970 the proportion had fallen to 21 per cent. Meanwhile, British exports to the EEC have increased, exceeding exports to the Commonwealth for the first time in 1970.

THE COMMONWEALTH AND THE EEC

Britain's prospective membership of the EEC will entail the gradual ending of Commonwealth Preference as Britain participates in the EEC's Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) and applies the Community's Common External Tariff (CET) against non-EEC countries. The developing countries of the Commonwealth have, therefore, been offered preferential arrangements with the whole of the enlarged Community. Special arrangements have additionally been made for exports of sugar from the developing Commonwealth and dairy produce from New Zealand.

Developing Commonwealth countries in Africa, the Caribbean, and the Indian and Pacific Oceans have been offered one of three relationships with the enlarged EEC, effective from 1975 (in the interim period the status quo is to be maintained):

1. Association similar to that at present in operation between the EEC and 18 Francophone African states under the Yaoundé Convention (see EEC chapter), offering reciprocal trade preferences except for certain African agricultural exports, aid from the Community and certain joint institutions. The Yaoundé Convention is due for renewal in 1975, and negotiations on the new terms start in 1973. Commonwealth countries are expected to participate alongside the present Yaoundé associates in these negotiations. (Mauritius has applied for immediate association with the Community under the present Convention).

2. Association with reciprocal rights and obligations, particularly in the field of trade, along the lines of the Arusha Agreement between the EEC and Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda (see EEC chapter).

3. A simple trading agreement.

For the Asian Commonwealth countries and the developed Commonwealth countries, Commonwealth preferences will be phased out as the British tariff is aligned with the Common External Tariff of the EEC. This is to take place in five stages between April 1973 and July 1977. For a number of important Commonwealth raw material exports, such as newsprint, wood pulp, plywood and alumina, Britain has negotiated exemptions or reductions in the Community tariff so as to preserve access for exporters in the developed Commonwealth. For many other raw materials and primary products the CET is low or zero, for example for wool and tea. The Asian Commonwealth countries are included in the EEC's Generalized Preference Scheme, which grants to developing countries duty-free quotas for their manufactures and semi-manufactures.

Malta already has an association agreement with the Six, offering preferential trading arrangements but not aid; Cyprus is currently negotiating a similar agreement.

British dependencies (with the exception of Gibraltar and Hong Kong) and the West Indies Associated States will become eligible for association under the terms of the 1957 Treaty of Rome. These arrangements, essentially similar to the terms of the Yaoundé Convention, will not apply until the renegotiated Yaoundé Convention comes into force. The status quo will be maintained until at least January 31st, 1975.

Gibraltar: Under Article 227 the provisions of the Treaty of Rome apply to European territories for whose external relations an EEC member is responsible. Despite coming within this category, Gibraltar will be excluded from the Customs area of the Community, and neither the Common Agricultural Policy nor the prospective Community Value Added Tax (VAT) will be applied there.

Hong Kong will be included within the Community's Generalized Preference Scheme.

New Zealand has been guaranteed access for at least 80 per cent of present sales of butter to Britain, and at least 20 per cent of present sales of cheese, at the average 1969-72 prices, by the end of the first five years of British membership of the EEC. During the third year the Community will review the situation for butter and decide on suitable measures for ensuring beyond 1977 the continuation of special arrangements for New Zealand butter. The Community has undertaken to make every effort to promote the conclusion of an international agreement on dairy products, and to pursue a trade policy which will not frustrate New Zealand's efforts to diversify her economy.

COMMONWEALTH SUGAR AGREEMENT

An Agreement was concluded in 1951 between the British Government and Commonwealth sugar industries and exporters, providing for a U.K. commitment to buy specified quantities of sugar at prices negotiated as being reasonably remunerative to efficient producers, and for the orderly marketing in the U.K., New Zealand and Canada of supplies in excess of the negotiated price quotas from the exporting countries.

Exporting countries at present adhering to the Agreement, which has been extended to the end of 1974, are Australia, British Honduras, East Africa, Fiji, India, Mauritius, Swaziland and the West Indies and Guyana. (The Rhodesian quota has been placed in suspense until the return of constitutional rule).

In May 1971 Britain and the EEC reached agreement on the question of access of sugar from the developing Commonwealth countries into the market of the enlarged Community. The EEC, in addition to offering association to the sugar-dependent countries of the Commonwealth, has given a pledge to have as its firm purpose the safeguarding of the interests of countries depending to a considerable degree on the export of a single commodity, especially sugar. When the present Commonwealth Sugar Agreement expires in 1974, provisions on Commonwealth sugar to the enlarged Community will feature in the new arrangements scheduled to come into effect from 1975.

The developing Commonwealth countries and Britain at a meeting in June 1971 expressed themselves satisfied that the Community's offer represents "a firm assurance of a secure and continuing market in the enlarged Community on fair terms for the quantities of sugar covered by the Commonwealth Sugar Agreement", and the Commonwealth participants stated that they would "continue to plan their future on this basis".

ECONOMIC AID

Intra-Commonwealth aid programmes in operation include the Special Commonwealth African Assistance Plan (SCAAP), Commonwealth Education Co-operation, Overseas Service Aid and similar schemes, the Colonial Development and Welfare programmes, Australian South Pacific Technical Assistance Programme and the Australian International Awards Scheme. The Commonwealth is associated with non-Commonwealth countries in the Colombo Plan, Caribbean Technical Assistance, Indus Basin Development Fund, British Council, the economic sector of SEATO and the Indian General Scholarship Scheme. In addition there are a number of other programmes related to specific countries. The flow of official aid in the Commonwealth in 1966 amounted to £226.1 million.

Official financial aid and technical assistance from the United Kingdom to developing countries of the Commonwealth is made through the following agencies:

Overseas Development Administration: Eland House, Stag Place, London, S.W.1.

Commonwealth Development Corporation—CDC: 33 Hill Street, London, W1A 3AR.

Established by Act of Parliament in 1948 as the Colonial Development Corporation to assist the economic development of dependent territories of the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth Development Act of 1963 changed the name of the Corporation to the Commonwealth Development Corporation and restored its full powers of operation in the Commonwealth countries which had regained independence since 1948. Under the Overseas Resources Development Act, 1969, the CDC can, with ministerial approval, operate in any developing country outside the United Kingdom.

The CDC assists, with or without the association of others, projects in all sectors of economic development. The CDC's long-term borrowing is limited to £225 million, though this can be raised by Order to £260 million, and its borrowing from the United Kingdom Exchequer is limited to £205 million, with provision for an increase by Order to £240 million.

By mid-1971 the CDC had 206 projects in Africa, the Caribbean, and East Asia and the Pacific Islands, with an estimated commitment of some £184 million. Nearly half of this covered developments in transport, power, water and housing. While loans for infrastructural developments continue, CDC investment increasingly operates in association with the people of the country concerned, e.g. in smallholder schemes and local industrial development companies. Chairman: Lord HOWICK OF GLENDALE, G.C.M.G., K.C.V.O.

Commonwealth Development Finance Company Ltd.—CDFC: 1 Union Court, Old Broad Street, London,

EC2N 1EA, England. Established 1953, as a private enterprise institution, to provide financial assistance on a commercial basis for sound industrial development in Commonwealth countries. In 1969 policy modified so as to place major emphasis on providing equity capital, and territorial scope widened to include countries outside the Commonwealth, but where such operations would serve British or Commonwealth interests. Chairman: Sir GEORGE BOLTON, K.C.M.G.; Man. Dir. B. BERKOFF.

COMMONWEALTH FUND FOR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

The Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation came into existence on April 1st, 1971. This followed the conference in Singapore in January, at which Heads of Government welcomed the fact that the way was open for the Fund to be established.

A Commonwealth Programme for Technical Co-operation had been in operation for the previous three years, financed largely on a bilateral basis by developed Commonwealth members. Under the new Fund, the Programme has become truly multilateral with contributions from twenty-six members, both developed and developing. The new arrangements represent a move towards partnership and away from the distinction between "donors" and "recipients".

Under the original Programme a small headquarters staff of experts have undertaken technical assistance assignments in almost all Commonwealth low-income countries. The new financial and administrative arrangements make it easier to tap the pool of expertise available in developing countries for service in other developing countries, and also make it possible for the first time to utilise training opportunities in the educational institutions of developing countries for the benefit of those from other low-income member states.

Contributions to the Fund are on a voluntary basis.

Overall direction comes from a Board of Representatives, comprising one representative from each participating government. An eleven-man Committee of Management, appointed by the Board, supervises the general operations of the Fund. The Commonwealth Secretary-General is Chairman of this Committee.

The Fund is designed to provide technical assistance for economic and social development in fields ranging from evaluation of development projects and manpower planning to public administration and tourism.

In September 1971, at a meeting in the Bahamas, the Board of Representatives decided that the Fund's scope should be expanded to include export market development. Initial emphasis will be on technical assistance and market research. But further expansion into other assistance fields will be considered in the light of experience gained and the extent of the resources available. A Fund project covering education and training activities was also approved at the Bahamas meeting, and this is expected to provide not only additional scholarships and in-service training, but also to expand the pool of available training resources in Commonwealth countries.

The enlarged Fund is expected to operate at the rate of some £2 million a year.

LAW

English Common Law forms the basis of most of the judicial systems of the Commonwealth. Exceptions are the Canadian province of Quebec and the Island of Mauritius, where French law is the basis; Ceylon and Rhodesia, where Roman-Dutch law is the basis; and the Moslem countries of South Asia and Africa, where the legal code is in part based on Moslem civil law. There is a right of appeal to the Privy Council from some countries, including Australia and New Zealand.

There have been three Commonwealth and Empire Law Conferences, in London. (1955), in Ottawa (1960), in Sydney (1965). At the 1965 Conference, major discussion centred on the possibility of establishing a Commonwealth Court of Appeal, to which all members of the Commonwealth, without exception, would have recourse.

At a meeting of Law Ministers of 20 Commonwealth countries in May 1966, agreement was reached on new laws to govern the extradition of fugitive offenders. At present, the Imperial Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, lays down that political asylum may not be granted by an independent member of the Commonwealth to a citizen of another independent member. This Act has been applied in the United Kingdom in the cases of Chief Enahoro (Nigeria) in 1963, and of Kwesi Armah (Ghana) in 1966.

ORGANIZATION

THE COUNCIL

President: HAMANI DIORI (Niger).

The Council consists of the Heads of State and the President and Vice-President of the Legislative Assemblies of each member country, and the Ministers responsible for negotiations between the states. It is an executive body and members who fail to implement the decisions of the Council may be brought before a Court of Arbitration.

The Council meets twice a year, the place rotating annually between the capitals of the member states. The Head of State of the host country acts as President. Extraordinary meetings may be held at the request of two or more members.

COMMISSIONS

Commissions on Foreign Affairs, Justice, Labour, Public Administration, Public Works and Telecommunications, Posts and Telecommunications and on Epidemics and Epizootics have been set up.

Secretary-General: Mlle MAURICETTE LANDEROIN.
B.P. 1878, Abidjan, Ivory Coast.

CONSEIL DE L'ENTENTE

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT

There is complete freedom of trade and a unified system of external tariffs and fiscal schedules. A single system of administration for ports and harbours, railways and road traffic and a unified quarantine organization will be set up.

FONDS DE GARANTIE

Central Guarantee Fund originally conceived as the Fonds de solidarité to support development projects, transformed in June 1966 into a mutual aid and loan guaranty fund designed to encourage outside lenders to finance development projects in member countries. Total to be provided annually by member states equals 650 million francs CFA, of which 500 million will be contributed by Ivory Coast, 42 million each by Niger, Upper Volta and Dahomey, and 24 million by Togo.

FUNCTIONS

In August 1960 it was agreed that there should be:

1. An identical constitutional and electoral procedure in each State. Elections are to be held at the same time.
2. Each State shall have an identical organization of its Armed Forces.
3. Identical administrative organization.
4. Identical taxation and tariff policies.
5. Common Bank of Amortization.
6. A common Diplomatic Corps.

Commissions have been set up to study how these measures may be implemented.

AGREEMENTS WITH FRANCE

In April 1961 the member states signed agreements with France, covering defence, economic affairs, judicial matters, higher education, cultural relations, civil aviation and postal and telecommunications. Upper Volta did not sign the defence agreement.

CMEA TRADE

Foreign trade is one of the most important forms of economic co-operation between member states of CMEA. Trade between member states was planned by yearly agreements until 1951 and thereafter by long-term bilateral and multilateral trade agreements linked to the development plans of the member countries. In 1956 the Permanent Commission for Foreign Trade was set up. Trade between member countries comprises more than 60 per cent of their total foreign trade which is wholly conducted through state monopolies. Member countries engage in trade with socialist non-members on the basis of long-term agreements. Accordingly a long-term trade agreement was drawn up with Yugoslavia for the years 1966-70 with the result that the volume of trade between member countries and Yugoslavia doubled in this period compared with the period 1961-65.

BULGARIA

(Five-Year Plan 1961-65*)

At the end of the Second World War agriculture dominated the Bulgarian economy, whereas now heavy and light industry have a sizeable share. Industries showing the greatest development are: chemicals and engineering, ferrous metals, building, machine tools, fuel, power and cellulose.

Industrial production rose by 74 per cent between 1960 and 1965, and in the period 1960-69 by 267 per cent. Bulgaria receives considerable economic aid from the U.S.S.R.

* Subsequently extended to 1980 as Twenty-Year Plan.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The Fourth Five-Year Plan aims to strike a balance between industry and agriculture; power and chemical industries are to be developed, machinery building modernized and consumer services improved.

Czech industrial effort is concentrated on engineering and building products, fuel, power and metallurgy, as it has been for several years past. Industrial production rose by 43 per cent between 1958 and 1962.

Czechoslovakia trades with over 25 countries on a substantial scale, but over a third of her trade is with the Soviet Union.

GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC

(Long-Term Plan 1966-70)

The Long-Term Plan predicts considerable growth in the national economy. In comparison with 1965, the national income is growing in 1970 by 28-32 per cent, and industrial production by 37-40 per cent. The main reason for this is an increase in labour productivity; in industry as a whole this is increasing by 40-45 per cent, in the building industry by 35-40 per cent, and in agriculture by 30-35 per cent. The Plan predicts the growth of capital investment by 48-52 per cent.

In recent years, productivity and efficiency have improved in industry as a result of measures taken to improve the structure of the economy. Increased productivity has been particularly marked in the electro-technical industry, in instrument-making, chemicals, machine building, transport development, and in metallurgy. It is in these spheres that the greatest structural changes in the utilization of products have taken place.

The turnover of export trade has been considerable and totals between 33 and 35,000 million marks in 1970.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

HUNGARY

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The third Five-Year Plan 1966-70 envisages an increased rate of development over the second Plan. The average rate of growth of national income in the period 1961-65 was 4.5 per cent, in the period 1966-70 it was almost 6 per cent. In engineering a rise of 40-45 per cent in the output of the industry as a whole and 50-55 per cent in engineering exports is aimed for. Particular emphasis is to be placed on transport equipment manufacturing, which should double, telecommunications engineering, instruments and machine tools; in 1965 these four branches produced 46.8 per cent of Hungary's engineering exports, but it is hoped to increase their share to 65 per cent by 1970. Development will be stressed in the foundry and forging industries.

There is a general trend for international co-operation in production, with component imports coming mainly from socialist countries.

MONGOLIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The fourth Five-Year Plan 1966-70 lays ever-increasing emphasis on industry, and the strengthening of the industrial-technical foundations of agriculture. Great emphasis is placed on the speed with which the fuel and power industries are developing. At the same time there are plans to improve the increasing network of social facilities. Great help is being provided in these problems by the member countries of CMEA.

POLAND

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The Five-Year Plan 1966-70 aims to increase industrial production by more than 40 per cent by 1970, and to increase the flow of foodstuffs and consumer goods.

Emphasis is being placed on raising the standard of living, modernizing the country's economic structure, developing production capacity and securing employment for young people.

The Plan envisages further expansion of foreign trade with socialist countries, but together with this, expansion of trade with non-socialist countries is necessary. Trade with the Soviet Union is likely to expand; some 70 per cent of Polish engineering products go to the Soviet Union.

ROMANIA

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The Five-Year Plan (1966-70) envisages an annual industrial development rate of 10.8 per cent. Largest increases are in electric power, coalmining, fertilizers and motor vehicles.

By the end of 1970 industrial output had increased more than tenfold compared with the level of production in 1950. Once primarily dependent on agriculture, Romania has been transformed into a largely industrial nation. In 1969 more than 57 per cent of her national income accrued from industry.

In 1969 Romanian foreign trade increased by 9.6 per cent. Exchanges with CMEA countries expanded by 9.4

per cent. The share of the CMEA countries in Romanian foreign trade is now 49 per cent, as opposed to 47 per cent in 1967. Trade exchanges with the U.S.S.R., which in 1960 accounted for 40 per cent of the foreign trade total, accounted for 27.3 per cent in 1969. The volume of Romania's foreign trade with the Soviet Union for this period rose by 68 per cent.

Chief imports: rolled metal, machinery and equipment, light vehicles, chemical products. Chief exports: oil products, farm produce, sawn timber, paper, furniture and other industrial products.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

U. S. S. R.

(Five-Year Plan 1966-70)

The aim of the Plan is to increase industrial output by 47-50 per cent, agricultural output by 25 per cent and the National Income by 38-41 per cent. Production of electric power will be 64-68 per cent larger in 1970 than in 1965, production of instruments and automation equipment will rise by 72-77 per cent and that of chemical equipment by 103-116 per cent, and the increase in the engineering and metal-working industries will amount to 60-70 per cent.

The Plan provides for further development of the U.S.S.R.'s trade with socialist countries, extension of economic co-operation with developing countries and expansion of trade with other countries on the basis of mutual advantage.

During the five-year period trade turnover with socialist countries will amount to 50,000 million roubles. This is a considerable increase compared with the previous Five-

Year Plan. Rational economic co-operation with CMEA countries is envisaged in industry, transport and trade, as well as in the spheres of credits, financial operations and foreign currency settlements. CMEA countries play an increasingly important role in Soviet international economic relations; in 1958 they accounted for slightly over 52 per cent of U.S.S.R. foreign trade, and in 1968 their share had risen to 57.5 per cent. The U.S.S.R. has played and still plays an important role in organizing reciprocal economic terms between member countries of CMEA, particularly in the development of industry and scientific-technical co-operation. The U.S.S.R. is also the main supplier of raw materials and finished goods. The U.S.S.R.'s main customers are German Democratic Republic (27 per cent), Czechoslovakia (18 per cent) and Poland (19 per cent).

SUMMARY OF CHARTER

(With amendments approved by the 16th and 17th Sessions of the Council).

The Governments of the People's Republic of Albania, the People's Republic of Bulgaria, the Czechoslovak Republic, the German Democratic Republic, the Hungarian People's Republic, the Polish People's Republic, the Romanian People's Republic and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics,

Taking into account that economic co-operation, successfully effected between their countries, contributes to the most rational development of the national economy, the elevation of the living standards of the population, and the strengthening of the unity and cohesion of these countries,

Fully resolved to continue developing all-round economic co-operation on the basis of the consistent implementation of the international socialist division of labour in the interests of building socialism and communism in their countries and ensuring a lasting peace throughout the world,

Convinced that the development of economic co-operation between their countries promotes the achievement of the purposes expounded in the Charter of the United Nations,

Confirming their readiness to develop economic relations with all countries, irrespective of their social and state systems, on the principles of equality, mutual advantage, and non-interference in domestic affairs,

Recognizing the ever growing role of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance in organizing economic co-operation between their countries,

Have agreed for these purposes to adopt the present Charter.

ARTICLE I

AIMS AND PRINCIPLES

1. The aim of the C.M.E.A. is to facilitate, by uniting and co-ordinating the efforts of the Council's member countries, the planned development of their national economies, the acceleration of their economic and technical progress, an increase in the level of industrialization in the less industrialized countries, the uninterrupted growth of labour productivity and the steady advance in the welfare of the peoples of the Council's member countries.

2. The C.M.E.A. is based on the principles of sovereign equality of all its member countries.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

The policy of economic, scientific and technical co-operation between the member countries shall be effected in accordance with the principles of full equality, respect for sovereignty and national interests, mutual advantage and mutual comradely assistance.

ARTICLE II MEMBERSHIP

1. The founder members of the C.M.E.A. are the countries which sign and ratify the present Charter.
2. Membership is open to any other countries which share the Council's aims and principles and agree to accept the obligations contained in the present Charter.
3. Any member country may withdraw from the Council by notice to that effect given to the depositary of the present Charter. Such notice becomes effective six months after its receipt by the depositary. On receipt of such notice the depositary will inform the member countries of the Council.
4. The member countries of the Council agree:
 - (a) to ensure the fulfilment of the recommendations of the Council organs adopted by them;
 - (b) to render the Council and its officials the necessary co-operation in the discharge of their functions under the present Charter;
 - (c) to submit to the Council materials and information necessary for carrying out the tasks assigned to it;
 - (d) to inform the Council about progress in fulfilling the recommendations adopted in the Council.

ARTICLE III FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

1. In conformity with the aims and principles laid down in Article I of the present Charter, the functions of the C.M.E.A. are as follows:
 - (a) organize close economic, scientific and technical co-operation between the Council's member countries in the most rational use of their natural resources and the acceleration of their productive forces;
 - (b) foster the improvement of the international socialist division of labour by co-ordinating national economic development plans, and the specialization and co-operation of production in the Council's member countries;
 - (c) take measures to study economic, scientific and technical problems which are of interest to the Council's member countries;
 - (d) assist the Council's member countries in elaborating and carrying out joint measures for:
 - the development of the industry and agriculture of the Council's member countries;
 - the development of transport with a view to ensuring first priority for increasing export, import and transit shipments of the Council's member countries;
 - the most efficient use of principal capital investments allocated by the Council's member countries for the development of the mining and manufacturing industries and for the construction of major projects which are of interest to two countries or more;
 - the development of trade and exchange of services between the Council's member countries and between them and other countries;
 - the exchange of scientific and technical achievements and advanced production experience;
 - (e) take such other actions as may be required for the achievement of the aims of the Council.

2. The C.M.E.A., as represented by its organs, acting within the terms of their reference, is authorized to adopt recommendations and decisions in accordance with the present Charter.

ARTICLE IV RECOMMENDATIONS AND DECISIONS

1. Recommendations shall be made on questions of economic, scientific and technical co-operation. Recommendations shall be submitted to member countries for consideration.

Member countries carry out the recommendations they receive by decisions of their Governments or other competent bodies in accordance with their legislative processes.
2. Decisions shall be adopted on organizational and procedural matters. Unless otherwise provided for therein, decisions come into force on the day on which the minutes of the meeting are signed by the appropriate organ of the Council.
3. All recommendations and decisions of the Council can be adopted only with the consent of interested member countries, and any country may declare an interest in any question under consideration by the Council.

Recommendations and decisions do not apply to members who have declared themselves as having no interest in the question concerned. Each of these countries, however, may subsequently join recommendations or decisions adopted by the other member countries of the Council.

ARTICLE V ORGANS

1. For the purpose of carrying out the functions and exercising the powers laid down in Article III of this Charter, the C.M.E.A. is divided into the following principal organs:

Session of the Council;
Executive Committee;
Permanent Commissions;
Secretariat.

2. Other organs, as may be necessary, may be constituted in accordance with the present Charter.

CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY

Members are elected by their national parliaments or appointed. Members are also members of their own parliaments, and political parties in each delegation follow the proportion of their strength in the national parliament. Members do not represent their governments; they are spokesmen for public opinion.

The Assembly has 140 members:

France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, United Kingdom	18 each
Turkey	10
Belgium, Netherlands	7 each
Austria, Sweden, Switzerland	6 each
Denmark, Norway	5 each
Ireland	4
Cyprus, Iceland, Luxembourg, Malta	3 each

The Assembly meets in ordinary session once a year for not more than a month. The session is usually divided into three parts held in January–February, April–May and September–October. The Assembly may submit recommendations to the Committee of Ministers, pass resolutions, discuss reports and any matters of common European interest.

COMMITTEES

Standing Committee. Represents the Assembly when it is not in session. Consists of the President, Vice-Presidents, Chairmen of the Ordinary Committees and a number of ordinary members. Meets at least three times a year.

Ordinary Committees: political, economic, social and health, legal, culture and education, science and technology, procedure, agriculture, regional planning and local authorities, European non-member countries, population and refugees, budget, parliamentary and public relations.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: LUJO TONČIĆ-SORINJ (Austria).

Deputy Secretary-General: GALEAZZO SFORZA (Italy).

Clerk of the Assembly: JOHN PRIESTMAN (United Kingdom).

Director-General of Administration and Finance: ARMAND DAUSSIN (Belgium).

Political Director: HENRI LELEU (France).

Director of Economic and Social Affairs: FADIL SUR (Turkey).

Director of Press and Information: SANDRO SQUARTINI (Italy).

Director of Education and of Cultural and Scientific Affairs: NIELS BORCH-JACOBSEN (Denmark).

Director of Legal Affairs: HERIBERT GOLSONG (Federal Republic of Germany).

Director of Environment and Local Authorities: STEN RENBORG (Sweden).

Head of Human Rights Directorate: A. H. ROBERTSON (United Kingdom).

Secretary of the European Commission of Human Rights: ANTHONY McNULTY (United Kingdom).

Registrar of the European Court of Human Rights: M.-A. EISSEN (France).

ACTIVITIES

HUMAN RIGHTS

EUROPEAN COMMISSION

President: Professor MAX SØRENSEN (Denmark).

Vice-President: JAMES E. S. FAWCETT (United Kingdom).

Members: ADOLF SÜSTERHEHN (Federal Republic of Germany), FELIX ERMACORA (Austria), GIUSEPPE SPERDUTI (Italy), MICHAEL A. TRIANTAFYLIDES (Cyprus), FELIX WELTER (Luxembourg), WILHELM F. DE GAAY FORTMAN (Netherlands), KEVIN MANGAN (Ireland), PEDRO O. DELAHAYE (Belgium), THEODOR B. LINDAL (Iceland), EDWIN BUSUTTL (Malta), LOVE KELLBERG (Sweden), BÜLENT DAVER (Turkey), TORKEL OPSAHL (Norway).

Secretary: ANTHONY McNULTY (United Kingdom).

The Commission is competent to examine complaints made either by a Contracting Party, or in certain cases, by a person, non-governmental organization or group of individuals that the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms has been violated by one or more of the Contracting Parties. If the Commission decides to admit the application, it then proceeds to ascertain the full facts of the case and, at the same time, to place itself at the disposal of the Parties in order to try and reach a friendly settlement. If no settlement is reached, the Commission sends a report to the Committee of Ministers in which it states an opinion as to whether there has been a violation of the Convention. It is then for the Committee of Ministers or, if the case is referred to it, the Court to decide whether or not a violation has taken place.

EUROPEAN COURT

Judges: Sir HUMPHREY WALDOCK, President (United Kingdom), GIORGIO BALLADORE PALLIERI, Vice-President (Italy), RENÉ CASSIN (France), STURE PETREN (Sweden), ALFRED VERDROSS (Austria), EUGENE RODENBOURG (Luxembourg), HELGA PEDERSEN (Denmark), TERJE WOLD (Norway), HERMANN MOSLER (Federal Republic of Germany), MEHMED ZEKIA (Cyprus), ANTOINE FAVRE (Switzerland), CONOR A. MAGUIRE (Ireland), JOHN CREMONA (Malta), A. SUAT BILGE (Turkey), GERARD J. WIARDA (Netherlands), THOR. H. VILHJALMSSON (Iceland), HENRI ROLIN (Belgium).

Registrar: MARC-ANDRÉ EISSEN (France).

THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

The Court may only deal with a case after the Commission has acknowledged the failure of efforts for a friendly settlement within the prescribed period. The following may bring a case before the Court, provided that the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned have accepted its compulsory jurisdiction or, failing that, with the consent of the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned: the Commission, a High Contracting Party whose national is alleged to be a victim, a High Contracting Party which referred the case to the Commission, and a High Contracting Party against which the complaint has been lodged. In the event of dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter is settled by the decision of the Court. The judgement of the Court is final. The Court may, in certain circumstances, give advisory opinions at the request of the Committee of Ministers.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL WORK PROGRAMME

In December 1970 the Committee of Ministers adopted the fifth Intergovernmental Work Programme of the Council of Europe. Features of the new programme include its establishment for two years and the redistribution of activities into four chapters: Man's cultural development and permanent education; the adjustment of laws and administrative machinery to present-day living conditions; the improvement of man's physical environment in the town and in the country; development of economic and social structures and improvement of public health conditions. The Consultative Assembly has been called upon to give an opinion on the draft before its final adoption.

ECONOMIC AFFAIRS

The Council has as its main objective in this field the protection of the individual in a European economy.

Work is, for example, being carried out on the improvement of the protection of the consumer (e.g. in such fields as developing Europe-wide measures to put an end to misleading advertising). A Committee of Governmental Experts is examining the scope and effects of recent trends towards press concentration in member states and is considering what measures of economic assistance to the press could be adopted in order to avoid the point where concentration might seriously threaten the public right to freedom of expression and information.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

The Council's objectives in the social sphere are: to establish equality of treatment in each member country between nationals and citizens of the other member states in such matters as social security and social and medical assistance; to pool skills and resources; to raise the living conditions of the populations; and to raise the level of workers' protection against accidents and professional diseases. The European Social Charter, signed on October 18th, 1961, and in force since February 26th, 1965, with regard at present to Austria, Cyprus, Denmark, German Federal Republic, Ireland, Italy, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom, lays down the rights and principles which are the basis of the Council's social policy, and guarantees a number of social and economic rights to the citizen. It thus complements the European Convention on Human Rights, which guarantees certain civil and political rights. A European Social Security Code has also been signed; it entered into force on March 17th, 1968.

Other international Conventions or Resolutions to member governments were also adopted or are under preparation. Among the Conventions are the European Interim Agreements on Social Security, the Convention on the Adoption of Children and the Agreement on Au Pair Placement. Among the Resolutions which may be quoted are the Resolution on Medical and Medico-Social Policy for Old Age, the Resolution on Labour Inspection and Resolutions still in preparation on the Protection of Young People at Work and on Health Protection in Places of Employment.

The Secretary-General of the Council of Europe will also henceforth act as Secretary of the Conference of European Ministers responsible for Family Affairs which meets every second year. The next Conference will be held in France in 1973 when the main topic for discussion will be "Children and Young People in Danger".

HEALTH

The Council is working towards the pooling of medical techniques and equipment between member states. A programme of medical fellowships has been launched, designed to enable members of the medical profession and personnel of public health departments to become acquainted with new methods and techniques practised in other European countries and to participate in research of common European interest.

European Agreements provide for special facilities for the medical treatment of war cripples and other injured, for a system of supply of blood and blood products through the channel of a network of 28 Blood Transfusion Centres in 15 member states, and for the duty-free importation on loan of medical and surgical equipment. Eight member countries have concluded Administrative Arrangements setting up an "excepted sanitary area" under the terms of Article 104 of the International Sanitary Regulations. Ten states carry out activities towards harmonization of their legislation in several fields, such as the pharmaceutical field, the health control of foodstuffs and the use of pesticides. Eight countries are participating in the establishment of a European Pharmacopoeia, the first volume of which was published in 1969 and the second in 1971. A multidisciplinary Symposium on Drug Dependence took place in March 1972 and gave government experts and representatives of organizations an opportunity to prepare co-ordinated measures by member governments.

POPULATION

The Council has been concerned with refugee problems since 1950, and in 1953 appointed M. Pierre Schneider its Special Representative for national refugees and over-population in Europe. M. Schneider's plan for a European Resettlement Fund to make loans to governments for the resettlements of refugees and helping them in solving the problems raised by over-population, was duly put into effect, nine countries contributing. The Fund has so far granted loans totalling over $50 million. M. Schneider is now engaged on improving the material, legal and psychological situation of migrant workers and is preparing a European Convention on the Legal Status of Migrant Workers as well as many other recommendations to governments on the following questions: school education of migrant workers' children; safety at work for migrant workers; methods used for compiling migration statistics; reunion of the family; equality of treatment as between national and migrant workers; equivalence of professional diploma for car repairing technicians.

The First European Population Conference was held in 1966 and a second took place at Strasbourg in September 1971. The twelve resolutions of the latter deal mainly with economic and social problems caused by changes in European population structures.

LEGAL CO-OPERATION

The importance of this branch of the Council's activities was acknowledged by the creation in 1963 of a European Committee on Legal Co-operation, grouping delegations from all member states and from the Assembly. This committee has general responsibility for the preparation and implementation of the Council's inter-governmental activities in the legal field. It normally meets twice a year. Most of the specialized committees of legal experts work under its direction.

In addition, the Ministers of Justice of member states of the Council of Europe meet from time to time for the purpose of stimulating co-operation in the legal field. The Fifth Conference of Ministers of Justice took place in London in June 1968 and the Sixth Conference in March 1970 in The Hague.

Among the more important legal conventions concluded within the framework of the Council of Europe are those on Establishment, the Peaceful Settlement of Disputes, Patents (application, classification, unification of substantive law), Extradition, Commercial Arbitration, Compulsory Motor Insurance, "Pirate" Broadcasts, Information on Foreign Law, Multiple Nationality, Foreign Money Liabilities, Liability of Hotelkeepers and Bearer Securities. A European Convention on State Immunity is in the final stages of preparation.

PENAL LAW AND CRIMINOLOGY

The European Committee on Crime Problems is the main body of the Council of Europe working on penal law, penology and criminology. It is assisted by a Criminological Scientific Council composed of specialists in law, psychology, sociology and related sciences. It organizes every year a conference of Directors of Criminological Research Institutes.

The activities of the European Committee on Crime Problems have in recent years resulted in Conventions on the Punishment of Road Traffic Offences, on the Supervision of Conditionally Sentenced and Conditionally Released Offenders, on Repatriation of Minors and the International Validity of Criminal Judgements. Several Resolutions arising out of the work of the European Committee on Crime Problems have been adopted by the Committee of Ministers and concern the Mass Media and the Protection of Young People, the Status, Selection and Training of Prison Staff, the Setting-up of a simplified Procedure to Deal with Minor Road Traffic Offences and Measures for the Supervision and After-Care of Conditionally Sentenced or Conditionally Released Offenders and Hidden Criminality.

Various studies in penal law, penology and criminology are at present being carried out by twenty-three Expert Committees.

EDUCATION AND CULTURE

The Council for Cultural Co-operation was founded in 1962 to draw up proposals for the cultural policy of the Council of Europe and to allocate the resources of the Cultural Fund, which finances the cultural programme of the Organization. It is assisted by three Permanent Committees: Higher Education and Research, General and Technical Education and Out-of-School Education and Cultural Development. All member states of the Council of Europe are represented on these bodies, together with Finland, Greece, Spain and the Holy See.

The educational and cultural programme is based on two main concepts: permanent education and cultural development. As regards education, which represents some 80 per cent of the programme, there are four sectors: a general sector (covering problems common to education as a whole) and three sectors corresponding to the traditional branches of the educational systems.

Moreover, an intensified programme in the field of modern languages, covering all three branches of education, is being actively pursued in co-operation with the International Language Association, with the aim of improving and accelerating language teaching throughout Europe. The results will be assessed in 1973.

Great attention is paid in all three branches of education to the present and future applications of modern media ranging from films and closed-circuit television to multi-media systems and satellites.

Education-General: Steering groups have been set up to supervise the work on permanent education, which is henceforth to be devoted to pilot experiments, on educational technology, which centres upon distant teaching systems and their implications for the reform of contents and methods, on educational documentation, with particular reference to the Eudised project (thesaurus and computerisation) and on educational research, which is aiming towards co-operative research between member states.

Higher Education and Research: The work is centred on reform and development, on the harmonization of interests concerned with planning and administration, on the mobility of students, staff and research workers, on the equivalence of qualifications and on research co-operation. It is carried out in close co-operation with university authorities who are represented with governments on the Committee.

General and Technical Education: Inter-governmental co-operation in tackling educational problems common to European countries began with an emphasis on comparative studies (history, geography, civic education, school guidance, teacher training, etc.), as well as with the assembly of basic material on school systems. The emphasis is now placed on obtaining guidelines for the development of key sectors of the educational system, such as: commercial and vocational education, the further training of teachers, examinations and continuous assessment, pre-school and primary education, the sixteen to nineteen age group.

Out-of-School Education: A European Youth Centre, which will be residential and sited in Strasbourg will become operative in 1972, with the aim of enabling young people to supplement their knowledge of European problems and participate in European developments. In adult education the problems of the organization and content of this branch of education within a system of permanent education and questions of new technologies of out-of-school education are prominent.

Cultural Development: In the field of cultural development a new series of projects is under way, designed to provide the quantitative and qualitative data to enable governments and local authorities to redefine their policies with regard to determination of the needs of the population, choice of facilities, management and investments. Action is also being taken to ensure the promotion of greater aesthetic, social and scientific awareness among individuals. Moreover, a long-term programme is carried out on the theme of "Sport for All". Its aim is to promote sport as an instrument for the fitness and sociocultural development of the largest possible number. A number of traditional projects are being continued including European Art Exhibitions which demonstrate the interdependence of national cultures and the Cultural Identity Card which offers special facilities to research workers.

Documentation and Publications: A Documentation Centre for Education in Europe was established in 1964. In 1967 it was linked with a new service for information on educational research. The main educational publications of the Council for Cultural Co-operation are published in the series Education in Europe. Other works of a more technical character are also produced. Two periodicals Education and Culture and Bulletin of the Documentation Centre for Education in Europe are available to specialists free of charge.

ENVIRONMENTAL QUESTIONS

The European Committee for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (created in 1962) advises the Committee of Ministers on environmental questions. It prepares policy recommendations and promotes European co-operation in this field. Twelve Diplomas have been awarded to protected landscapes, reserves and natural features of European interest. A European Water Charter was made public in Strasbourg in May 1968 when a European Information Campaign on Water Problems was launched. In 1967, a European Information Centre for Nature Conservation was created; it produces an illustrated review Nature in Focus and Newsletter, a monthly information sheet. 1970 was proclaimed Nature Conservation Year by the Committee of Ministers. A European Conservation Conference was held in Strasbourg in February 1970. This Conference ended with the adoption of a Declaration on the management of the natural environment of Europe. The recommendations contained in this declaration have begun to be put into effect (creation of Ministries of Environment, management of marginal lands, etc.). One of the most important recommendations concerns the convocation of a Ministerial Conference on the Environment, which has been fixed for Spring 1973 in Vienna.

A Committee of Experts on Air Pollution was created in 1966 with tasks similar to those of the above-mentioned Committee. A Declaration of Principles of Air Pollution Control, prepared by this Committee, was approved by the Committee of Ministers in 1968.

The European Committee for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources has elaborated a new medium-term work programme, which is being studied by the Committee of Ministers.

LOCAL AUTHORITIES AND REGIONAL PLANNING

The Council of Europe provides a particularly appropriate framework for European co-operation in local authorities and regional planning questions. The Council entered this field in 1952 with the formation of a Committee on Local and Regional Affairs within the Consultative Assembly, followed in 1955 by the creation of the European Conference of Local Authorities, as a common forum for elected representatives of local and regional government from member states. In 1967 the Committee on Co-operation in Municipal and Regional Matters was set up to enable senior officials from Ministries responsible for local government affairs and/or leading local government figures in the member states to meet.

At the same time, in response to recommendations by the European Conference of Local Authorities and the Consultative Assembly, the Council began to study regional planning problems and in 1970 called together the first European Conference of Ministers responsible for Regional Planning. The Consultative Assembly's Committee altered its name in 1968 to the "Committee on Regional Planning and Local Authorities". The objectives are many and varied. Firstly, the intention is to provide, through the European

Conference of Local Authorities, for the participation of local and regional administrators in European co-operation.

Through the Committee on Co-operation in Municipal and Regional Matters machinery exists to establish co-operation between governments in local government questions, with a view to enabling national governments to exchange experience and ensure, as far as is possible and necessary, that the various national structures and legislations develop in harmony. Amongst the activities of this Committee are those aimed at the strengthening of the structures of local and regional government and their adaptation to the requirements of modern society and European unification.

The European Conference of Ministers responsible for Regional Planning has set itself the task of laying the foundations of a European regional planning policy, with a view to ensuring a more balanced use of the European territory and the harmonious development of its various regions.

At their first Conference, in Bonn, September 1970, the Ministers responsible for regional planning in the states represented agreed to co-operate in the following fields: institution between the participating countries of a standing exchange of information on policy legislation, experience and current developments in the field of regional planning; co-operation in the field of long-range forecasting and establishment of regular co-operation between public research institutes concerned with regional planning; co-ordination in time and space of plans and measures relating to regional planning in frontier areas; meetings and discussions between officials and research workers in the field of regional planning, in order to harmonize and improve their training and familiarize them with the policies and techniques in use in other European states; harmonization of terminology, statistics and cartographical methods.

Finally, mention should be made of the activities of local authorities aimed at spreading the European idea and promoting a closer understanding between peoples, particularly through town-twinning arrangements. These activities led some years ago to the institution of May 5th as Europe Day. A Europe Prize is awarded each year to the local authority having made the most outstanding efforts to propagate the ideal of European unity. The Council also awards a number of grants-in-aid to local authorities under a European Intermunicipal Exchanges Development Plan.

MONUMENTS AND SITES

Following a series of five symposia organised by the Council for Cultural Co-operation of the Council of Europe between 1965 and 1968 on specific aspects and taking account of the resolutions of the European Conference of Ministers Responsible for the Preservation and Rehabilitation of the Cultural Heritage of Monuments and Sites, Brussels, in November 1969, the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe decided to create a Committee on Monuments and Sites for a period of five years.

The Committee on Monuments and Sites has been charged with elaborating general principles for an overall policy on the preservation and rehabilitation of Europe's heritage of cultural buildings; proclaiming a year devoted to the preservation and rehabilitation of monuments and sites; providing technical assistance for national or local authorities of the Member States; establishing a system for the exchange of information on the preservation and rehabilitation of the cultural heritage of monuments and sites.

CONVENTIONS AND AGREEMENTS

In an effort to harmonize national laws, to put the citizens of member countries on an equal footing and to pool certain resources and facilities, the Council has concluded a large number of treaties covering particular aspects of European co-operation:

- Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms.
- European Convention on Social and Medical Assistance.
- European Interim Agreement on Social Security other than Schemes for Old Age, Invalidity and Survivors.
- European Interim Agreement on Social Security relating to Old Age, Invalidity and Survivors.

- European Agreement on Continued Payment of Scholarships to Students Abroad (not yet in force).
- European Convention on the International Validity of Criminal Judgments (not yet in force).
- European Convention on the Repatriation of Minors (not yet in force).
- Convention relating to Steps on Bearer Securities in International Circulation (not yet in force).

THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Agreements providing for co-operation and exchange of documents and observers have been concluded with the United Nations and its Agencies, and with most of the European inter-governmental organizations. Particularly close relations exist with the European Communities, OECD, EFTA and Western European Union. Members of the European Parliament hold an annual joint meeting with members of the Consultative Assembly.

Israel is represented in the Consultative Assembly by observers, and certain European non-member countries have been invited to participate, through observers, in meetings of technical committees and specialized conferences.

SUMMARY OF STATUTE

The Statute of the Council of Europe was signed in London on May 5th, 1949. It defines the aim of the Council, the conditions of membership and the composition and tasks of its institutions. (For an account of the latter, see the section on Organization above.)

The aim of the Council of Europe is stated by the Statute to be the achievement of "a greater unity between its members for the purpose of safeguarding and realizing the ideals and principles which are their common heritage and facilitating their economic and social progress". Collaboration with the United Nations and other international organizations are not to be affected by membership of the Council.

Every member state must "accept the principles of the rule of law and of the enjoyment by all persons within its jurisdiction of human rights and fundamental freedoms, and collaborate sincerely and effectively in the realization of the aims of the Council". It is further laid down that "any European state deemed able and willing to fulfil these provisions may be invited by the Committee of Ministers to become a member of the Council". This has later been modified by the Committee of Ministers, who now undertake to consult the Assembly before issuing an invitation to join.

ORGANIZATION

THE ANNUAL SESSION

President (1969-72): K. ENDERL (Austria).

Vice-President: F. DVORSKÝ (Czechoslovakia).

Secretary: D. Jović (Yugoslavia).

Sessions are held once a year. A Session may adopt a resolution by a simple majority with a quorum of five, but important decisions require the attendance of the full Session. The President, Vice-President and Secretary are elected for three years by a simple majority. Resolutions are in the form of recommendations and are passed to member states for internal legislation. The Session appoints Expert Groups which meet between two Sessions as required.

SECRETARIAT AND SERVICES

The Secretariat has two sections: correspondence, publications and archives, and administration and management. In addition the Commission has four services departments: technology, navigation, hydro-meteorology, and planning and statistics. A separate department is responsible for accounts. Staff is drawn from all the member countries.

Director: L. J. KAPIKRAIAN (U.S.S.R.).

Assistant Director (Secretariat): J. HANUŠEK (Czechoslovakia).

Assistant Director (Services): S. SIMEONOV (Bulgaria).

Assistant Director (Accounts): E. CHRIST (Austria).

DANUBE COMMISSION

ACTIVITIES

General Work Plans. Based on proposals of the Danubian States and the special river administrations. The Commission assesses total expenditure for any large plans and carries out the work if a single state cannot do so. It consults continually with member states and river administrations while work is proceeding.

Uniform Navigational System. Navigational rules have been unified and manuals of navigational procedure published. To secure observations of these rules a river inspection system has been set up, with functions laid down by the Commission.

Manuals for River Users. Publications include pilots' charts covering most of the Danube, sailing directions, mileage charts and lists of temporary winter quarters.

Co-ordination in Hydro-Meteorological Services. Liaison has been improved for the provision of hydro-meteorological information and water-level forecasts. Assessing water-levels is carried out by a uniform method.

Hydrotechnical Services. Steps are being taken to measure the minimum dimensions of locks and bridges and the minimum heights of high-tension cables and telephone lines. The Commission works out statistical surveys noting the appearance of sandbanks, and classifies the results. A similar analysis is being made of glacial activity.

Customs, Sanitary, Veterinary and Phytosanitary Regulations. The Commission has undertaken to formulate uniformly applicable rules.

Legal Problems. The Secretariat of the Commission studies the most important legal questions connected with shipping on the Danube and submits its proposals to the Commission.

International Co-operation. The Commission works closely with many international bodies, including the UN Economic Commission for Europe, the International Atomic Energy Agency and ITU. An agreement of collaboration and co-operation was signed with the World Meteorological Organization in 1962. In 1965 the Commission became a member of the Permanent International Association of Navigation Congresses.

Independent Yugoslav-Romanian Co-operation. A giant hydroelectric dam is being constructed at Djerdap by Yugoslav and Romanian engineers independently, but taking into account recommendations made by the Danube Commission. The dam will control the currents of the Iron Gates, where the river is only about 500 ft. wide but up to 280 ft. deep. The effect on navigation will be to raise the annual tonnage capacity to 90 million tons. At present, 12 million tons of shipping, one-third of which is Russian, pass annually through the Iron Gates. The project is expected to be completed in 1972.

BUDGET

1971: 5,493,700 forints.

Member countries pay an equal annual contribution to the costs of the Commission.

EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY

Established December 1967, the Community provides an institutional and legal framework to strengthen the Common Market between Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda and has absorbed the common services and research activities formerly controlled by the East African Common Services Organization.

MEMBERS

Kenya

Uganda

Zambia, Ethiopia, Somalia and Burundi have made formal application to join the Community.

HISTORY

The foundations of regional integration in east Africa were laid under British colonial rule. A customs union between Kenya and Uganda had been established in 1917, into which Tanganyika was drawn in successive stages. An East African Common Market was established in the 1920s, giving Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika a common external tariff, designed to protect European-dominated highland agriculture in Kenya and the new industries in Nairobi and Mombasa. The East African Currency Board was established in 1917 and a common currency was in use in east Africa from that date until 1966, when the three countries set up their own central banks and issued national currencies.

In 1948 the East African High Commission, headed by the governors of the three territories, was set up to operate joint services in the fields of transport and communications, administration, research and education. In addition to the common external tariff, there were common monetary, banking and financial systems. These joint operations encouraged a sharp increase in trade within the region.

After independence the High Commission was replaced in 1961 by the East African Common Services Organization under the three Heads of State. Integrated activities were continued, and several joint ministerial committees were created.

There were no provisions for integrated economic planning or for harmonization of taxation and monetary policy, and the arrangements were increasingly threatened by the separate policies pursued by the three countries. The benefits derived from the union appeared to be largely in Kenya's favour, while Tanzania was the net loser. Industries, as well as the administrative headquarters of common services, tended to be concentrated in Kenya. Tanzania pressed for reforms of the economic institutions, and in 1964 the Kampala Agreement was signed, providing for the relocation of certain industries and joint measures to protect new industries in Uganda and Tanzania from Kenyan competition. However, the Agreement was badly implemented and led to bitter disputes between the member countries. In 1965 the EASCO was in danger of breaking up, and a Commission on East Africa was set up, composed of three senior ministers from each state, and chaired by a UN official, Professor Kjeld Philip. The Commission presented its report to the three governments in May 1966. On the basis of its recommendations, a Treaty for East African Economic Co-operation was drawn up and signed, coming into effect in December 1967.

The Treaty takes into account the need for planned development policies, a better framework for close co-ordination and more equitable allocation of gains and growth opportunities. Under the terms of the Treaty administrative offices have been relocated so that they are more equally divided between the member States, and the East African Development Bank has been established. The East African Common Market is given a legal basis as an integral part of the East African Community, established by the Treaty.

Accession of new members is provided for. In 1968 negotiations were opened between the East African Community and Zambia, Ethiopia, Somalia and Burundi, who had all applied to join the Community.

In October 1965 the UN Economic Commission for Africa sponsored a conference at Lusaka, at which the idea of an Economic Community of Eastern Africa was launched. This would embrace the East African Community, Zambia, Ethiopia and Burundi, and possibly Somalia, Malawi and Rwanda. A draft treaty was initialled at a conference of ministers in Addis Ababa in May 1966, and a Provisional Council created.

Negotiations between the European Economic Community and Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania were opened in 1965. In July 1968 an Association Agreement was signed at Arusha by the EEC and the members of the East African Community, but never came into force. A new Arusha Agreement was signed in September 1969 and will expire on January 31st 1975.

EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY

ORGANIZATION

EAST AFRICAN AUTHORITY

Responsible for the general direction and control over the executive functions of the Community. Composed of the Presidents of Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. Three East African Ministers assist the Authority in the exercise of its executive functions and advise it generally on the affairs of the Community. The East African Ministers have no national responsibilities but are able to attend and speak at meetings of the Cabinet of the country by which they were nominated.

East African Ministers: J. S. MALECELA, SHAFIQ ARAIN, R. J. OUKO.

EAST AFRICAN LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Replaces the Central Legislative Assembly. Legislates on services provided by the Community.

Members: nine from each state, the three East African Ministers and Deputy Ministers, Secretary-General, Counsel to the Community, and a Chairman.

COMMON MARKET COUNCIL

Main organ for the supervision of the functioning and development of the Common Market; keeps its operation under review; settles problems and disputes arising from the implementation of the Treaty concerning the Common Market; considers methods of creating closer economic and commercial links with other States, associations of States and international organizations.

Members: the three East African Ministers, three National Ministers from each country.

OTHER COUNCILS

The following four Councils have also been established as consultative organs to advise Member States and the Community on planning and the co-ordination of policies; each is composed of the three East African Ministers and a varying number of national Ministers from each country:

Communications Council

Economic Consultative and Planning Council

Finance Council

Research and Social Council

COMMON MARKET TRIBUNAL

Composed of a Judicial Chairman, three members (one from each country) and a fourth chosen by the other three, plus the Chairman. Only member states are permitted to refer disputes to the Tribunal, although the Common Market Council may seek advisory opinions. Decisions, which are binding on member states, are reached by a majority vote.

CENTRAL SECRETARIAT

Arusha, Tanzania

Composed of the three Secretariats (Ministries): Finance and Administration (Deputy Minister: vacant), Common Market and Economic Affairs (Deputy Minister: vacant), Communications, Research and Social Services (Deputy Minister G. N. KALYA); Office of the Secretary-General, The Chambers of the Counsel to the Community and the Community Service Commission.

The Secretariat co-ordinates the work of the five Councils and is responsible for execution of the Councils' decisions. The Common Market and Economic Affairs Secretariat of the Central Secretariat is also charged with co-ordinating the implementation of the Association Agreement signed in September 1969 at Arusha, between the East African Community and the European Economic Community.

Secretary-General: CHARLES GATERE MAINA,

Counsel to the Community: PAULO SEBALU.

COURT OF APPEAL FOR EAST AFRICA

P.O.B. 30187, Nairobi

Permanent Members:

President: Mr. Justice W. A. H. DUFFUS.

Vice-President: Mr. Justice J. F. SPRY.

Justices of Appeal: E. J. E. LAW, B. C. W. LUTTA, A. MUSTAFA.

Registrar: T. T. M. ASWANI.

This Court, which was established in 1951, hears appeals from the Courts of Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya.

EAST AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

Kampala, Uganda

Established in 1967, the Bank's aims are as follows:

To provide financial and technical assistance to promote the industrial development of the member states; priority is given to industrial development in the relatively less developed countries and about 77 per cent of ordinary and special funds are to be invested in Tanzania and Uganda over consecutive five-year periods.

To further the aims of the East African Community by financing, wherever possible, projects designed to make the economies of the member states increasingly complementary in the industrial field.

To co-operate with national development agencies in the three countries in financing operations, and also with other institutions, both national and international, that are interested in the industrial development of member states.

The Bank's members are the three governments together with such other non-governmental bodies, enterprises and institutions whose membership is approved by the governments. Total initial subscriptions by the governments totals Sh. 120 million and the total authorized capital is Sh. 400 million. The Bank is administered by a Board of Directors appointed by the members.

Director-General and Chairman: IDDI SIMBA.

Directors: J. N. MICHUKI, S. K. MUKASA, E. P. MWALUKO.

COMMUNITY CORPORATIONS

The four Community Corporations are self-accounting, statutory bodies. The Railways, Harbours, and Posts and Telecommunications Corporations are each controlled by a Board of Directors consisting of a Chairman, three members (one from each member state) appointed by the East African Authority, and a Director-General. Board of Directors of the Airways Corporation is composed of a Chairman, Director-General, two members appointed by the Authority and two by each member state.

East African Railways Corporation: P.O.B. 30121, Nairobi; regional headquarters in each State; takes over the internal transport functions exercised by the East African Railways and Harbours; Director-General Dr. E. NJUGUNA GAKUO.

East African Harbours Corporation: Dar es Salaam, Tanzania; takes over the harbours functions formerly exercised by the East African Railways and Harbours; Director-General C. TAMALE.

East African Posts and Telecommunications Corporation: P.O.B. 7106, Kampala; formerly the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration. The service has been self-contained and self-financing since January 1949; there are regional headquarters in each partner state; Director-General J. KETO.

Work on yellow fever is now only one side of the general research on viruses, especially those carried by arthropods; Dir. Dr. G. W. KAFUKO; publ. Annual Report.

SUMMARY OF TREATY FOR EAST AFRICAN CO-OPERATION

Signed at Kampala, Uganda, on June 6th, 1967, by the Presidents of Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.

PREAMBLE

Refers among other points to the fact that Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya have enjoyed close commercial, industrial and other ties for many years, and to the determination of the three Partner States to strengthen these ties and their common services, by the establishment of an East African Community, and a Common Market as an integral part of the Community.

CHAPTER I

(Articles 1-4)

Aims and Institutions

General undertaking included that the three countries shall make every effort to plan and direct their policies with a view to creating conditions favourable for the development of the Common Market and the achievement of the aims of the Community.

CHAPTER 2

(Articles 5-8)

External Trade

Three countries to maintain a Common External Tariff.

Three countries will not enter into agreements whereby tariff concessions negotiated with any country outside the Community are not available to all three countries.

Three countries will take effective measures to counteract any deviation of trade, resulting from barter agreements, away from goods produced in East Africa to goods produced outside the Common Market.

CHAPTER 3

(Articles 9-16)

Inter-Territorial Trade

Guarantees freedom of transit across one State of goods destined for another country, subject to the normal customs and other rules.

Customs duty collected on goods imported into one of the three countries, but in transit to another, shall go to the second country.

Prohibits internal tariffs (except for the transfer tax; see below), and quantitative import restrictions upon goods produced in East Africa. Exceptions made in respect of goods covered by certain special obligations, certain agricultural goods, and for restrictions imposed for certain defined reasons (e.g. control of arms and munitions) or in defined circumstances (e.g. balance of payments difficulties).

One country must not engage in discriminatory practices against goods from either or both of the other countries.

CHAPTER 4

(Articles 17-18)

Excise Tariffs

Removal of present differences in the excise tariff which the Common Market Council determines to be undesirable in the interests of the Common Market, and establishment of a generally common excise tariff.

Excise duty collected on goods produced in one country, but transferred to another country, to be transferred to the second country.

CHAPTER 5

(Articles 19-21)

Measure to Promote Balanced Industrial Development

1. Harmonization of fiscal incentives offered by each country towards industrial development.

2. The Transfer Tax System:

The Transfer Tax: States which are in deficit in their total trade in manufactured goods with the other two States may impose transfer taxes upon such goods originating from the other two countries, up to a value of goods equivalent in each case to its deficit with that country. A transfer tax can only be imposed if goods of a similar description to those taxed are being manufactured, or are reasonably expected to be manufactured within three months, in the tax-imposing country. The industry to be protected by the tax must have a productive capacity equivalent to at least 15 per cent of the total domestic consumption of such products in the tax-imposing country or to a value of 2 million shillings E.A., whichever is the less.

Rate of Transfer Tax: limited to 50 per cent of the equivalent external customs tariff imposed on such goods coming from outside East Africa.

Collection: Customs and Excise Department of East Africa responsible for collection, administration and management of all transfer taxes; costs to be borne by the country or countries which imposed transfer taxes.

Limitations: No transfer tax can be imposed for longer than eight years, and all such taxes are to be revoked fifteen years after the Treaty comes into force. There will be an examination of the effectiveness of the system five years after the first tax is imposed. If a significant deviation of trade takes place to goods produced outside the Common Market, as a result of the imposition of transfer taxes, measures shall be taken to counteract such a deviation. If a tax-protected industry is able to export 30 per cent of its annual production to the other two countries, the transfer tax must be revoked, and if its exports to all countries reach 30 per cent, the situation can be considered by the Common Market Council. A country which comes into 80 per cent balance in its total trade in manufactured goods inside East Africa loses the right to impose new transfer taxes, although existing taxes will continue in force.

Anti-Dumping Provisions: Prohibit the transfer of manufactured goods at a price lower than their true value, in such a way as to prejudice the production of similar goods in each Partner State, and prohibit export subsidies for such goods (other than tax incentives and refunds of a general and non-discriminatory kind).

3. Establishment of the East African Development Bank (see above).

EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY

CHAPTER 6

(Article 23)

Industrial Licences

Present system of industrial licensing shall continue, in respect of articles now scheduled, until twenty years have expired since the commencement of the original legislation.

CHAPTER 7

(Articles 24-28)

Currency and Banking

Exchange of currency notes of the three countries (but not coin) at official par value without exchange commission and without undue delay (subject to exchange control laws and regulations not in conflict with the Treaty).

Bona Fide current account payments between the three countries permitted; all necessary permissions and authorities to be given without undue delay.

Controls may be exercised on capital payments and transfers under certain conditions. Monetary policies to be harmonized; meetings of the three Central Bank Governors to be held at least four times a year.

Reciprocal credits may be given by one Partner State to help another which is in need of balance of payments assistance, up to defined limits and for a period of not more than three years.

CHAPTER 8

(Article 29)

Other Fields of Co-operation

Harmonization of commercial laws in each State; co-ordination of surface transport policies.

CHAPTER 9

(Articles 30-31)

Common Market Council

(See above: Organization)

CHAPTER 10

(Articles 32-42)

Common Market Tribunal

(See above: Organization)

CHAPTER 11

(Articles 43-45)

Functions of the Community

The Community will operate the services formerly controlled by the East African Common Services Organization (EACSO); also to perform services on an agency basis, as agreed by the Authority, and pass laws on certain matters.

CHAPTER 12

(Articles 46-48)

East African Authority

CHAPTER 13

(Articles 49-51)

East African Ministers

(See above: Organization)

CHAPTER 14

(Article 52)

Deputy East African Ministers

Allows the Authority, if at any time it considers it desirable, to appoint three Deputy East African Ministers to assist the Ministers.

CHAPTER 15

(Articles 53-55)

Five Councils

Establishes the following Councils: Common Market Council, Communications Council, Economic Consultative and Planning Council, Finance Council, Research and Social Council (see above: Organization).

CHAPTER 16

(Articles 56-60)

East African Legislative Assembly

(See above: Organization)

CHAPTER 17

(Articles 61-64)

Staff

Provides for the senior staff of the Community, including a Secretary General and a Counsel to the Community, and for the establishment of a Community Service Commission, which will have no responsibilities in relation to staff of the new Corporations.

CHAPTER 18

(Articles 65-70)

Finance

Creation of a General Fund and special funds, and the authorization of Community expenditure.

General Fund: to be financed by customs and excise revenue and the tax on gains or profits of companies engaged in manufacturing or finance.

Distributable Pool Fund: had been operated under the East African Common Services Organization (EACSO) to maintain those common services which are not self-supporting; the remainder of the Pool was distributed to Uganda and Tanzania. The Fund is to be retained, but to be distributed equally to the three countries. It is to cease altogether after the Partner States have paid the second instalment of their full initial subscriptions to the paid-in capital of the Development Bank.

CHAPTER 19

(Articles 71-79)

Four Corporations within the Community

(See above: Community Corporations)

CHAPTER 20

(Articles 80-81)

Court of Appeal for East Africa

Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa to continue as Court of Appeal for East Africa.

EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY

CHAPTER 22 (Articles 83-86) Decentralization

Location of headquarters and the new East African Tax Board.

CHAPTER 23 Auditor-General

Provides for audit and the functions of the Community Auditor-General.

CHAPTER 24 (Article 88) Transitional Provisions

CHAPTER 25 (Articles 89-96) General Provisions

Treaty to come into force on 1st December 1967; parts of Treaty dealing with Common Market to remain in force for fifteen years and then to be reviewed; other countries may negotiate for association with the Community or for participation in its activities; modification of the Treaty by common agreement; implementation measures by way of national legislation in the three countries; abrogation of the EACSO Agreements and past agreements on the Common Market.

Carries on general administration of EBU.

Director and Secretary-General: H. HAHR (Sweden).

Head, Television Programme Section and Television Programme Committee Secretariat: M. VILCEK (Yugoslavia).

Head, Radio Programme Section and Radio Programme Committee Secretariat: A. M. DEAN (U.K.).

DEPARTMENT OF LEGAL AFFAIRS

Legal assistance to member broadcasting organizations and permanent secretariat of the Legal Committee.

Director: G. STRASCHNOV (France).

TECHNICAL CENTRE

Comprises the Technical Directorate, the Eurovision Control Centre, the Receiving and Measuring Centre, and the Technical Committee Secretariat.

Director: G. HANSEN (Belgium).

ACTIVITIES

General: The EBU increased its membership in 1971 to 92 Active and Associate Members in 66 countries. Active membership is strictly limited to the European Broadcasting Area, as defined by the International Telecommunication Union, and Associate Members are drawn mainly from countries outside the Area. The EBU, which includes the Eurovision news and programme exchange, is defined in its Statutes as an association of organizations which operate broadcasting services. The Union is non-commercial, non-governmental and non-political. The main objectives are:

- (a) to support in every domain the interests of member broadcasting organizations and to establish relations with other broadcasting organizations or groups of organizations;

- (b) to promote and co-ordinate the study of all questions relating to broadcasting, and to ensure the exchange of information on all matters of general interest to broadcasting services;
- (c) to promote and take all measures designed to assist the development of broadcasting in all its forms;
- (d) to seek the solution, by means of international co-operation, of any differences that may arise;
- (e) to use its best endeavours to ensure that all its Members respect the provisions of international agreements relating to all aspects of broadcasting.

EUROPEAN BROADCASTING UNION

There was a strengthening of links with other regional broadcasting unions in 1971. For the first time, the Presidents of the Asian Broadcasting Union (ABU), the International Radio and Television Organization (OIRT), the Union of National Radio and Television Organizations of Africa (URTNA) and the Arab States Broadcasting Union (ASBU) were invited to the 23rd Ordinary General Assembly held in Munich in July.

An inter-union meeting is to be held in Rome in 1972, on the EBU's initiative, to discuss satellite communication developments as they affect broadcasters, and other matters of mutual interest.

Legal: Across the differences in laws and customs, broadcasters have common interests which bring them together to study the best ways of defending these interests. The essential task of the EBU Legal Committee is to follow very closely the establishment and revision of international conventions dealing with the rights that those who collaborate in or provide services for programmes can claim, or the rights that broadcasting organizations themselves can claim for their programmes. Two multilateral copyright conventions, the revisions of which the Legal Committee and its secretariat had been closely involved in, were concluded successfully in 1971. They were the Berne Convention and the Universal Copyright Convention. Under the new revisions, the burden of copyright royalties weighing on developing countries will be considerably reduced and this will be of particular benefit to many EBU Associate Members.

The EBU also assisted in the preparatory work for the Convention for the Protection of Producers of Phonograms Against Unauthorized Duplication which was signed in Geneva on October 29th. The Convention will prohibit the production, importation and sale of unauthorized copies of records and tape recordings.

Another achievement during the year was the signing of a new agreement with the international performers' federations governing payments to performers for participation in Eurovision programmes.

One of the Legal Committee's continuing tasks in 1972 will be ways of protecting television signals transmitted or retransmitted by satellites.

Technical: In the technical field the activities to which the EBU attaches the greatest importance are those that require collaboration between Members in order to decide upon a common course of action or point of view. Such activities are in some cases of a practical nature, such as the technical planning and supervision of international television transmissions, while in others they relate to matters of principle, which may determine for many years future trends in broadcasting practice; these include problems posed by the introduction of new techniques, studies leading to international standardization and research work of a nature which cannot readily be undertaken except by a combined effort. The technical activities of the EBU are divided into three main categories: operations, research and development and publications. A constant preoccupation of the Union is the question of communication satellites. It participated in the work of the World Administrative Radio Conference for Space Telecommunications held in Geneva from June 7th to July 17th. Due to the harmonization of views by Members prior to the start, the Conference resulted generally in the allocation of frequencies considered suitable for satellite broadcasting purposes in the future.

Following the success of a pilot scheme started in 1970, orders were placed in 1971 for remote switching equipment to be installed at a number of points on the Eurovision Permanent Network. This will lead to greater operational flexibility and the provision of facilities on an on-demand basis.

Radio Programmes: As the EBU Radio Programme Committee has matured since its creation in 1964, so its work has tended to concentrate less on physical programme exchange and more on the type of service which, due to its activities, can be rendered to member organizations. Examples include the mutual exchange of musical materials, the publication and sale of musical materials, etc., but the Committee is equally active in collecting information from Members on trends, patterns, innovations, experiments and all manner of progress and development in radio programming. Regular analyses of this information are made and distributed to all organizations. In the field of programme exchanges, music of all types is the principal concern, including the EBU Concert Seasons, which are broadcast live simultaneously by the many countries taking part; other musical activities include the commemoration of anniversaries of great composers. The EBU Radio Programme Committee also concerns itself with radio drama, education by radio, the exchange of historical and interesting sound archive material, international sporting events and co-operation with other international bodies.

Television Programmes: The Television Programme Committee studies all aspects of international television programme co-operation, in particular: the organization of multilateral programme exchanges and news transmissions which include the multilateral transmissions over the Eurovision Permanent Network, and intercontinental transmissions via satellites; exchanges of recorded television programmes and films, including agricultural and educational programmes; the setting up of joint productions; the organization of screening sessions and the running of staff training courses. The EBU does not itself produce programmes but is a system for the planning and co-ordination of programmes produced and, in principle, financed by individual broadcasting organizations (except in the case of EBU contracts) and offered to Members on a multilateral basis.

Eurovision: The principal international programme event in 1971 was "Children of the World". This worldwide live television transmission was organized by the EBU on June 17th to mark the opening day of Telecom 71—the first world telecommunications exhibition—which was held in Geneva during the International Telecommunication Union's World Administrative Radio Conference for Space Telecommunications. Ten countries contributed to the programme, which was relayed live or as a deferred broadcast by 49 organizations in 45 countries. Many of the technical facilities were provided free of charge by television organizations, telecommunications entities and the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (INTELSAT).

In the news field, an experimental daily news exchange via satellite was started in March between Eurovision and

EUROPEAN BROADCASTING UNION

Latin America with Television Española in Madrid responsible for co-ordination. Contacts were also made with three other broadcasting unions, namely the ABU, ASBU and URTNA, in order to obtain and to provide news material. Results will, however, depend on obtaining reduced satellite tariffs and improved communications facilities. A notable step forward in obtaining reduced tariffs in Europe was the decision by the earth-station owners at Buitrago (Spain), Fucino (Italy) and Pleumeur-Bodou (France), prompted by the EBU Members in those countries, to operate charges not exceeding those applied in the United States half of the space segment. The EBU has decided that in 1971-72 the three stations will be used exclusively in equal proportions for all Eurovision news and programme exchanges to and from Europe. It is hoped the other European earth stations will eventually operate similar tariffs.

In 1970, 645 programmes (668 in 1969) of a duration of 986 hours (951) were transmitted on the Eurovision Network and received by an average of 7 television services. In addition, 3,800 recorded news items were distributed over the network (3,000 in 1969) to an average of over 11 television news services, giving a total of 42,270 relays.

No new countries were added to the network in 1970-71 but an interesting development took place in North Africa where Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia were linked laterally for the first time, in addition to the existing direct individual links to the European mainland. The present equipment is of a temporary nature but will be gradually improved. The three nation link-up is known as Maghreb-vision.

With the Winter Olympic Games at Sapporo in Japan and the Summer Olympics in Munich, 1972 will be an exceptionally busy year for EBU member organizations. A special Operations Group has been set up for Sapporo to work with Nippon Hoso Kyokai (NHK), while coverage of the Munich Games will be assured on behalf of all Members by the two German broadcasting organizations, ARD and ZDF.

PUBLICATIONS

EBU Review (monthly in English and French editions).
The Review is divided into two parts: A—Technical,
B—General and Legal.

Annual Report of Activities; General, Legal and Technical Monographs; Reports of seminars and workshops for producers and directors of educational television and of programmes for children and young people; Lists of European broadcasting stations (long- and medium-wave and VHF sound broadcasting and television).

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

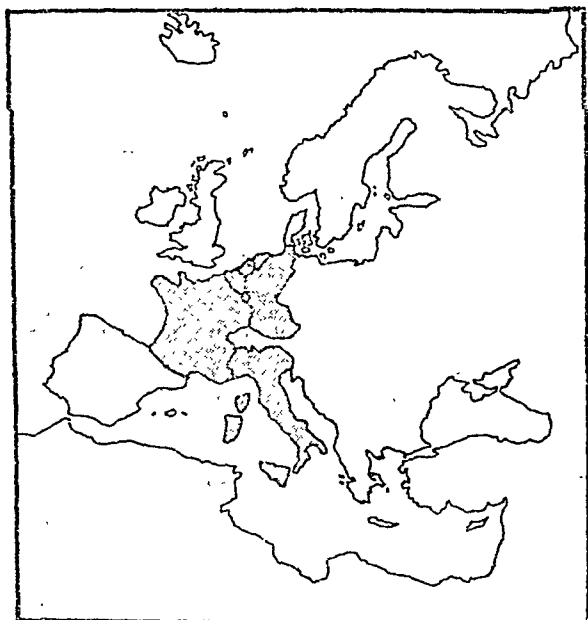

THE EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY—EEC

(The Common Market)

THE EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY—ECSC

THE EUROPEAN ATOMIC ENERGY COMMUNITY—EURATOM

The three European Communities are legally separate but share a common European Parliament and Court of Justice. There are common legal, statistical and information services. A treaty merging the Councils of Ministers of the three Communities into a single Council and the Commissions into a single Commission was signed in April 1965; the merger took place in July 1967.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

1967 cont.	May	Conclusion of the Kennedy Round of Tariff Negotiations under GATT. Applications for Community membership lodged by U.K., Denmark and Ireland.	July	Six agree to co-ordinate more closely their economic and monetary policies and to set up a common fund to hold part of their reserves. Second Yaoundé Convention of Association between 18 African States signed.
	July	Following ratification in June of the April 1965 Treaty for the merger of the Community institutions, a single executive Commission and a single Council of Ministers for the three Communities were established. A common Community price instituted for intra-Community trade in cereals, poultry, eggs and pigmeat. Norway requests membership of the Community. Sweden requests negotiations to establish a link with the Community.	Aug.	French franc devalued leading to a two-year isolation of the French market from application of common farm prices.
			Sept.	Representatives of the East African Community and the EEC renew the Arusha Agreement.
			Oct.	The Six agree to submit proposals for a new world preference system for the developing countries to UNCTAD.
1968	July	Establishment of the customs union. Remaining tariffs on trade between member states are removed and the Common External Tariff is introduced. Association Agreement between the EEC and the three countries forming the East African Community (Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya) signed at Arusha. Common market regulations for beef and veal, milk and dairy products and sugar come into force. Free movement of labour introduced. Council adopts five regulations laying foundations for common transport policy.	Nov.	Following the German revaluation of October 26th the Commission, in a proposition to the Council decided on compensatory measures in favour of German farmers. A Commission memorandum to the Council proposed price cuts for wheat, rye and butter, and lower production quotas for sugar. Exploratory talks were held between the EEC and the UAR on a preferential trade agreement.
	Sept.	France rejects German plan for trade agreement with U.K. as step to Community membership.	Dec.	Heads of State and Government of the Six meet at a Summit in the Hague and agree to complete outstanding policy measures and to open negotiations with the U.K., Ireland, Denmark and Norway in the second half of 1970. Due to difficulties in Italy and Belgium the deadline for the application of the Value Added Tax is extended to January 1st, 1972. Negotiations begin on a commercial non-preferential agreement between the EEC and Yugoslavia.
	Nov.	Monetary crisis in Europe; Deutsche mark and French franc parities unchanged.
	Dec.	Commission publishes "Mansholt Plan" for radical reform of Community agriculture over a ten-year period, encouraging older, small farmers to retire and others to enlarge their farms, and to take large areas of land out of agricultural production. The Six agree to invite nine other European countries to take part in joint development of up to seventy-two research and development projects in advanced technology. Council agrees on interim solution for EURATOM problem and votes $48m. for 1969 research budget, against $88m. for 1968.	Dec.	Preliminary negotiations open between the EEC and Spain. The Six agree to reorganize the EURATOM research centre. The Six agree on plan to provide the Community with direct revenue from import levies on foodstuffs, import duties on other products and part of value-added tax revenue by stages from 1971. After 1975 the European Parliament will have power to alter the Council's budgetary proposals.
1969	Mar.	Italian Communist members take seats in European Parliament for the first time.	1970	Jan.	The Six agree on a $2,000 mutual-aid reserve fund to counter short-term balance-of-payments troubles.
	April	President de Gaulle resigns.		Feb.	U.K. Government publishes a White Paper on the implications of British acceptance of the European Community structures.
	May	Commission publishes proposals for three-year programme to complete the economic union.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

1970 cont.	Feb. Six agree to set up a committee under Luxembourg Premier Pierre Werner to study implementation of monetary union.
	May Commission produces firm policy proposals to implement Mansholt memorandum on farming reform.
	June At meeting in Luxembourg formal membership negotiations are opened between the Community and four applicants: U.K., Ireland, Norway and Denmark. Regular negotiations meetings take place in subsequent months.
	July New nine-man Commission takes office under President Franco-Maria Malfatti (Italian). Council of Ministers agree to reform European Social Fund to give it more positive role in retraining workers.	June The United Kingdom's negotiations to join EEC are successfully completed after reaching agreement on U.K.'s initial contribution to Community's direct income ("own resources") system and the future of New Zealand's dairy exports to U.K. Future discussions to take place on the modification of common fisheries regulations and outstanding technical issues.
	Oct. Werner Committee on monetary union recommends steps towards achieving this aim by 1980.	July EEC introduces general tariff preferences on manufactured and semi-manufactured goods from 91 developing countries. Negotiations with Ireland and Denmark virtually complete. Norway, Ireland and Denmark are pledged to referendum on European entry in 1972.
	Nov. Continuing negotiations with U.K. show that the main problems to be settled are U.K. imports of New Zealand butter and of sugar, and the size of the British contribution to the European Agricultural Fund. Six governments accept in principle the Commission's proposals to phase in the Werner plan for monetary union.	Oct. Council adopts detailed implementing regulations to bring into effect reformed European Social Fund on January 1st, 1972. Council agrees to limit aids to new investments in developed areas, thus taking first step towards a common regional policy. The House of Commons after a seven-day debate accepts by a majority of 112 the principle of British entry into the EEC.
1971	Jan. Second Yaoundé and Arusha Conventions, signed in July and September 1969 respectively (see above), come into force. EEC's "own resources" system of financing starts to come into operation.	Nov. Three-year non-preferential trade agreement signed with Argentina. Council agrees on mandate for Commission to negotiate special trade treaties with six non-candidate EFTA countries. As from November 10th, U.K. able to ask for consultations on any new Community legislation, thus bringing into effect the "interim period" between the end of negotiations and full membership, although negotiations are not formally completed.
	Feb. Common fisheries policy takes effect after agreement on implementing regulations by Council on January 26th. Following Council sessions on February 8th-9th, the Six launch three-stage plan for complete economic and monetary union by end of 1980.	Dec. The Commission works on the principle of collegiate responsibility but with each member having responsibility for a particular sector.

The functions of the Commission are fourfold: to ensure the application of the provisions of the Treaties and of the provisions enacted by the institutions of the Communities in pursuance thereof; to formulate recommendations or opinions in matters which are the subject of the Treaties, where the latter expressly so provides or where the Commission considers it necessary; to dispose, under the conditions laid down in the Treaties of a power of decision of its own and to participate in the preparation of acts of the Council of Ministers and of the European Parliament; and to exercise the competence conferred on it by the Council of Ministers for the implementation of the rules laid down by the latter.

The Commission is bound to publish an Annual General Report on the activities of the Community, not later than one month before the opening of the session of the European Parliament.

The Commission may not include more than two members having the nationality of the same state; the number of members of the Commission may be amended by a unanimous vote of the Council of Ministers. In the performance of their duties, the members of the Commission are forbidden to seek or accept instructions from any Government or other body, or to engage in any other paid or unpaid professional activity.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governments of the member states acting in common agreement for a renewable term of four years; the President and Vice-Presidents are similarly appointed for renewable terms of two years. Any member of the Commission, if he no longer fulfils the conditions required for the performance of his duties, or if he commits a serious offence, may be declared removed from office by the Court of Justice. The Court may furthermore, on the petition of the Council of Ministers or of the Commission itself, provisionally suspend any member of the Commission from his duties.

Until the entry into force of a Treaty establishing a single European Community, and for a maximum period of three years starting from the date on which its members are nominated, the Commission is composed of fourteen members, who take over the responsibilities of the three former executive bodies. No more than three of these members may be of the same nationality.

The functions of the High Authority of the European Coal and Steel Community and of the Commission of EURATOM were transferred to the merged Commission of the European Communities on July 1st, 1969.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

Council of Ministers of the European Communities

2 rue Ravenstein, Brussels, Belgium

Secretary-General: CHRISTIAN CALMES (Luxembourg).

The Council of Ministers has the double responsibility of ensuring the co-ordination of the general economic policies of the member states and of taking the decisions necessary for carrying out the Treaties.

The Council is composed of representatives of the member states, each Government delegating to it one of its members. The office of President is exercised for a term of six months by each member of the Council in rotation according to the alphabetical order of the member states. Meetings of the Council are called by the President acting on his own initiative or at the request of a member or of the Commission.

The conclusions of the Council can usually be taken by a majority vote; where conclusions require a qualified majority, the votes of its members are weighted as follows: Belgium and the Netherlands 2, the German Federal Republic, France and Italy 4, and Luxembourg 1. Majorities are required for the adoption of any conclusions as follows: twelve votes in cases where the Treaty requires a previous proposal of the Commission, or twelve votes including a favourable vote by at least four members in all other cases. This system of voting has applied for most decisions on internal Community affairs since January 1st, 1966. Abstentions by members either present or represented do not prevent the adoption by the Council of conclusions requiring unanimity. When the Council acts on a proposal of the Commission, it must, where the amendment of such a proposal is involved, act only by means of a unanimous vote; as long as the Council has not so acted, the Commission may amend its original proposal, particularly in cases where the European Parliament has been consulted. The Council may request the Commission to undertake any studies which the Council considers desirable for the achievement of the common objectives, and to submit to it any appropriate proposals.

The functions of the Council of Ministers of the European Coal and Steel Community and of the Council of Ministers of EURATOM were transferred to the merged Council of Ministers of the European Communities on July 1st, 1967.

The task of the European Parliament is to supervise the executive organs of the three Communities, and to debate the Annual General Reports of the three Communities and all other matters of interest to them. It has powers, by a vote of censure of a two-thirds majority, to dismiss the executives of the Communities. It meets seven or eight times a year (normally in Strasbourg) for sessions of up to one week. The annual opening session is in October.

The primary task of the Court of Justice is to ensure the observance of law and justice in the interpretation and application of the Treaties setting up the three Communities. The President of the Court is appointed by the Judges from among their members for a renewable term of three years. The Judges and Advocates-General are appointed for renewable six-year terms by the Governments of the member states. A partial renewal of the Court takes place every three years, affecting three and four Judges alternately as well as one of the two Advocates-General. The Court has full jurisdiction to settle all disputes within the Communities and to award penalties. It may review the legal validity of acts (other than recommendations or opinions) of the executives and is competent to give judgment on appeals by a member state or the executives on grounds of incompetence, of errors of substantial form, of infringement of the Treaties or of any legal provision relating to their application, or of abuse of power. Any natural or legal person may, under the same conditions, appeal against a decision addressed to him or against a decision which, although in the form of a regulation or decision addressed to another person, is of direct and specific concern to him.

The Court is also empowered to hear cases concerning compensation for damage, disputes between the Communities and their employees, fulfilment by member states of the obligations arising under the Statute of the European Investment Bank, arbitration clauses contained in any contract concluded, under public or private law, by or on behalf of the Communities and disputes between member states in connection with the objects of the Treaties, where such disputes are submitted to it under the terms of a compromise. It also gives pre-judicial rulings at the request of national courts on the interpretation of the Treaties or of Community legislation.

Economic and Social Committee

3 Boulevard de l'Empereur, Brussels, Belgium

President: J. D. KUIPERS.

Vice-Presidents: A. ASCHOFF, M. BOULADOUX.

Members: 101 persons representing economic and social fields, 12 each from Belgium and the Netherlands, 24 each from France, Federal Germany and Italy and 5 from Luxembourg. One-third represent each side of industry and one-third the general economic interest. Appointed for a renewable term of four years by the unanimous vote of the Council of Ministers of the European Communities (Euratom is also represented in this Committee). Members are appointed in their personal capacity and are not bound by any mandatory instructions.

The Committee is advisory and is consulted by the Council of Ministers or by the Commission of the European Communities, particularly with regard to agriculture and transport.

Specialized Bodies

Monetary Committee. Advises the Commission and Council of Ministers on monetary matters, promotes the co-ordination of national monetary policies and reviews the monetary and financial situation of member countries and the general payments system. Consists of two members nominated by each of the Six and two from the Commission.

Short-term Economic Policy Committee. Assists member countries in co-ordinating their day-to-day economic policies and in maintaining a steady rate of economic expansion. Composed of representatives of national governments and of the Commission.

Medium-term Economic Policy Committee. During 1965 and 1966 prepared a draft five-year programme setting out foreseeable trends in the Community economy and making general policy recommendations. The programme, adopted by the Council in February 1967, will be brought up to date and expanded each year, and will provide a framework for co-ordination of national economic policies and for the various common policies to be worked out at Community level. Comprises representatives of national governments and of the Commission.

Budgetary Policy Committee. Composed of leading officials responsible for drawing up the budgets of member governments, and of Commission representatives.

Committee of Central Bank Governors. Meets to discuss credit, money-market and exchange matters, with a member of the Commission attending.

Transport Committee. Consists of national officials and experts. A Common Transport Policy, to come into effect by 1973, was agreed in June 1965. The first stage deals with international transport and the second will include national transport. Common transport prices are to be established before the end of the second stage.

Administrative Commission for the Social Security of Migrant Workers. Protects the interests of Community citizens working in a member country other than their own. Comprises national officials and representatives of the Commission.

Board of Directors: ANTHONY IJ. A. LOOIJEN, RAYMOND DENUCE, UGO MOSCA, HERBERT MARTINI, ALFRED MUELLER-ARMACK, MAURICE PÉROUSE, GASTONE MICONI, HANS-HERBERT WEBER, SALVATORE GUIDOTTI, JACQUES DE LAROSIÈRE DE CHAMPFEU, ANDRÉ POSTEL-VINAY.

Management Committee:

President: YVES LE PORTZ (France).

Vice-Presidents: ULRICH MEYER-CORDING (German Federal Republic), SJOERD BOOMSTRA (Netherlands), LUCA ROSANIA (Italy).

Members: The six Governments of the Community.

The task of the European Investment Bank is to contribute, by calling on the capital markets and its own resources, to the balanced and smooth development of the Common Market in the interest of the Community. For this purpose, the Bank is to grant loans and guarantees on a non-profit-making basis to facilitate the financing of projects for developing less-developed regions, for modernizing or converting enterprises or for creating new activities which are called for by the progressive establishment of the Common Market where such projects by their size or nature cannot be entirely financed by the various means available in each of the member states, and projects of common interest to several member states which similarly cannot be entirely financed by each of the member states.

The members of the Bank are the Governments of the six member states of the Community. Its subscribed capital was raised from 1,000 to 1,500 million European Monetary Agreement Accounting Units in April 1971, with the percentages subscribed by member states retained as follows: France and the Federal German Republic 30 per cent; Italy 24 per cent; Belgium 8.65 per cent; the Netherlands 7.15 per cent; Luxembourg 0.2 per cent. Members will pay 10 per cent of this increase—50 million units—in two instalments, on January 1st, 1973, and January 1st, 1974. Under the new arrangements, paid-up capital will represent 20 per cent of the total. The Bank raises most of its working capital on the open international capital markets.

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY—EEC

(THE COMMON MARKET)

The creation of the European Economic Community was decided upon at a Conference of Foreign Ministers of six European Coal and Steel Community nations at Messina in June 1955.

Negotiations continued into 1957 and the treaties setting up the European Economic Community and the European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM) were signed in Rome on March 25th, 1957. These treaties were ratified by the parliaments of the member states during the summer and autumn of 1957 and came into force on January 1st, 1958.

The aim of the European Economic Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living of the peoples of the member states and closer relations between them.

This aim is to be achieved by various measures, of which the following are the most significant:

- (a) the elimination of import and export duties and restrictions;
- (b) the establishment of a common tariff and common commercial policy;
- (c) the establishment of free movement of persons, services and capital;
- (d) the inauguration of common agricultural and transport policies;
- (e) the establishment of a system of fair competition;
- (f) measures to co-ordinate economic policy and adjust balances of payments;
- (g) the approximation of municipal law in the member states;
- (h) the creation of a Social Fund and a European Investment Bank; and
- (i) the association of overseas countries and territories related to certain member states.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

ASSOCIATION AGREEMENTS

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP OF OR ASSOCIATION WITH THE EEC

The following countries have applied for membership of the EEC: United Kingdom* (August 1961 and May 1967), Denmark* (August 1961 and May 1967), Ireland* (August 1961 and May 1967), Norway* (April 1962 and July 1967).

In addition to the formal negotiations with the above countries, the Community in November 1970 began talks with the non-applicant EFTA members—Iceland, Sweden, Finland, Portugal, Switzerland and Austria—which seek some form of closer association but not full membership.

The following countries have also applied for association, or some form of trade agreement with the EEC: Cyprus (December 1962 and January 1971), Nigeria† (September 1963), Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda‡ (November 1963), Algeria (January 1968), Mauritius (November 1971).

Trade Agreements have been signed with Iran (October 1963), Israel (July 1964 and renewed in new form June 1970), Lebanon (March 1965), Spain (June 1970), Malta (end 1970), Morocco (March 1969), Tunisia (March 1969), Yugoslavia (March 1970), Argentina (November 1971).

* Treaty of Accession signed January 22nd, 1972.

† Signed July 1966 and expired without being ratified.

‡ Signed July 1968 and renewed in September 1969.

Organs of Association

Association agreements have been signed by the members of the EEC and Greece (came into force November 1962); Turkey (came into force December 1964): the eighteen signatory states in Africa and Madagascar of the Yaoundé Convention (first Yaoundé Convention 1964-69, second Yaoundé Convention signed July 1969, will terminate on January 31st, 1975); Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda (signed July 1968, renewed September 1969). Each agreement establishes a separate institutional framework. Since the Greek military coup of April 1967 the agreement with Greece has been in suspense.

Association Agreements with Greece and Turkey. An Association Council, comprising representatives of the Community governments and of the Commission on the one hand; and of the associated country on the other, supervises the implementation of the agreements. Parliamentary Committees, comprising members of the European Parliament and of the parliaments of the associated country, meet regularly to debate the progress of the Associations and other matters of common interest.

Yaoundé Convention. The Association Council consists of one minister from each of the associated states and from each of the Community members, and of the members of the Commission. The Association Committee conducts the day-to-day business of the Association and consists of representatives from the twenty-four signatory countries. The Parliamentary Conference meets annually and comprises 108 members of parliament, half of them from the eighteen associated states and half from the European Parliament. An Arbitration Court, with a president and two European and two African judges, can be appointed to settle any disputes which may arise.

Arusha Agreement. A Parliamentary Committee meets once a year and an Association Council administers the agreement.

SUMMARY OF EEC TREATY (TREATY OF ROME)

PART I. PRINCIPLES

The aim of the Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote throughout the Community a harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living and closer relations between its member states. With these aims in view, the activities of the Community will include:

- (a) the elimination between member states of customs duties and of quantitative restrictions in regard to the importation and exportation of goods, as well as of all other measures with equivalent effect;
- (b) the establishment of a common customs tariff and a common commercial policy towards third countries;

- (c) the abolition between member states of the obstacles to the free movement of persons, services and capital;
- (d) the inauguration of a common agricultural policy;
- (e) the inauguration of a common transport policy;
- (f) the establishment of a system ensuring that competition shall not be distorted in the Common Market;
- (g) the application of procedures that will make it possible to co-ordinate the economic policies of member states and to remedy disequilibria in their balance of payments;
- (h) the approximation of their respective municipal law to the extent necessary for the functioning of the Common Market;

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

- (i) the creation of a European Social Fund in order to improve the possibilities of employment for workers and to contribute to the raising of their standard of living;
- (j) the establishment of a European Investment Bank intended to facilitate the economic expansion of the Community through the creation of new resources; and
- (k) the association of overseas countries and territories with the Community with a view to increasing trade and to pursuing jointly their effort toward economic and social development.

Member states, acting in close collaboration with the institutions of the Community, shall co-ordinate their respective economic policies to the extent that is necessary to attain the objectives of the Treaty; the institutions of the Community shall take care not to prejudice the internal and external financial stability of the member states. Within the field of application of the Treaty and without prejudice to certain special provisions which it contains, any discrimination on the grounds of nationality shall be hereby prohibited.

The Common Market shall be progressively established in the course of a transitional period of twelve years. This transitional period shall be divided into three stages of four years each; the length of each stage may be modified in accordance with the provisions set out below.

Transition from the first to the second stage shall be conditional upon a confirmatory statement to the effect that the essence of the objectives laid down in the Treaty for the first stage has been in fact achieved, and that all obligations have been observed. Failing a unanimous vote by the Council of Ministers at the end of the fourth year, the first stage shall be automatically extended for a period of one year. A similar procedure may be followed at the end of the sixth year if the first stage has in fact been extended. If at the end of the seventh year a unanimous vote is not forthcoming to proceed to the second stage, the Council of Ministers shall appoint an Arbitration Board whose decision shall bind both member states and Community institutions. The second and third stages may not be extended or curtailed except by a decision of the Council acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission. These provisions shall not have the effect of extending the transitional period beyond a total duration of fifteen years after the date of entry into force of the Treaty.

PART II. BASES OF THE COMMUNITY

FREE MOVEMENT OF GOODS

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new import or export customs duties, or charges with equivalent effect, and from increasing such duties or charges as they apply in their commercial relations with each other. Member states shall progressively abolish between themselves all import and export customs duties, charges with an equivalent effect, and also customs duties of a fiscal nature. Independently of these provisions, any member state may, in the course of the transitional period, suspend in whole or in part the collection of import duties applied by it to products imported from other member states, or may carry out the foreseen reductions more rapidly than laid down in the Treaty if its general economic situation and the situation of the sector so concerned permit.

A common customs tariff shall be established, which, subject to certain conditions (especially with regard to the Italian tariff), shall be at the level of the arithmetical average of the duties applied in the four customs territories (i.e. France, Germany, Italy and Benelux) covered by the Community. This customs tariff shall be applied in its entirety not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period. Member states may follow an independent accelerating process similar to that allowed for reduction of inter-Community customs duties.

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect, and existing restrictions and measures shall be abolished not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period. These provisions shall not be an obstacle to prohibitions or restrictions in respect of importation, exportation or transit which are justified on grounds of public morality, health or safety, the protection of human or animal life or health, the preservation of plant life, the protection of national treasures of artistic, historic or archaeological value or the protection of industrial and commercial property. Such prohibitions or restrictions shall not, however, constitute either a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between member states. Member states shall progressively adjust any state monopolies of a commercial character in such a manner as will ensure the exclusion, at the end of the transitional period, of all discrimination between the nationals of member states in regard to conditions of supply and marketing of goods. These provisions shall apply to any body by means of which a member state shall de jure or de facto either directly or indirectly, control or appreciably influence importation or exportation between member states, and also to monopolies assigned by the state. In the case of a commercial monopoly which is accompanied by regulations designed to facilitate the marketing or the valorisation of agricultural products, it should be ensured that in the application of these provisions equivalent guarantees are provided in respect of the employment and standard of living of the producers concerned.

The obligations incumbent on member states shall be binding only to such extent as they are compatible with existing international agreements.

AGRICULTURE

The Common Market shall extend to agriculture and trade in agricultural products. The common agricultural policy shall have as its objectives:

- (a) the increase of agricultural productivity by developing technical progress and by ensuring the rational development of agricultural production and the optimum utilisation of the factors of production, particularly labour;
- (b) the ensurance thereby of a fair standard of living for the agricultural population;
- (c) the stabilisation of markets;
- (d) regular supplies;
- (e) reasonable prices in supplies to consumers.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

Due account must be taken of the particular character of agricultural activities, arising from the social structure of agriculture and from structural and natural disparities between the various agricultural regions; of the need to make the appropriate adjustments gradually; and of the fact that in member states agriculture constitutes a sector which is closely linked with the economy as a whole. With a view to developing a common agricultural policy during the transitional period and the establishment of it not later than at the end of the period, a common organisation of agricultural markets shall be effected.

FREE MOVEMENT OF PERSONS, SERVICES AND CAPITAL

Workers: The free movement of workers shall be ensured within the Community not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period, involving the abolition of any discrimination based on nationality between workers of the member states as regards employment, remuneration and other working conditions. This shall include the right to accept offers of employment actually made, to move about freely for this purpose within the territory of the member states, to stay in any member state in order to carry on an employment in conformity with the legislative and administrative provisions governing the employment of the workers of that state, and to live, on conditions which shall be the subject of implementing regulations laid down by the Commission, in the territory of a member state after having been employed there. (These provisions do not apply to employment in the public administration).

In the field of social security, the Council shall adopt the measures necessary to effect the free movement of workers, in particular, by introducing a system which permits an assurance to be given to migrant workers and their beneficiaries that, for the purposes of qualifying for and retaining the rights to benefits and of the calculation of these benefits, all periods taken into consideration by the respective municipal law of the countries concerned shall be added together, and that these benefits will be paid to persons resident in the territories of the member states.

Right of Establishment: Restrictions on the freedom of establishment of nationals of a member state in the territory of another member state shall be progressively abolished during the transitional period, nor may any new restrictions of a similar character be introduced. Such progressive abolition shall also extend to restrictions on the setting up of agencies, branches or subsidiaries. Freedom of establishment shall include the right to engage in and carry on non-wage-earning activities, and also to set up and manage enterprises and companies under the conditions laid down by the law of the country of establishment for its own nationals, subject to the provisions of this Treaty relating to capital.

Services: Restrictions on the free supply of services within the Community shall be progressively abolished in the course of the transitional period in respect of nationals of member states who are established in a state of the Community other than that of the person to whom the services are supplied; no new restrictions of a similar character may be introduced. The Council, acting by a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, may extend the benefit of these provisions to cover services supplied by nationals of any third country who are established within the Community.

Particular services involved are activities of an industrial or artisan character and those of the liberal professions.

Capital: Member states shall during the transitional period progressively abolish between themselves restrictions on the movement of capital belonging to persons resident in the member states, and also any discriminatory treatment based on the nationality or place of residence of the parties or on the place in which such capital is invested. Current payments connected with movements of capital between member states shall be freed from all restrictions not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period.

Member states shall endeavour to avoid introducing within the Community any new exchange restrictions which affect the movement of capital and current payments connected with such movements, and making existing rules more restrictive.

TRANSPORT

With a view to establishing a common transport policy, the Council of Ministers shall, acting on a proposal of the Commission and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee and the European Parliament, lay down common rules applicable to international transport effected from or to the territory of a member state or crossing the territory of one or more member states, conditions for the admission of non-resident carriers to national transport services within a member state and any other appropriate provisions. Until these have been enacted and unless the Council of Ministers gives its unanimous consent, no member state shall apply the various provisions governing this subject at the date of the entry into force of this Treaty in such a way as to make them less favourable, in their direct or indirect effect, for carriers of other member states by comparison with its own national carriers.

Any discrimination which consists in the application by a carrier, in respect of the same goods conveyed in the same circumstances, of transport rates and conditions which differ on the ground of the country of origin or destination of the goods carried, shall be abolished in the traffic of the Community not later than at the end of the second stage of the transitional period.

A Committee with consultative status, composed of experts appointed by the governments of the member states, shall be established and attached to the Commission, without prejudice to the competence of the transport section of the Economic and Social Committee.

PART III. POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY

COMMON RULES

Enterprises: The following practices by enterprises are prohibited: the direct or indirect fixing of purchase or selling prices or of any other trading conditions; the limitation or control of production, markets, technical development of investment; market-sharing or the sharing of sources of supply; the application to parties to transactions of unequal terms in respect of equivalent supplies, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; the subjection of the conclusion of a contract to the acceptance by a party of additional supplies which, either by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contract. The provisions may be declared inapplicable if the agreements neither impose on the enterprises concerned any restrictions not indispensable to the attainment of improved production, distribution or technical progress, nor enable enterprises to eliminate competition in respect of a substantial proportion of the goods concerned.

Dumping: If, in the course of the transitional period, the Commission, at the request of a member state or of any other interested party, finds that dumping practices exist within the Common Market, it shall issue recommendations to the originator of such practices with a view to bringing them to an end. Where such practices continue, the Commission shall authorise the member state injured to take protective measures of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars.

Re-importation within the Community shall be free of all customs duties, quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect.

Aid granted by States: Any aid granted by a member state or granted by means of state resources which is contrary to the purposes of the treaty is forbidden. The following shall be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids of a social character granted without discrimination to individual consumers;
- (b) aids intended to remedy damage caused by natural calamities or other extraordinary events;
- (c) aids granted to the economy of certain regions of the Federal German Republic affected by the division of Germany, to the extent that they are necessary to compensate for the economic disadvantages caused by the division.

The following may be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids intended to promote the economic development of regions where the standard of living is abnormally low or where there exists serious under-employment;
- (b) aids intended to promote the execution of important projects of common European interest or to remedy a serious economic disturbance of the economy of a member state;
- (c) aids intended to facilitate the development of certain activities or of certain economic regions, provided that such aids do not change trading conditions to such a degree as would be contrary to the common interest;
- (d) such other categories of aids as may be specified by a decision of the Council of Ministers acting on a proposal of the Commission.

The Commission is charged to examine constantly all systems of aids existing in the member states, and may require any member state to abolish or modify any aid which it finds to be in conflict with the principles of the Common Market.

Fiscal Provisions: A member state shall not impose, directly or indirectly, on the products of other member states, any internal charges of any kind in excess of those applied directly or indirectly to like domestic products.

Furthermore, a member state shall not impose on the product of other member states any internal charges of such a nature as to afford indirect protection to other productions. Member states shall, not later than at the beginning of the second stage of the transitional period, abolish or amend any provisions existing at the date of the entry into force of the Treaty which are contrary to these rules. Products exported to any member state may not benefit from any drawback on internal charges in excess of those charges imposed directly or indirectly on them. Subject to these conditions, any member states which levy a turnover tax calculated by a cumulative multi-stage system may, in the case of internal charges imposed by them on imported products or of drawbacks granted by them on exported products, establish average rates for specific products or groups of products.

Approximation of Laws: The Council, acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, shall issue directives for the approximation of such legislative and administrative provisions of the member states as have a direct incidence on the establishment or functioning of the Common Market. The European Parliament and the Economic and Social Committee shall be consulted concerning any directives whose implementation in one or more of the member states would involve amendment of legislative provisions.

ECONOMIC POLICY

Balance of Payments: Member states are charged to co-ordinate their economic policies in order that each may ensure the equilibrium of their overall balances of payments and maintain confidence in their currency, together with a high level of employment and stability of prices. In order to promote this co-ordination a Monetary Committee is established (see section on Organization, above).

Each member state engages itself to treat its policy with regard to exchange rates as a matter of common interest. Where a member state is in difficulties or seriously threatened with difficulties as regards its balance of payments as a result either of overall disequilibrium of the balance of payments or of the kinds of currency at its disposal, and where such difficulties are likely, in particular, to prejudice the functioning of the Common Market or the progressive establishment of the common commercial policy, the Commission shall examine the situation and indicate the measures which it recommends to the state concerned to adopt; if this action proves insufficient to overcome the difficulties, the Commission shall, after consulting the Monetary Committee, recommend to the Council of Ministers the granting of mutual assistance. This mutual assistance may take the form of:

- (a) concerted action in regard to any other international organization to which the member states may have recourse;
- (b) any measures necessary to avoid diversions of commercial traffic where the state in difficulty maintains or re-establishes quantitative restrictions with regard to third countries;
- (c) the granting of limited credits by other member states, subject to their agreement.

Furthermore, during the transitional period, mutual assistance may also take the form of special reductions in customs duties or enlargements of quotas. If the mutual assistance recommended by the Commission is not granted by the Council, or if the mutual assistance granted and the measures taken prove insufficient, the Commission shall authorise the state in difficulties to take measures of safeguard, of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars. In the case of a sudden balance-of-payments crisis, any member state may take immediate provisional measures of safeguard, which must be submitted to the consideration of the Commission as soon as possible. On the basis of an opinion of the Commission and after consulting the Monetary Committee, the Council may decide that the state concerned shall amend, suspend or abolish such measures.

Commercial Policy: Member states shall co-ordinate their commercial relations with third countries in such a way as to bring about, not later than at the expiry of the transitional period, the conditions necessary to the implementation of a common policy in the matter of external trade. After the expiry of the transitional period, the common commercial policy shall be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to tariff amendments, the conclusion of tariff or trade agreements, the alignment of measures of liberalisation, export policy and protective commercial measures, including measures to be taken in cases of dumping or subsidies. The Commission will be authorised to conduct negotiations with third countries. As from the end of the transitional period, member states shall, in respect of all matters of particular interest in regard to the Common Market, within the framework of any international organizations of an economic character, only proceed by way of common action. The Commission shall for this purpose submit to the Council of Ministers proposals concerning the scope and implementation of such common action. During the transitional period, member states shall consult with each other with a view to concerting their action and, as far as possible, adopting a uniform attitude.

SOCIAL POLICY

Social Provisions: Without prejudice to the other provisions of the Treaty and in conformity with its general objectives, it shall be the aim of the Commission to promote close collaboration between member states in the social field, particularly in matters relating to employment, labour legislation and working conditions, occupational and continuation training, social security, protection against occupational accidents and diseases, industrial hygiene, the law as to trade unions and collective bargaining between employers and workers.

Each member state shall in the course of the first stage of the transitional period ensure and subsequently maintain the application of the principle of equal pay for men and women.

The European Social Fund: See the section on Organisation above.

The European Investment Bank: See the section on Organisation above.

PART IV. OVERSEAS COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

The member states agree to bring into association with the Community the non-European countries and territories which have special relations with Belgium, France, Italy and the Netherlands in order to promote the economic and social development of these countries and territories and to establish close economic relations between them and the Community as a whole.

Member states shall, in their commercial exchanges with the countries and territories, apply the same rules which they apply among themselves pursuant to the Treaty. Each country or territory shall apply to its commercial exchanges with member states and with the other countries and territories the same rules which it applied in respect of the European state with which it has special relations. Member states shall contribute to the investments required by the progressive development of these countries and territories.

Customs duties on trade between member states and the countries and territories are to be progressively abolished according to the same timetable as for trade between the member states themselves. The countries and territories may, however, levy customs duties which correspond to the needs of their development and to the requirements of their industrialisation or which, being of a fiscal nature, have the object of contributing to their budgets.

(The Convention implementing these provisions is concluded for a period of five years only from the date of entry into force of the Treaty.)

PART V. INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY PROVISIONS GOVERNING INSTITUTIONS

For accounts of the European Parliament, the Council of Ministers, the Commission, the Economic and Social Committee, the Monetary Committee, the European Investment Bank, the European Social Fund and the Development Fund, see the section of Organization above.

For the achievement of their aims and under the conditions provided for in the Treaty, the Council and the Commission shall adopt regulations and directives, make decisions and formulate recommendations or opinions. Regulations shall have a general application and shall be binding in every respect and directly applicable in each member state. Directives shall bind any member state to which they are addressed, as to the result to be achieved, while leaving to domestic agencies a competence as to form and means. Decisions shall be binding in every respect for the addressees named therein. Recommendations and opinions shall have no binding force.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Estimates shall be drawn up for each financial year for all revenues and expenditures of the Community, including those relating to the European Social Fund, and shall be shown in the budget.

The revenues of the budget shall comprise (apart from those contributions which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund, and apart from any other revenues) the financial contributions of member states fixed according to the following scale:

Belgium	7.9
France	28.0
Italy	28.0
German Federal Republic . .	28.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.9

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

The financial contributions of the member states which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund shall be fixed according to the following scale:

Belgium	8.8
France	32.0
Italy	20.0
German Federal Republic	32.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.0

The Commission shall implement the budget on its own responsibility and within the limits of the appropriations made. The Council of Ministers shall:

- (a) lay down the financial regulations specifying, in particular, the procedure to be adopted for establishing and implementing the budget, and for rendering and auditing accounts;
- (b) determine the methods and procedure whereby the contributions by member states shall be made available to the Commission; and
- (c) establish rules concerning the responsibility of pay-commissioners and accountants and arrange for the relevant supervision.

PART VI. GENERAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Member states shall, in so far as is necessary, engage in negotiations with each other with a view to ensuring for the benefit of their nationals:

- (a) the protection of persons as well as the enjoyment and protections of rights under the conditions granted by each state to its own nationals;
- (b) the elimination of double taxation within the Community;
- (c) the mutual recognition of companies, the maintenance of their legal personality in cases where the registered office is transferred from one country to another, and the possibility for companies subject to the municipal law of different member states to form mergers; and
- (d) the simplification of the formalities governing the reciprocal recognition and execution of judicial decisions and arbitral awards.

Within a period of three years after the date of the entry into force of the Treaty, member states shall treat nationals of other member states in the same manner, as regards financial participation by such nationals in the capital of companies, as they treat their own nationals, without prejudice to the application of the other provisions of the Treaty.

The Treaty shall in no way prejudice the system existing in member states in respect of property.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not detract from the following rules:

- (a) no member state shall be obliged to supply information the disclosure of which it considers contrary to the essential interests of its security;
- (b) any member state may take the measures which it considers necessary for the protection of the essential interests of its security, and which are connected with the production of or the trade in arms, ammunition and war material; such measures shall not, however, prejudice conditions of competition in the Common Market in respect of products not intended for specifically military purposes.

The list of products to which (b) applies shall be determined by the Council in the course of the first year after the date of entry into force of the Treaty. The list may be subsequently amended by the unanimous vote of the Council on a proposal of the Commission.

Member states shall consult one another for the purpose of enacting in common the necessary provisions to prevent the functioning of the Common Market from being affected by measures which a member state may be called upon to take in case of serious internal disturbances affecting public order, in case of war or serious international tension constituting a threat of war or in order to carry out undertakings into which it has entered for the purpose of maintaining peace and international security.

In the course of the transitional period, where there are serious difficulties which are likely to persist in any sector of economic activity or difficulties which may seriously impair the economic situation in any region, any member state may ask for authorisation to take measures of safeguard in order to restore the situation and adapt the sector concerned to the Common Market economy.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not affect those of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community, nor those of the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community; nor shall they be an obstacle to the existence or completion of regional unions between Belgium and Luxembourg, and between Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in so far as the objectives of these regional unions are not achieved by the application of this Treaty.

The government of any member state of the Commission may submit to the Council proposals for the revision of the Treaty.

Any European state may apply to become a member of the Community.

The Community may conclude with a third country, a union of states or an international organisation agreements creating an association embodying reciprocal rights and obligations, joint actions and special procedures.

The Treaty is concluded for an unlimited period.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

FINANCING THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY

Under Article 200 of the Rome Treaty the budget of the EEC is contributed by the member states according to a fixed key: France, Germany and Italy 28 per cent each; Belgium and the Netherlands 7.9 per cent each; and Luxembourg 0.2 per cent. The European Social Fund is financed in a similar fashion but with different proportions. The Euratom and ECSC Treaties lay down the means of financing those two Communities.

With the establishment of the common agricultural policy, variations on this basic EEC key were introduced for the years 1962-67 for agricultural expenditure. From July 1st, 1967, to December 31st, 1969, the budget of the European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund was financed in part by the payment to the Community of 90 per cent of the product of the levies imposed on imports into the Community of foodstuffs subject to the common agricultural policy. The remaining revenue was raised by direct contributions by the member states in the following proportions: France 32 per cent; Germany 31.2 per cent; Italy 20.3 per cent; Netherlands 8.2 per cent; Belgium 8.1 per cent; Luxembourg 0.2 per cent. These proportions represent the gross contributions to the Fund. The effect of the payments from the Fund to support Community agriculture (particularly to make export refunds) has been to make France and the Netherlands net recipients from the Fund, with the other member states making net contributions.

Under Article 201 of the Rome Treaty the Commission is empowered to propose what means of financing the Community be adopted after the completion of the common external tariff (which took place on July 1st, 1968), in particular whether the direct state contributions shall be replaced by the revenue from the common tariff. In the summer of 1969 the Commission published proposals for giving the Community its own direct revenues, and these formed the basis of the agreement reached between the six governments on December 22nd, 1969.

"Own resources" financing system: The Community's definitive financing system started to come into force on January 1st, 1971. Over the seven years ending on January 1st, 1978, the Community will phase in a system whereby its budget will be provided by automatic payments made over by the member governments from the revenue they collect in import levies and duties and part of the standard value-added tax introduced or being introduced in all six countries. From 1978 the Community will be financially autonomous. At the same time, the powers of budgetary control by the European Parliament will be increased.

The system is being introduced in two phases. From 1971 to 1974 inclusive, the Community's resources will be provided from:

- (a) the total value of the levies collected on agricultural imports;
- (b) an annually increasing proportion of the revenue from customs duties on other imports, starting with up to half of the total levies and duties (less 10 per cent returned to the member states for administrative costs of collecting duties and levies);

(c) direct contributions from the member states, according to an agreed key, to cover any shortfall.

From 1975 Community expenditure will be financed by all the levy and customs-duty revenue (less 10 per cent for administration) and the revenue of up to one per cent rate of value-added tax (not one per cent of the VAT revenue).

From January 1st, 1971, until December 31st, 1974, the amount paid by any single member country will not be able to rise by more than 1 per cent or fall by more than 1½ per cent compared with the previous year.

From January 1st, 1975, to the end of 1977, it will be able to rise or fall by 2 per cent compared with the previous year's level. These permitted annual fluctuations are based on the percentage contributions of each member state for the reference year 1970, when virtually the whole of the Community's operations was financed by national contributions, in the following proportions: Belgium 8.25 per cent, Germany 31.70, France 28.00, Italy 21.50, Luxembourg 0.20 and Netherlands 10.35.

The Commission in January 1971 sent the Council a modified version (applying the new system) of the budget adopted by the Council in the previous December; after the Council had decided on its opinion, the European Parliament also had to give its views.

The remaining $2,699 million will be covered by "Community resources" and direct payments by member states.

The Six agreed in April 1970 that, in order to avoid too heavy a burden for member states at the start, a country that paid large contributions under the agricultural levies (because it was a large importer of agricultural products from non-member countries), would pay less in customs duties, or none at all, to Community funds. This situation will gradually change and from 1975 all customs duties will go to the Community automatically. Until then, only the levies will be paid in their entirety to Community funds (less administrative costs); the other payments will be "corrected" to avoid imbalances as indicated above.

An advisory committee has been set up to apply the regulation on the Community's own resources. Composed of up to five representatives for each member state, it will be chaired by a representative of the Commission, which will provide the secretariat. Introduction of the Community's own resources required a treaty amending the Rome and Paris Treaties and the Merger Treaty.

Parliamentary control: At the Council meeting of December 22nd, 1969, the six governments agreed on a draft resolution on the powers of budgetary control to be granted to the European Parliament after 1975. The draft resolution provided for four stages in adopting the budget: (1) The Council draws up an estimate of the expenditure and of revenue, the latter including the rate of value-added tax to be apportioned to the Community's budget; (2) This draft budget may be amended by the European Parliament by a majority vote of its members, though any change in the VAT rate must be within the limits set by the Council Act establishing the Community tax; (3) The Council, acting by qualified majority vote may amend the Parliament's amendments; (4) The Parliament may amend the Council's amendments in the three stages by a vote of a majority of its members and subject to three-fifths of the votes cast being in favour. Should the Parliament not have given a decision within a fixed period the Council's amendments made in the third stage shall be deemed to be adopted.

ASSOCIATION AGREEMENTS

SUMMARY OF THE SECOND YAOUNDE CONVENTION

Articles 1-16: Trade. The basic aim of the Association is free trade between the European Community and each of the associated states. In principle, free trade between the Community and the associated states was introduced on July 1st, 1968, when the Community's common external tariff came into force. However, the associated states retain the right to maintain, reimpose or increase customs duties on imports from the Community (in addition to fiscal duties) in the interests of their revenue, economic development, new industries and balance of payments. Conversely, the Community may impose a degree of protection for products subject to the common agricultural policy, though imports of these or similar products from the associated states are granted preference over imports from third countries.

Article 17-30: Financial and Technical Co-operation. Provide for continued operation of Development Fund and the spending over a five-year period of a total sum of $828 million on the same lines as before and also for promoting the diversification of the economies of the Associated States. The European Investment Bank will make loans of up to a total of $90 million, possibly at low interest rates.

Articles 31-40: Right of Establishment, Services, Payment and Capital.

Articles 41-55: Institutions.

Articles 56-66: General and Final Provisions.

SUMMARY OF THE ARUSHA AGREEMENT

Articles 2-15: Trade. Products originating in the East African Community are admitted to the EEC free of customs duties and charges with equivalent effect, without prejudice to the import rules for products subject to the European Community's common agricultural policy.

Annual quotas are established for unroasted coffee (56,000 metric tons), cloves (120 tons) and tinned pineapple (800 tons). In the event of imports of these products into the EEC exceeding these totals, the EEC is authorized to consult with the exporting countries about measures to avoid disturbing traditional trade flows. The EEC will grant preferential treatment, case by case, to EAC products subject to the common agricultural policy and to processed agricultural products after consultation with the East African countries.

Imports of about sixty products from the EEC into the EAC will be freed of customs duties and equivalent charges, and from quantitative restrictions, though in the interests of their development needs and budgetary revenues the East African states may retain or introduce duties or charges on these products, and retain or impose quotas.

The East African states are free to form customs unions or free-trade areas with African countries of comparable economic development, provided the provisions of this agreement concerning origin are not changed.

Articles 16-20: Establishment. The East African states agree that no discrimination shall be made between nationals or companies of the EEC states in matters of the right of establishment and the provision of services, and that more favourable treatment accorded to the nationals or companies of a third country shall be extended to EEC nationals or companies.

Articles 21-22: Payments and capital.

Articles 23-29: Institutional provisions. An Association Council comprising members of the EEC Council of Ministers and of the Commission and of the governments of the African states presides over the Association, and meets once annually. The Council may appoint a committee to provide continuity of co-operation. A Parliamentary Committee shall meet once a year to discuss matters concerning the Association; it shall consist of equal numbers of members of the European Community countries and the parliaments of the East African states.

Articles 30-38: General and final provisions.

EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY—ECSC

The European Coal and Steel Community is the eldest of the three "sisters" of the European Community. It arose from a declaration made by M. Robert Schuman on May 9th, 1950, urging the necessity of a united Europe. This union could not be achieved all at once, or according to a single, general plan; concrete achievements, stage by stage, and above all the elimination of hostility and suspicion between France and Germany, were the solution. Accordingly he proposed, as a first step, the placing of the coal and steel industries of France and Germany under a common "High Authority", within the framework of an organization open to the participation of the other countries of Europe. Direct political action towards European federation would, at this stage, be doomed to failure, but economic co-operation could be achieved and once gained, would provide a firm foundation for the political federation to come.

The ECSC Treaty was signed in Paris on April 18th, 1951. The Treaty was ratified by substantial majorities in the parliaments of The Six and came into force on July 25th, 1952. The High Authority began its work on August 10th, 1952. The functions of the High Authority and the Council of Ministers as laid down in the ECSC Treaty (see below) were transferred on July 1st, 1967, to the merged Commission and Council of the European Communities respectively. The Consultative Committee now exercises its functions in relation to the Commission.

The ECSC Consultative Committee is attached to the Commission, and consists of not less than thirty and not more than fifty-one members, including an equal number of producers, workers and consumers and dealers. They are appointed by the Council of Ministers for a period of two years, and are not bound by any mandate or instructions.

The Commission may consult the Committee on all matters it deems proper, and is required to do so under certain provisions of the Treaty, particularly with regard to economic and social provisions.

SUMMARY OF ECSC TREATY

THE EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY

The European Coal and Steel Community is based on a common market, common objectives and common institutions. The aims of the Community are to contribute to the expansion of the economy, the development of employment and the improvement of the standard of living in the participating countries through the creation, in harmony with the general economy of the member states, of a common market. With these aims in view, the institutions of the Community are to ensure that the common market is regularly supplied, while taking into account the needs of third countries; to assure to all consumers in comparable positions within the common market equal access to the sources of production; to seek the establishment of the lowest possible prices without involving any corresponding rise either in the prices charged by the same enterprise in other transactions or in the price-level as a whole in another period, while at the same time permitting necessary amortisation and providing the possibility of normal returns on invested capital; to ensure that conditions are maintained which will encourage enterprises to expand and improve their ability to produce and to promote a policy of rational development of natural resources, while avoiding undue exhaustion of such resources; to promote the improvement of the living and working conditions of the labour force in each of the industries under its jurisdiction so as to harmonise those conditions in an upward direction; to foster the development of international trade and ensure that equitable limits are observed in prices charged in foreign markets; and to promote the regular expansion and the modernisation of production as well as the improvement of quality, under conditions which preclude any protection against competing industries except where justified by illegitimate action on the part of such industries or in their favour.

The following are considered incompatible with the common market and are therefore abolished and prohibited:

- (a) import and export duties, or taxes with an equivalent effect, and quantitative restrictions upon the movement of coal and steel;
- (b) measures or practices discriminating among producers, buyers or consumers, especially as concerns prices, delivery terms and transport rates, as well as practices or measures which hamper the buyer in the free choice of his supplier;
- (c) subsidies or state assistance, or special charges imposed by the state, in any form whatsoever;
- (d) restrictive practices tending towards the division or the exploitation of the market.

The Community binds itself to assist the interested parties to take action by collecting information, organising consultations and defining general objectives; to place financial means at the disposal of enterprises for their investments and participate in the expenses of readaptation; to assure the establishment, the maintenance and the observance of the normal conditions of competition, and take direct action with respect to production and the co-operation of the market only when circumstances make it absolutely necessary; and to publish the reasons for its action and take the necessary measures to ensure observance of the rules set forth in the Treaty.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY

(The High Authority and the Council of Ministers of ECSC were merged with the Commissions and Councils of Ministers of the Economic Community and Euratom in July 1967.)

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PROVISIONS

The High Authority is empowered to consult governments and various interested parties such as enterprises, workers, consumers and dealers and their associations, as well as experts, and to gather such information as may be necessary to the accomplishment of its mission. It is not permitted to divulge information which by its nature is considered a trade secret, and in particular information pertaining to the commercial relations or the breakdown of the costs of production of enterprises. With this reservation, it must publish such data as may be useful to governments or to any other interested parties.

The High Authority may impose fines and daily penalty payments upon enterprises which evade their obligations under this title.

Financial Provisions: The High Authority is empowered to procure its funds by imposing a levy on the production of coal and steel, by borrowing, and by receiving grants. The levies are intended to cover administrative expenses, non-repayable assistance relating to readaptation, investments and financial assistance and expenditure devoted to encouraging technical and economic research. Funds obtained by borrowing may only be used to grant loans.

Investments and Financial Assistance: The High Authority may facilitate the carrying out of investment programmes by granting loans to enterprises or by giving its guarantee to other loans which they obtain. With the unanimous agreement of the Council, the High Authority may by the same means assist the financing of works and installations which contribute directly or mainly to an increase of production, to lower production costs, or which facilitate the marketing of products subject to its jurisdiction. The High Authority may require enterprises to submit individual projects in advance, and, having given the interested parties an opportunity to express their views, issue a reasoned opinion on any such projects. If the High Authority finds that the financing of a project or the operation of any proposed installation would require subsidies, assistance, protection or discrimination contrary to the present Treaty, it may issue a binding prohibition to the enterprise in question, forbidding it to use resources other than its own funds to carry out such a project.

The High Authority is obliged to encourage technical and economic research concerning the production and the development of consumption of coal and steel, as well as workers' safety in these industries. If the introduction of technical processes or new equipment, within the framework of the general objectives laid down by the High Authority, should lead to an exceptionally large reduction in labour requirements in the coal or steel industries, making it especially difficult in one or more areas to re-employ the workers discharged, the High Authority, on the request of the interested governments, may facilitate the financing of such programmes as it may approve for the creation, either in the industries subject to its jurisdiction or, with the agreement of the Council, in any other industry, of new and economically sound activities capable of assuring productive employment to the workers thus discharged, and shall grant non-repayable assistance as a contribution to payment of compensation, granting of re-settlement allowances and the financing of technical retraining of workers.

Production: The High Authority is to give preference to the indirect means of action at its disposal, such as co-operation with governments to stabilise or influence general consumption, particularly that of public services, and intervention on prices and commercial policy.

If, in the case of a decline in demand, it considers that the Community is faced with a manifest crisis, it must, after consulting the Consultative Committee and with the agreement of the Council, establish a system of production quotas. Failing this, any member state may bring the matter to the attention of the Council, which, by unanimous vote, may oblige the High Authority to establish a quota system. The High Authority may in particular regulate the rate of operation of enterprises by appropriate levies on tonnages exceeding a reference level defined by a general decision. The sums thus obtained will be earmarked for the support of those enterprises whose rate of production has fallen below the reference level.

If the Community is faced with a serious shortage of certain or of all the products subject to the jurisdiction of the High Authority, the latter must propose appropriate measures to the Council, unless the Council decides to the contrary by unanimous vote. On the basis of these proposals, the Council must establish consumption priorities and determine the allocation of the coal and steel resources of the Community among the industries subject to its jurisdiction, exports and other consumption. On the basis of the consumption priorities thus established, the High Authority is empowered, after consulting the enterprises concerned, to draw up production programmes which the enterprises are obliged to carry out.

Prices: Pricing practices contrary to the provision of Title I are prohibited and in particular unfair competitive practices, especially purely temporary or local price reductions, the purpose of which is to acquire a monopoly within the common market and discriminatory practices involving within the common market the application by a seller of unequal conditions to comparable transactions, especially according to the nationality of the buyer. In certain cases, the High Authority may fix maximum and/or minimum prices for one or more products subject to its jurisdiction, both within the common market and with regard to export.

Agreements and Concentrations: All agreements among enterprises, all decisions of associations of enterprises, and all concerted practices, tending, directly or indirectly, to prevent, restrict or distort the normal operation of competition within the common market are forbidden, and in particular those tending to fix or determine prices, to restrict or control production, technical development or investments, or to allocate markets, products, customers or sources of supply. However, the High Authority may authorise agreements to specialise in the production of, or to engage in the joint buying or selling of specified products, if it finds that this will contribute to a substantial improvement in production or distribution, or that the agreement in question is essential to achieve these results and is not more restrictive than is necessary, or that it is not capable of giving the interested enterprises any discriminatory powers or advantages. Similar regulations apply to concentrations.

Impairment of the Conditions of Competition: If any action of any member state is liable to provoke a serious disequilibrium by substantially increasing differences in costs of production otherwise than through variations in productivity, the High Authority, after consulting the Consultative Committee and the Council, may take the following steps:

If the action of the state produces harmful effects for coal or steel enterprises falling under the jurisdiction of the said state, the High Authority may authorise that state to grant assistance to such enterprises, the amount, conditions and duration of which shall be determined in agreement with the High Authority. The same provisions are to apply in the case of a variation in wages and in working conditions which would have the same effects, even if such variation is not the result of an action by that state.

If the action of that state produces harmful effects for coal and steel enterprises subject to the jurisdiction of other member states, the High Authority may address a recommendation to the said state with a view to remedying these effects by such measures as that state may consider most compatible with its own economic equilibrium.

If the action of the said state reduces differences in costs of production by granting a special advantage to, or by imposing special burdens on, coal or steel enterprises falling under its jurisdiction in comparison with the other industries in the same country, the High Authority is empowered to address the necessary recommendations to the state in question, after consulting the Consultative Committee and the Council.

Wages and Movement of Labour: The methods of fixing wages and social benefits in force in the various member states are not affected by the Treaty, subject to certain provisions.

If the High Authority finds that any wage levels are abnormally low, whether these levels are fixed by enterprises or by government decisions, it may address recommendations to the enterprises concerned or government interested. Similar action may be taken when a lowering of wages entails a drop in the standard of living of the labour force and at the same time is being used as a means of permanent economic adjustment by enterprises or as a means of competition between enterprises. This provision does not apply to:

- (a) overall measures taken by a member state to re-establish its external equilibrium, without prejudice to the possible application of the provisions dealing with the impairment of the conditions of competition;
- (b) wage decreases resulting from the application of a sliding scale established by law or by contract;
- (c) wage decreases resulting from a decrease in the cost of living;
- (d) wage decreases intended to correct abnormal increases previously granted under exceptional circumstances which no longer apply.

With the exception of (a) and (b) above, any wage decrease affecting the whole labour force of an enterprise or a sizeable proportion thereof must be notified to the High Authority.

The member states bind themselves to renounce any restriction, based on nationality, on the employment in the coal and steel industries of workers of recognised qualifications, subject to limitations imposed by the fundamental needs of health and public order. In the case of other (non-qualified) workers and where the expansion of production in the coal and steel industries might be hampered by a shortage of suitable labour, the member states agree to adapt their immigration regulations, and in particular, to facilitate the re-employment of workers from the coal and steel industries of other member states. Any discrimination in payment and working conditions as between national and foreign workers, without prejudice to special measures concerning frontier workers, are prohibited. Social security measures are not to impede the movement of labour.

Transport: In order to implement the application of such transport rates for coal and steel as will make possible comparable price conditions to consumers in comparable positions, discriminations in transport rates and conditions of any kind, which are based on the country of origin or of destination of the products in question are forbidden.

Commercial Policy: Unless otherwise provided in the Treaty, the responsibilities of the governments of the member states for commercial policy are not affected by its application. Minimum rates, below which the member states bind themselves not to lower their customs duties on coal and steel with regard to third countries, and maximum rates, above which they bind themselves not to raise such duties, may be fixed by unanimous decision of the Council upon the proposal of the High Authority, which may act on its own initiative or at the request of a member state. Between these limits, each government is to set its tariffs according to its own national procedure, upon the modification of which the High Authority may issue opinions. The High Authority is empowered to supervise the administration of import and export licences with regard to third countries in the cases of coal and steel. The member states bind themselves to keep the High Authority informed of proposed commercial agreements or similar arrangements as far as they relate to coal, steel or the importation of the other raw materials and of specialised equipment necessary for the production of coal and steel in the member states.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Among the numerous provisions of this title, the following are significant:

The establishment of the Community does not in any way prejudice the system of ownership of the enterprises subject to the provisions of this Treaty.

As far as they are competent to do so, the member states shall take any appropriate measures to guarantee the settling of international accounts arising out of trade in coal and steel within the common market; they will lend each other assistance to facilitate such settlements.

If the High Authority considers that a state has failed in any of the obligations incumbent upon it by virtue of the Treaty, it shall, after permitting the state in question to present its views, take note of the failure in a reasoned decision accompanied by a justification. It shall allow the state in question a period of time within which to provide for the execution of its obligation. Such a state may appeal to the Court's general jurisdiction within a period of two months from the notification of the decision. If the state has not taken steps to fulfil its obligations within the period fixed by the High Authority, or if its appeal has been rejected, the High Authority may, with the agreement of the Council acting by a two-thirds majority:

- (a) suspend the payment of sums which the High Authority may owe to the state in question under the Treaty;
- (b) adopt measures or authorise the other member states to adopt measures which would otherwise be contrary to certain provisions of Title I, so as to correct the effects of the failure in question.

An appeal to the Court's general jurisdiction may be lodged against these decisions within two months following their notification. Should these measures prove ineffective, the High Authority shall refer the matter to the Council.

The decisions of the High Authority imposing financial obligations on enterprises shall have executive force.

After the period of transition, the government of any member state and the High Authority may propose amendments to the Treaty. Such proposals shall be submitted to the Council. If the Council, acting by a two-thirds majority, approves a conference of the representatives of the governments of the member states, such a conference shall be immediately called by the President of the Council, with a view to agreeing on any modifications to be made to the provisions of the Treaty. Such amendments shall come into force after ratification by all the member states.

The Treaty is concluded for a period of fifty years from the date of its entry into force.

Any European state may request to accede to this Treaty. It shall address its request to the Council, which shall act by unanimous vote after obtaining the opinion of the High Authority. Also by unanimous vote, the Council shall fix the terms of accession, which shall become effective on the day the instrument of accession is received by the government acting as depositary of the Treaty.

EUROPEAN ATOMIC ENERGY COMMUNITY— EURATOM

The idea of the European Atomic Energy Community was born at the Messina Conference in 1955, together with that of EEC. The Treaty setting up the Community came into force on the same date as the EEC Treaty, January 1st, 1958.

EURATOM's role is to create 'the conditions necessary for the speedy establishment and growth of nuclear industries in the Community' by stimulating and co-ordinating public and private research in atomic energy, by ensuring the free flow of information, and by encouraging the building of power reactors. EURATOM also has various responsibilities of a regulatory character, establishing common laws and rules in the atomic field throughout the Community. A common market in nuclear materials was introduced on January 1st, 1959, which eliminates internal import and export duties on nuclear products; a common tariff is applied to third countries; assistance is granted to the free movement of specialized labour, and a common insurance scheme against nuclear risks has been established.

Nuclear materials intended for military purposes are not subject to the control of EURATOM, which has no responsibilities in the field of armaments, and new military plant need not be notified to the Commission nor is it subject to inspection. However, the intended use of all nuclear materials has to be declared, so the scope of production for military purposes comes to the knowledge of the Commission.

The supply of nuclear fuel is supervised or negotiated by an Agency, financially independent and with an option on the purchase of materials within the Community. Contracts with third countries are the exclusive right of the Agency. EURATOM is also the exclusive owner of special fissile materials.

Throughout 1968 and 1969 Euratom's activities and budget were sharply reduced owing to disagreement between the Six over the role and scope of the research activities. In December 1969 the Six agreed to maintain the research centre fully staffed but to diversify research activities into non-nuclear fields and to reorganize the centre in order that it might undertake research and development work for outside industry.

The Commission and Council of Ministers of EURATOM were merged with the corresponding executive bodies of the European Economic Community and the European Coal and Steel Community on July 1st, 1967. EURATOM also shares with the other two Communities the following common organs: European Parliament and Court of Justice. The Economic and Social Committee is common to the EEC and to EURATOM.

ACTIVITIES AND ACHIEVEMENTS

Research: EURATOM's nuclear research assignment is to undertake research at its own Joint Research Centre or under various types of contracts with bodies in the member countries. Ispra is the largest of the four establishments of the Centre. A second is in operation (the Central Nuclear Measurements Bureau) at Mol, Belgium; a third is at Karlsruhe (the European Transuranium Elements Institute); the Dutch Petten Centre is the fourth under an agreement which came into force in 1962. Roughly half EURATOM research is undertaken under contract with public or private concerns in member countries and several hundred contracts are in course. Some of these are long-term "association contracts" in which EURATOM and the concern contribute finance and personnel; one is for the operation of the Belgian BR2 materials' testing reactor at Mol; others concern, inter alia, fast breeder and high temperature gas reactors, nuclear ship propulsion, fusion, agricultural and medical aspects of nuclear energy.

Co-operation with other countries and organizations: An important section of EURATOM's research work falls under agreements for joint research with other countries and international organizations. In November 1958 an agreement was signed between EURATOM and the U.S.A. for a joint power and research and development programme. Three large-scale American-designed and constructed atomic reactors have been installed or are under construction: one atomic power station is in operation in Italy, one plant at Chooz on the Franco-Belgian border and one at Gundremmingen in Bavaria. The latter two are EURATOM joint undertakings, and so benefit from certain fiscal exemptions and other investment aids. Sixty million dollars have so far been devoted to joint research and development.

Under the agreements with the U.K. and Canada, signed 1959, joint discussions and exchanges of information are taking place in many fields of common interest, such as fast breeder reactors and the economics of nuclear power (with the U.K.) and heavy-water moderated reactors (with Canada). Other agreements have been signed with Brazil and Argentina.

EURATOM is participating in the research projects of the European Nuclear Energy Agency of the OECD. EURATOM is participating, in the place of its member countries, and in partnership with the U.K., in the building and operation of the high-temperature gas-cooled DRAGON reactor at Winfrith Heath, along with other ENEA countries.

Industry and the Common Market: About 3,155 MWe. of nuclear capacity had been installed in the Community by the end of October 1970.

It is estimated that between 1960 and 1980 Community electricity consumption will virtually quadruple, rising from an estimated 264 billion kWh. in 1960 to 950 billion kWh. in 1980, and that consumption per head will rise to 5,000 kW. in 1980 (from the 1,350 kW. or so in 1960). It is estimated that the Community's installed nuclear capacity will be 60,000 MW. in 1980 to satisfy electricity needs, over 20 per cent of total electricity production capacity. By the year 2000 the capacity is expected to be 370,000 MW., producing some two-thirds of the Community's electricity.

EURATOM is not, however, responsible for the construction of power reactors in the Community. Its role is to facilitate and encourage investment by private or public authorities in member countries.

SUMMARY OF EURATOM TREATY

The preamble to the Treaty states that the signatory powers:

"Realising that nuclear energy constitutes the essential resource for ensuring the expansion and invigoration of production and for effecting progress in peaceful achievement,

"Convinced that only a common effort undertaken without delay can lead to achievements commensurate with the creative capacities of their countries,

"Resolved to create the conditions required for the development of a powerful nuclear industry which will provide extensive supplies of energy, lead to the modernization of technical processes and in addition have many other applications contributing to the well-being of their peoples,

"Anxious to establish conditions of safety which will eliminate danger to the life and health of the people,

"Desirous of associating with international organizations concerned with the peaceful development of atomic energy,

"Have decided to establish a European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM)."

AIMS OF THE COMMUNITY

ARTICLE 1. It shall be the aim of the Community to contribute to the raising of the standard of living in member states and to the development of commercial exchanges with other countries by the creation of conditions necessary for the speedy establishment and growth of nuclear industries.

ARTICLE 2. For the attainment of its aims the Community shall:

- (a) develop research and ensure the dissemination of technical knowledge;

- (b) establish, and ensure the application of, uniform safety standards to protect the health of workers and of the general public;
- (c) facilitate investment and ensure, particularly by encouraging business enterprise, the construction of the basic facilities required for the development of nuclear energy within the Community;
- (d) ensure a regular and equitable supply of ores and nuclear fuels to all users in the Community;
- (e) guarantee, by appropriate measures of control, that nuclear materials are not diverted for purposes other than those for which they are intended;
- (f) exercise the property rights conferred upon it in respect of special fissionable materials;
- (g) ensure extensive markets and access to the best technical means by the creation of a common market for specialized materials and equipment, by the free movement of capital for nuclear investment, and by freedom of employment for specialists within the Community;
- (h) establish with other countries and with international organizations any contacts likely to promote progress in the peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

ARTICLE 3. The achievement of the tasks entrusted to the Community shall be ensured by:

- an Assembly
- a Council
- a Commission
- a Court of Justice

The Council and the Commission shall be assisted by an Economic and Social Committee acting in a consultative capacity.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

PROVISIONS FOR NUCLEAR ENERGY

Articles 4-11: deal with development of research.

Article 8 provides for the establishment of a Joint Nuclear Research Centre.

Articles 12-29: the dissemination of information, including (Articles 24-27) provisions concerning security.

Articles 30-39: health protection.

Articles 40-44: investment.

Article 41 enacts that certain investment projects must be communicated to the Commission.

Articles 45-51: joint enterprises.

Article 46 enacts that any project for the establishment of a joint enterprise, whether originating from the Commission, a member state, or any other source, shall be the subject of an enquiry by the Commission.

Articles 52-76: supplies.

Article 52 provides for the establishment of a Supply Agency.

Articles 77-85: safety control.

Articles 86-91: property rights.

Articles 92-100: the nuclear common market.

Article 93 enacts the abolition after one year of all import and export duties and all quantitative restrictions on imports and exports in respect of certain nuclear materials and equipment listed in Annex IV to the Treaty.

Articles 101-106: external relations.

These articles lay down the conditions for agreements with third countries or international organizations.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO INSTITUTIONS

Articles 107-160: the Institutions of the Community.

Articles 107-114: the Assembly.

Articles 115-123: the Council.

Articles 124-135: the Commission.

Article 134: Scientific and Technical Committee attached to the Commission.

Articles 136-160: the Court of Justice.

Articles 161-164: provisions common to several institutions.

Articles 165-170: the Economic and Social Committee.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Articles 171-183.

Article 171 provides for an operational budget and a research and investment budget. The former covers administrative expenses and safety control and health protection. Under Article 172 the scale of contributions to the operational budget is fixed as follows:

Belgium	7.9
Germany	28.0
France	28.0
Italy	28.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.9

The scale of contributions to the research and investment budget is as follows:

Belgium	9.9
Germany	30.0
France	30.0
Italy	23.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	6.9

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Articles 184-208: cover certain legal aspects of the Community's status and define certain technical terms.

Article 205 allows for the application of any European state to membership of the Community.

Article 208 states that the Treaty is concluded for an unlimited period.

PROVISIONS FOR THE INITIAL PERIOD

Articles 209-224.

QUOTAS

IMPORTS

Restrictions were eliminated by December 31st, 1966.

EXPORTS

Restrictions were eliminated by December 31st, 1961.

FINLAND-EFTA ASSOCIATION AGREEMENT

Entered into force June 1961. First tariff reductions and relaxation of quotas took place on July 1st, 1961. The main principle of the Agreement is to establish a new free trade area where Finland will have the same rights and obligations towards EFTA members as they have among themselves.

OTHER EFTA ACTIVITIES

In recent years EFTA's work has been increasingly devoted to the problems of non-tariff barriers to trade. Part of this work has been based explicitly on particular articles in the Convention, especially those relating to the conditions of competition, as mentioned below.

Work is also being done on non-tariff barriers which are not specifically mentioned in the Convention. On these, EFTA's aim is to contribute to international agreements covering a wider area than that of the Association and, in the meantime, to seek in EFTA solutions to non-tariff barrier problems which will facilitate trade without limiting possibilities of finding wider agreements. Examples of the barriers being dealt with are differences in compulsory technical requirements for electrical and other products, and in rules for obtaining patent protection for new products.

EUROPEAN FREE TRADE ASSOCIATION

CONVENTION

EFTA's objectives are:

- (a) to promote in the Area of the Association and in each Member State a sustained expansion of economic activity, full employment, increased productivity and the rational use of resources, financial stability and continuous improvement in living standards;
- (b) to secure that trade between Member States takes place in conditions of fair competition;
- (c) to avoid significant disparity between Member States in the conditions of supply of raw materials produced within the Area of the Association; and
- (d) to contribute to the harmonious development and expansion of world trade and to the progressive removal of barriers to it.

The main provisions of the Convention are:

Tariffs. Elimination of tariffs on industrial goods was originally to be achieved at the latest by January 1970, but this date was brought forward to December 31st, 1966.

Quotas. The Convention provides for the progressive reduction of quantitative restrictions on all imports from Member States and their complete elimination by January 1st, 1970. This date also was brought forward to December 31st, 1966.

Origin Rules. Member States do not have a common external tariff in relation to countries outside the area.

"Origin" rules have therefore been worked out to identify the products of member countries to which the tariff reductions will apply.

Safeguards. Member countries will be free to take action which they consider necessary for the protection of their essential security interests and, consistently with their other international obligations, their balance of payments. In certain circumstances a Member State may also take special safeguarding action where the application of the Convention leads to serious difficulties in a particular sector of industry.

Competition. The Convention contains provisions to ensure that the benefits which are expected from the removal of tariffs and quotas are not nullified through the use of other measures by Governments, public undertakings or private industries. These include provisions about subsidies, restrictive business practices and discriminatory restrictions against nationals of Member States wishing to establish business anywhere in the area.

Agriculture and Fish. Special arrangements have been made for agricultural goods and fish and other marine products. The objective is to facilitate reasonable reciprocity to those member states whose economies depend to a great extent on agricultural or fish exports. Arrangements have also been concluded between several member countries in respect of trade in agricultural goods.

EUROPEAN ORGANIZATION FOR NUCLEAR RESEARCH—CERN

1211 Geneva 23, Switzerland

Telephone: (022) 41 98 11.

The Conseil Européen pour la Recherche Nucléaire (CERN) was established in 1952 following intergovernmental meetings called by UNESCO. It was formally superseded by the Organization in 1954. The essential aim was to establish at Geneva a fundamental research laboratory centred on two particle accelerators with which European scientists could continue their studies into the structure of matter at the nuclear and sub-nuclear levels. Work of a military nature is excluded, and the results of experimental and theoretical work are published, principally in the traditional scientific literature.

ACTIVITIES

The Convention defining the objectives of CERN provides "for collaboration among European States in nuclear research" and the "organization and sponsoring of international co-operation . . . including co-operation outside the laboratory". Of the two accelerators foreseen in the beginning, the 600 MeV Synchro-Cyclotron began operation in August 1957 and the 25–28 GeV Proton Synchrotron in November 1959. The second machine was not only the largest in the world at the time but the first to use the now established strong-focusing principle.

Both machines have been continually improved as regards performance and utilization. The current programme involves an increase by a factor 10 in the beam current of the cyclotron and a rise in output of the synchrotron of approximately 5 times. In 1965 the Council of CERN authorized the construction of Intersecting Storage Rings to be built alongside the synchrotron for research on colliding beams. Protons accelerated in the synchrotron are fed into the two intersecting rings in opposite senses and stored for up to a day. The beams can be made to collide in the intersecting sections. Construction was finished in March 1971.

In 1971 it was decided to build a new particle accelerator adjacent to the existing laboratory, now termed Laboratory I. Each laboratory is under the charge of its own Director-General but a fusion of the two will take place some time in the future. All members except Denmark and Greece participate in the programme for Laboratory II.

The ISR as well as additional experimental and computing facilities have been built on 39.5 ha. of land in France, the rest of Laboratory I occupying 40.5 ha. in the Commune of Meyrin in Switzerland. The seat of the Organization is officially in Switzerland whilst the laboratory physically straddles the frontier.

Laboratory II also straddles the frontier, the area of land reserved being 412 ha. in France and 68 ha. in Switzerland. Building restrictions have been imposed on a further 509 ha. in France and 63 ha. in Switzerland to allow for a possible subsequent expansion. The accelerator—the Super Proton Synchrotron—is being built deep underground in a ring tunnel 2.2 km. diameter. The energy of the accelerator will be extendible and the final form of the eight year construction programme will not be defined before 1973. It is foreseen that research at an intermediate energy, e.g. 200 GeV, can begin in the sixth year of the programme using the experimental facilities of Laboratory I. The injector for the SPS is to be the existing proton synchrotron which will be then fulfilling the triple role of SPS injector, feed for the ISR and source of beams of particles for experiments at energies up to 28 GeV.

The majority of the research undertaken at CERN is carried out by mixed teams of physicists principally from the Universities and Research Centres of Europe. The scientists may be attached to CERN for a period of weeks only, or become temporary members of the staff for a year or so. Only a small proportion remain as permanent staff members. The majority of the CERN complement are concerned with machine design, development and operation.

To cater for a wide range of potential users the techniques of beam sharing have become highly developed. Major detection installations include a 2-metre liquid hydrogen bubble chamber and Gargamelle, a 12,000-litre heavy liquid bubble chamber. Scheduled for operation in 1972–73 and built under a tripartite agreement between CERN, the Commissariat à l'Energie Atomique of France, and the German Government, a 3.7-m liquid hydrogen bubble chamber incorporating a superconducting magnet. A very large spark chamber within a superconducting magnet is also under construction.

To provide the large computing capacity needed for the analysis of bubble chamber film and electronics experiments data, as well as scientific computation, CERN has built up an extensive network of computers, a number of which are working on-line. In the central facility the two main machines are a CDC 6600 and a CDC 6500 but a new central complex based on a CDC 7600 will be built up during 1972.

Close collaboration has always been sought with the high energy physics laboratories of non-member States, and relations with comparable centres in the U.S. have from the beginning been very close. A system of exchange of scientists with the Joint Nuclear Research Centre of Dubna (U.S.S.R.) was initiated in 1960. This exchange has been developed and an agreement was signed with the U.S.S.R. State Committee for the Application of Atomic Energy in July 1967 for collaboration in research on the 70 GeV accelerator at Serpukhov, which began operation in November of the same year.

Under this agreement CERN has supplied certain equipment for beam extraction and separation while the Soviet authorities are making it possible for joint electronics experiments to be conducted on their machine and will make available bubble chamber pictures for analysis by CERN scientists.

EUROPEAN ORGANIZATION FOR NUCLEAR RESEARCH

BUDGET CONTRIBUTIONS

All twelve member states of CERN now participate in both the Basic and the ISR Programmes, and their budgets can, as a result, be considered together. Ten member states currently participate in the 300 GeV Programme, the non-participants being Denmark and Greece.

The proportional contributions of member states for 1972, 1973 and 1974 are based on their average national revenues over the years 1968, 1969 and 1970, as calculated by the UN Statistical Office. Council were to agree upon the figures at the June meeting.

EXPENDITURE (1972—'000 Swiss francs)

LABORATORY I (Basic and ISR Programmes)
Personnel	162,100
Capital and Operation	209,300
TOTAL	371,400

Estimate for 1973: 359,900,000 Swiss francs.
Provisional estimate for 1974-75: 345,500,000 Swiss francs.

LABORATORY II (300 GeV Programme)
Personnel	14,470
Operation	9,480
Capital Outlays	71,050
TOTAL	95,000

Forecasts: 167,700,000 Swiss francs (1973), 200,000,000 (1974), 194,500,000 (1975).

Total programme cost at 1970 prices: 1,150 million Swiss francs

ORGANIZATION

PERMANENT COMMISSION

The governing body of EUROCONTROL; consists of two representatives from each member state, who are the Ministers responsible for respectively civil and military aviation.

President: A. BERTRAND (Belgium).

Vice-President: J. CHAMANT (France).

AIR TRAFFIC SERVICES AGENCY

Administered by a Committee of Management and a Director-General.

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT

Composed of two representatives of each National Administration exercising in their own country responsibilities in matters of respectively civil and military air navigation.

President: J. LEVEQUE (France).

DIRECTOR-GENERAL

Heads the General Directorate with five Directorates (Operations, Engineering, Personnel and Administration, Finance, General Secretariat) and the EUROCONTROL External Services.

Director-General: R. BULIN (France).

EUROCONTROL EXTERNAL SERVICES

Eurocontrol Experimental Centre: Aérodrome de Brétigny, 91 Brétigny-sur-Orge, France; provides the planning staff at headquarters with technical operational aid of a practical nature, in particular by undertaking experiments to improve or to develop control methods and procedures and to evaluate air traffic control and air navigation equipment and systems. Also undertakes experimental work for non-members.

Eurocontrol Institute for Air Navigation Services: Luxembourg; a school for the advanced training of ATC personnel (controllers, programmers and engineers) and an air navigation documentation centre.

Central Route Charges Office: Brussels; implements the policy of the member states for the introduction of charges for the use of route facilities and services.

Upper Area Control Centre: Maastricht; responsible for providing air traffic control services in the upper air space over Belgium, Luxembourg, Netherlands and the northern part of the German Federal Republic. The centre is due to begin operations in 1972.

Upper Area Control Centre: Karlsruhe; responsible for providing air traffic control services in the upper air space over the southern part of the German Federal Republic. The centre is due to begin operations in 1975.

The following services are concerned with co-ordination with National Air Traffic Services of member states:

Regional Service—France: Aéroport d'Orly 94, Orly, France.

Regional Service—Ireland/United Kingdom: Heathrow House, Bath Road, Cranford, Middlesex, England.

AIMS

To strengthen the co-operation between member states in matters of air navigation and in particular to provide for the common organization of the air traffic services in the upper airspace, including:

The promotion, in co-operation with the national military authorities, of the adoption of measures and of the installation and operation of facilities designed to ensure the safety of air navigation and ensure an orderly and rapid flow of air traffic, within defined air space under the sovereignty of the Contracting Parties or in respect of which the air traffic services have been entrusted to those Parties under international agreements.

Standardization of national regulations governing air traffic and standardization of the operation of the services responsible for ensuring the safety and regulation of air traffic, on the basis of the Standards and Recommended Practices of ICAO and having regard to the requirements of national defence.

Promotion of a common policy to be followed in respect of radio aids, telecommunications and corresponding airborne equipment.

Promotion and co-ordination of studies relating to air navigation services and installations in order to take account of technical developments.

Determination of policy in respect of remuneration for services rendered to users.

ACTIVITIES

Responsibility for Air Traffic Control: exercising operational, legal and financial responsibilities for upper airspace air traffic services over the member states.

New Facilities: EUROCONTROL's first international Upper Area Control Centre is being established at Maastricht, Netherlands. The centre which is being equipped with the means for the automatic processing of air traffic data, will be responsible for air traffic services for the upper air space over Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, and the northern part of the Federal Republic of Germany. Facilities provided by the Brussels Upper Area Control Centre will be transferred to Maastricht during 1972. Construction of a similar centre at Karlsruhe for air traffic services Southern Germany is in the planning stage. Provision will be made for certain new radar systems for these and other centres. A new ATS building is being constructed at Shannon Airport to house the facilities for the Irish upper airspace. These will include secondary radar data and flight plan processing systems.

Studies and Plans: elaboration of operational plans for air traffic services in the upper air space of the Benelux/Federal Republic of Germany, Ireland and United Kingdom and France regions. Fundamental study of a common system of air traffic control over Europe after 1980, to be implemented soon after 1975. Linked to this study a five-year programme of operational research is under way with a view to applying scientific methods to the choice of a future optimal system. Study of the impact of supersonic aircraft on control requirements and procedures. Study of the application of modern technology to the requirements of air traffic control. General operational studies of air space organization and route networks, of future navigation systems and ATC methods and procedures, including the use of primary and especially secondary radar. Development of automated ATC systems including the exchange of data between adjacent centres.

Tests and Trials: real and fast time simulations of air traffic situations to test and evaluate existing and future proposed systems. Tests and trials of navigational aids, including HARCO and D/VOR/DME. Operational evaluation of the radar coverage of the EUROCONTROL area. Calibration of new radars.

Traffic Statistics and Forecasting: processing of traffic data for use in the planning of operational requirements and the calculation of route charges. Preparation of forecasts of future air traffic and development of improved forecasting methods.

Training: theoretical and practical training of operational and technical ATC staff for both member and non-member states.

Conferences: organization of inter-governmental Working Groups to study operational, technical, legal and administration matters for the fulfilment of EUROCONTROL's tasks and principal aims.

Co-operation: agreements for co-operation, aiming mainly at an exchange of technical information, have been concluded with Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Federal Aviation Administration of the U.S.A., Switzerland, Italy, Portugal and Austria as well as with the ICAO.

FINANCE

Budget (1972: Investment and Operating): 1,707 million Belgian francs.

Scale of members' contributions based mainly on their Gross National Product.

In addition, a special statement of 657 million Belgian francs was voted for the joint financing of the operating costs of air traffic control services for the upper air space of the Benelux/Federal Republic of Germany region.

Lays down scientific and technical policy and takes major financial and administrative decisions. Consists of two delegates from each member state. Meets at least twice a year. It is assisted by two committees:

Scientific and Technical Committee: Assisted by the Launching Programmes Advisory Committee and six groups of experts concerned with particular aspects of research.

Administrative and Finance Committee.

Interim Application Programmes Committee.

DIRECTOR-GENERAL

The Director-General is advised by a Directorate, and assisted by a Secretariat staffed from member countries.

Director-General: Dr. A. HOCKER (German Federal Republic).

Director of Programmes and Planning: J. DINKESPILER (France).

Director of Administration: R. GIBSON (United Kingdom).

Director of the European Space Research and Space Technology Centre (Noordwijk): Dr. O. HAMMARSTRÖM (Sweden).

Director of European Space Operations Centre (Darmstadt): UMBERTO MONTALENTI (Italy).

ESTABLISHMENTS

European Space Research and Technology Centre (ESTEC): Noordwijk, Netherlands. Responsible for studying and developing spacecraft and payloads for sounding rockets, for liaison with scientific groups and for applied research work on space technology. It comprises the following Departments:

Satellites and Sounding Rockets

Space Science (formerly ESLAB)

Development and Technology (formerly Applied Research)

Administration and Facilities

European Space Operations Centre (ESOC): Darmstadt, Federal Republic of Germany. Responsible for the provision of launching facilities, tracking, data acquisition and procession. It comprises the following Departments:

ESRANGE: Kiruna, Sweden (see below)

Satellite Data Acquisition (formerly Control Centre and ESTRACK)

Information Handling (formerly ESDAC)

Computer Service

It also includes the Divisions of Ground Equipment, Engineering and Administration, and two smaller groups (Programme Review and Operations, and Mission Support) under the immediate authority of the Director.

European Sounding-Rocket Launching Range (ESRANGE):

Kiruna, Sweden. Operations at the range, which was first used in December 1966, are under the control of the Director, ESOC. Facilities are available for the launching of Centaure, Skylark and Arcas rockets.

European Space Research Institute (ESRIN): Frascati, Italy. Carries out theoretical and experimental basic research (plasma physics).

EUROPEAN SPACE RESEARCH ORGANISATION

ACTIVITIES

1. Five satellites have already been launched by the Organization:

IRIS (formerly ESRO-II), designed to carry out solar astronomy and cosmic rays studies, was successfully launched in May 1968 from the Western Test Range (California) by a Scout rocket. This satellite functioned perfectly during its planned operational life of six months, and the seven scientific experiments continued to provide data and information of great scientific value for almost three years. This first ESRO satellite re-entered the atmosphere in May 1971. Prime contractor was Hawker Siddeley Dynamics (U.K.) with Engins Matra (France) as major co-operant.

AURORAE (formerly ESRO-I), an 80kg. satellite designed for the study of auroral and associated ionospheric phenomena, was successfully launched in October 1968 from the Western Test Range by a Scout rocket. The eight scientific experiments on board operated satisfactorily. The satellite, having long outlasted the design goal of six months' lifetime, re-entered the atmosphere in June 1970. Prime contractor was the Laboratoire Central de Télécommunications (France). Major co-operants were Contraves (Switzerland) and Bell Telephone Manufacturing Company (Belgium).

HEOS-A1, a Highly Eccentric Orbit Satellite weighing 108 kg., and carrying eight experiments designed for the study of interplanetary physics and cosmic rays, was launched in December 1968 from the Eastern Test Range, by a Delta rocket. Prime contractor was Junkers Flugzeug- und Motorenwerke (Germany). Major co-operants were Snecma (France), BAC (U.K.), and ECTA (Belgium).

ESRO-Ib, designed to study ionospheric phenomena and aurorae, was launched on October 1st, 1969, and renamed BOREAS. This second flight model of ESRO-I, carrying eight experiments, was placed in a relatively low orbit and re-entered the atmosphere on November 23rd, 1969, after having completed its mission.

HEOS-A2, a Highly Eccentric Orbit Satellite weighing 117 kg. and carrying seven experiments designed to investigate interplanetary space and the high-latitude magnetosphere near the northern neutral space, was launched in January 1972 from the Western Test Range aboard a three-stage DSV-3L Delta rocket. Its orbit was unique in that no satellite had hitherto flown in this region of space. Prime contractor was Messerschmitt-Bölkow-Blohm (Germany).

2. Two scientific satellites are currently in the development phase.

TD-1 is a special project of nine member states of ESRO, and will be used principally for the study of the celestial electromagnetic spectrum, as well as ultra-violet, X and gamma rays. Development of this ambitious project, which will be the largest European satellite yet constructed, is proceeding satisfactorily and the launch is planned for February 1972.

ESRO-IV will carry five experiments, designed to measure the neutral and ionized components of the atmosphere. This spacecraft, which is structurally similar to ESRO-II (IRIS), will be launched in the autumn of 1972.

Two other satellites are in the definition phase:

COS-B, intended for the study of cosmic radiations.

GEOS, a geostationary satellite to be used essentially for the study of the particle flux, and the relationship between the magnetosphere and the ionosphere.

3. ESRO carries out an important programme of research by means of sounding rockets, launched mainly from ESRANGE and the Italian national range in Sardinia.

Up to the end of March 1970, more than 100 scientific groups had submitted proposals for experiments to be launched as part of the sounding rocket programme. By the same date 111 rockets had been launched.

Sounding rockets, which carry measuring instruments and scientific experiments, are designed to study the atmosphere between 40 km. (maximum altitude of a sounding balloon) and 200 km. (altitude below which a satellite cannot remain in orbit sufficiently long). They enable sporadic and transient phenomena (aurora borealis, noctilucent clouds, etc.) to be studied. When the launching is properly timed, these sounding rockets provide maximum data on the phenomena concerned and allow "vertical" measurements to be made during the rocket's flight. Sounding rockets are also frequently used to test the reliability of experiments designed to be flown in satellites, thereby increasing the probability of their success.

4. The Organisation provides scientific agencies of the member countries with the necessary technical facilities for the carrying out of space experiments ranging from the study of the near-terrestrial environment to that of stellar astronomy. ESRO has also undertaken a study of application satellites. Unlike the scientific satellites—whose mission is research—the application satellites are designed to meet clearly-defined needs in fields such as telecommunications, distribution of television programmes, meteorology, air and maritime traffic control, and earth resource surveys.

EUROPEAN SPACE CONFERENCE

ESRO participates in the Conference together with ELDO member states. Ministerial meetings are held at least once a year. The last meeting took place in Brussels, July 1970, and was extended to a second session in November. Matters discussed included a European space programme for the 1970s, the amalgamation of European space organizations, and the terms on which Europe might participate in future programmes of the United States.

Approves research, development and construction programmes and decides on their distribution between members. Composed of two representatives from each member country. Assisted by a Scientific and Technical Committee and a Finance Committee.

SECRETARIAT

Responsible for formulation and execution of programmes, administration, finance and external relations.

Secretary-General: Gén. R. AUBINIÈRE (France).

Deputy Secretary-General: J. P. CAUSSE (France).

Assistant Secretary-General (Administrative Director): G. VAN REETH (Belgium).

Technical Director: H. HOFFMAN (German Federal Republic).

PROGRAMMES

Initial Programme covers the development and construction of the first European three-stage satellite-launching vehicle, EUROPA I, with an overall height of 32 metres, and a launch weight of 111 tons, which is capable of placing a payload of one tonne into low circular orbit. This programme comprised ten flight tests over the years 1964-70 from the ELDO facilities on the Woomera base in Australia. The last test firing took place on June 12th, 1970, with a vehicle of three live stages. This launch marked an important milestone in the progress of the programme, practically all objectives being achieved, notably the functioning of all the stages, and of the separation (interstage and between third stage and satellite) and guidance systems. Two minor failures, which have been clearly localised—non-jettisoning of the nose cone, an operation which had always been successful in the past, and a slight loss of thrust at the end of the third stage flight—prevented injection of the satellite into orbit.

Supplementary Programme: development of the EUROPA II, a launcher derived from EUROPA I, with various added improvements, mainly a perigee stage and an inertial guidance system. By incorporating in the satellite an apogee motor—supplied like the satellite by the user—EUROPA II will be rendered capable of injecting into geostationary orbit a payload of about 200 kg., suitable for certain telecommunications applications among other purposes. The Supplementary Programme also includes the installation of the ELDO Equatorial Base at Kourou in French Guiana where the first trial firing of EUROPA II took place at the end of 1971.

The total cost to completion of the Initial and Supplementary Programmes is subject to an agreed ceiling of 626 million monetary units (1 MU=U.S. $1). The European Space Conference held in Brussels in July 1970 provided for the ceiling to be raised by 15 million monetary units.

EUROPA I/II construction programme: provides for the construction of operational launchers capable of putting payloads into orbit for users. The missions envisaged are in the fields of both science and applications such as telecommunications and meteorology.

EUROPA II's first mission in 1973 will be to put into geostationary orbit two flight models of the Franco-German Symphonie satellite, in the programme undertaken in co-operation by the French and German governments for the joint development of a communications satellite. ESRO (European Space Research Organisation) has expressed its intention of using vehicles developed by ELDO for launching scientific satellites and European applications satellites. The EUROPA I/II construction programme is being undertaken by Belgium, France and Germany.

EUROPEAN SPACE VEHICLE LAUNCHER DEVELOPMENT ORGANISATION

FUTURE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMMES

EUROPA III Programme

Preparatory work is in progress on the EUROPA III launcher, capable of putting 750 kg. into geostationary orbit. The launcher has two stages—a conventional first stage and a liquid hydrogen/liquid oxygen second stage. The preparatory work will make possible a later decision on whether to embark on a development programme. At present, the preparatory work is being undertaken by Belgium, France, Germany and the Netherlands.

Post-Apollo Programme

In response to the invitation of the U.S.A., consideration is being given to possible European participation in the post-Apollo programme and, under the aegis of the European Space Conference, ELDO has arranged studies of an inter-orbital space tug and of technology associated with the space transportation system envisaged in the post-Apollo programme.

Twenty members elected from each Republic by its People's Assembly. The Federal Assembly has a four-year term, with two ordinary sessions a year. A meeting has been called for March 11th, 1972.

EXTRACTS FROM THE DECLARATION ON THE SETTING UP OF THE FEDERATION

(Signed by the three Presidents, Benghazi, April 17th, 1971)

"In a bid to link the three Revolutions in the United Arab Republic, in the Libyan Arab Republic and in the Syrian Arab Republic—for their linking responds to a public demand and is a necessity for struggle which gives the struggle of the Arab people new dimensions and potentialities, thus confirming the historical inevitability of the victory of the Arab Revolution; confirming the resolutions of the Tripoli Charter states and strengthening integration and association between them and safeguarding the march of the Arab struggle, the banner of which was raised by the immortal leader, Gamal Abdel Nasser, the three Presidents' signing of this declaration stems from the unshaken belief in the necessity for the setting up of a nation which pools Arab forces and potentialities and the belief that this nation will be, by the virtue of the ability of our peoples and the potentialities of the three states, a solid base for the Arab struggle and one of the important tributaries of the international movements, and the natural and practical reply to all the imperialist and Zionist plots engineered against our Arab nation in an attempt to strike at its human and historical civilisation and reduce it to backwardness and dependence".

The three Presidents, having agreed to set up the Federation of Arab Republics, set out the principles on which the federal structure would be established as follows:

First: The State should serve as the nucleus for polarizing the pro-unity Arab struggle and, consequently, serve as the nucleus for total Arab unity.

Second: That it should serve as the means for the Arab people to achieve their goal of establishing a unified Arab socialist society.

Third: That this State serve as the basic instrument of the Arab nation in the battle of liberation.

On the basis of these points, the three Presidents unanimously agreed to the following:

That the liberation of the occupied Arab territories is the one objective towards which all potential should be committed; that there will be no negotiations or reconciliation with Israel; that not one inch of Arab land is to be given up; that there will be no doing away with the Palestinian question or compromise over it.

The three Heads of State emphasize that the Democratic Republic of the Sudan and its militant Arab people, who participated under the leadership of brother President Gaafar Mohamed Nemery and his brother members of the Revolutionary Command Council, earnestly and effectively, in promoting work within the context of the Tripoli Charter, will remain active in the struggle for achieving union. The Sudan will remain closely linked to the Federation of Arab Republics till it joins it.

The three Presidents, setting as their goal that the Federation of Arab Republics should answer all the needs of our people, achieve their hopes and their national aims, stress that the strengthening of the Federation and its objective values and principles, demands from the leading forces in the three Republics, the formation of a political front among them. This front should adhere to a charter of national work, with the ultimate aim of realizing interaction and solidarity among the peoples of the Federation and to deepen the foundations of democracy and its values.

This front will also co-ordinate their efforts towards a common political goal, methods of political work in the three Republics, and create a suitable atmosphere in which the new Arab Movement can flourish.

The action taken to lose no time in implementing this Federation is but a successful move to attain a transitional objective on the road to comprehensive Arab unity. For this purpose, it (the Federation) will keep its doors open to any liberated Arab State that believes in Arab unity and works to establish a faithful Socialist Arab society.

Through the help of God, and looking forward to the future with the confidence of those who have faith in God, and in corroboration of all these meanings, agreement has been reached between the three Heads of State to consider the attached statutes attached to this announcement. The statutes will serve as a basis for the set up of the Federation of Arab Republics, and the formation of a three-man committee to work out a draft constitution within the framework of these statutes. The draft constitution shall be ratified in each Republic.

It has also been decided to put forward the statutes of the Federation of Arab Republics to the people by holding a referendum in each Republic on one and the same date.

BASIC STATUTES

1. The Arab people in each of the United Arab Republic, the Arab Republic of Libya and the Arab Republic of Syria, have approved, on the basis of free choice and equal rights, the proclamation of a Federal State entitled the Federation of Arab Republics.

2. The goal of the proclamation of the Federation of Arab Republics is to work towards the realization of a total Arab unity, to protect the Arab nation, defend the independence and structure of the Arab socialist society, work towards the liberation of the occupied territories, strengthen the Arab national liberation movement, as well as other liberation movements all over the world.

3. The people in the Federation of Arab Republics are part of the Arab nation.

4. The Federation of Arab Republics has one flag, one emblem, one anthem and one capital.

5. The system of rule in the Federation of Arab Republics is socialist democratic.

6. This Federation shall be open to all the other Arab countries which have faith in Arab unity and which work towards the realization of the unified Arab socialist society.

FUNCTIONS

7. The Federation of Arab Republics shall be concerned with the following functions:

- (a) Working out the bases of foreign policy.
- (b) Questions of peace and war.
- (c) Regulating and commanding the defence of the Federation of Arab Republics in the presence of a military command responsible for training and operations. Forces shall be transferred between the Republics by decision of the Presidential Council or such quarters as it will invest with this power during operations.
- (d) Defending national security, and the formulation of bases whereby to regulate measures to safeguard the Federation. In the event of disorders from within or without, in any Republic, which endangers its security, or threatens the safety of the Federation, the government of such Republic shall immediately advise the Federal Government to take the necessary measures within the limits of its powers to preserve peace and order. In cases where the government of any member Republic is in no position to apply for aid from the Federal Government, or where the security of the Federation is jeopardized, the Federal authorities concerned may intervene without request to restore order.

- (e) Planning the national economy, the formulation of joint general development plans, and the direction of the economic institutions of federal character.
- (f) The introduction of an educational policy aimed at the building of a loyal Arab national socialist generation.
- (g) The institution of a federal information policy serving the targets and the strategy of the Federal State in peace and war.
- (h) The establishment of a unified policy of scientific research, and to co-ordinate its agencies in the Republics.
- (i) The admission of new members to the Federation by a unanimous vote of the Federation's Presidential Council.

INSTITUTIONS

8. The following institutions will be set up in the Federation of Arab Republics:

- (a) A Federation President Council. It shall be the highest authority in the Federation. It shall be made up of the Presidents of Republics. This Council shall elect a Chairman from among its members and make its decisions on a majority vote.
- (b) A number of Ministers shall be appointed by the Presidential Council. They shall be responsible to the Council.
- (c) A National Assembly in the Federation. It shall legislate for the Federation. It shall be formed of an equal number of representatives from the people's councils of the Republics.
- (d) A Federal Constitutional Court to be appointed by a decree from the Federation Presidential Council. It shall be formed of two members representing each Republic and be concerned with deciding on the constitutionality of laws and with settling disputes between the institutions and the authorities of the Federation and Republics.

9. The setting up of the Federation shall not involve any prejudice to the rules of international treaties and agreements concluded between the Republics in the Federation and between each Republic and other countries. These treaties and agreements shall remain valid within the framework prescribed for them in accordance with the rules of international law.

10. Each Republic may, within its legislative jurisdiction, conclude treaties and agreements with foreign countries and exchange diplomatic and consular representation with them.

11. The General Command of the Armed Forces in each Republic in the Federation shall be assigned to the

FEDERATION OF ARAB REPUBLICS

President of the Republic or to the person specified in the institutions in operation in each Republic.

12. The Republics shall be concerned with all that does not fall within the jurisdiction of the Federation in accordance with these statutes.

13. Until the one Arab movement has been established inside the Federation, the Political Command of each Republic will be responsible for organizing the political activity inside the Republic. Any political organization in any Republic of the Federation is banned from carrying out any political activity in the other Republic of the Federation except through its representatives on the Command of the Political Front which embraces the leaders of the political organizations of the Federation Republics.

14. The declaration of the setting up of the Federation of Arab Republics issued in Benghazi on April 17th, 1971, is considered part and parcel of the basic statutes of the Federation of Arab Republics.

15. The basic statutes of the Federation of Arab Republics cannot be amended unless there is unanimous approval by the Federation's Presidential Council and unless the issue is put up to a referendum and it wins the support of the majority in each Republic.

16. The basic statutes of the Federation of Arab Republics are to be ratified, before they are put to referendum, by the Arab Socialist Union (ASU) High Executive Committee, the ASU Central Committee, the Council of Ministers and the National Assembly in the United Arab Republic, by the Revolution Command Council in the Libyan Arab Republic, and by the Regional Command of the Socialist Baath Party, the Council of Ministers and the People's Council in the Syrian Arab Republic.

Resolution: "With reference to the declaration of the setting up of the Federation of Arab Republics issued on April 17th, 1971, the Presidents agreed that the basic statutes of the Federation of Arab Republics will be put to a referendum in the three Republics of the Federation on September 1st, 1971."

THE FRANC ZONE

The Franc Zone embraces all those countries and groups of countries whose currencies are linked with the French franc at a fixed rate of exchange and who agree to hold their reserves in the form of French francs and to effect their exchange on the Paris market. Each of these countries or groups of countries has its own central issuing Bank and its currency is freely convertible into French francs. This monetary union is based on individual agreements concluded between France and the various States who, after attaining independence, opted for independent sovereignty either within or outside the French Community.

The Maghreb members have much more independent monetary and economic policies than the thirteen sub-Saharan Franc Zone countries, due largely to the relatively more developed state of their economies, and the Tunisian and Moroccan currencies are no longer directly tied to the French franc. They hold part of their foreign reserves in French francs and the transaction of most of their international payments is made through the Paris exchange market; however, each country has created its own currency and their issuing banks are entirely autonomous.

Because of balance-of-payment stringencies, these countries restrict payments to other Franc Zone countries, in contrast with the free convertibility among the sub-Saharan members. The currencies of the Maghreb countries do not enjoy the unlimited backing of the French Treasury.

Mali withdrew from the Franc Zone in 1962, setting up her own currency, the Malian franc, and her own issuing Bank. However, in May 1967 she ratified a currency agreement with France covering her gradual return to the West African monetary zone, and France's guarantee of the convertibility of the Mali franc. Under the terms of the agreement, Mali was to reorganize her economy, and in May 1967 she devalued her franc by 50 per cent. The Mali franc returned to full convertibility with the French franc in March 1968, and agreement was reached on the establishment of a central issuing bank, to be jointly administered by France and Mali.

Guinea left the Franc Zone when she opted for independence outside the French Community in 1958. Togo joined in 1963.

MEMBERS

French Republic (Metropolitan France and the Overseas Departments and Territories, except French Territory of the Afar and Issa).

Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Dahomey, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal, Togo, Upper Volta (full members).

Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco retain national control over financial transfers.

CURRENCY

French franc: used in Metropolitan France and the Overseas Departments of Guadeloupe, French Guiana and Martinique.

1 CFP (Communauté financière du Pacifique) franc = 0.055 fr. Used in New Caledonia, French Polynesia, and Wallis and Futuna Islands.

1 CFA (Communauté financière africaine) franc = 0.02 fr. Used in the monetary areas of West Africa, Equatorial Africa and Cameroon, and also in the Overseas Department of Réunion and the Overseas Territories of the Comoro Islands and St. Pierre et Miquelon.

1 franc malgache = 0.02 fr. Used in Madagascar, where it replaced the CFA franc in 1963.

1 Algerian dinar = 1 fr. Replaced the Algerian franc in 1964.

The Tunisian dinar and the Moroccan dirham, created in 1958 and 1959 respectively, are not attached to the French franc.

THE FRANC ZONE

AFRICAN FINANCIAL COMMUNITY (COMMUNAUTÉ FINANCIÈRE AFRICAINE—CFA)

The CFA comprises all the states, except Guinea, which were part of French West and Equatorial Africa, and Cameroon, Togo and Madagascar. These full members of the Franc Zone are still grouped within the currency areas that existed before independence, each group having its own currency issued by a central Bank.

West African Monetary Union (Union monétaire ouest-africaine): Dahomey, Ivory Coast, Mali (which returned to membership of the Union in 1968), Mauritania, Niger, Senegal, Upper Volta (all parts of former French West Africa) and Togo, which joined in 1963. (Mali is to return to membership of the Union.) Established by Treaty of May 1962; agreements on Co-operation were signed with France in 1963; two-thirds of the members of the Board of Directors of its central issuing Bank are provided by the member states and one-third by the French Government.

Monetary Union of Equatorial Africa and Cameroon (Union monétaire de l'Afrique équatoriale et du Cameroun): Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Gabon (the countries of former French Equatorial Africa) and Cameroon. Agreements on Co-operation were signed with France in 1962; the French Government provides half of the members of the Board of Directors of its central issuing Bank, the other half being provided by the member states.

Madagascar: Agreements on Co-operation were signed with France in 1960 and 1962; a national issuing Bank replaced the former Bank of Madagascar in 1962; the French Government provides half of the members of the issuing Bank's Board of Directors.

ORGANIZATION

The CFA and Malagasy francs are freely convertible into French francs at a fixed rate, through "Operations Accounts" established by agreements concluded between the French Treasury and the individual issuing Banks. The notes are backed fully by the resources of the French Treasury, which also provides the Banks with overdraft facilities.

The monetary reserves of the CFA countries are held in French francs in the French treasury. Exchange is effected on the Paris market and foreign assets earned by member countries are pooled in a Fonds de Stabilisation des changes (Exchange Stabilization Fund) which is managed by the Bank of France. Part of the reserves earned by richer members can be used to offset the deficits incurred by poorer countries. Member countries negotiate each year their import programme with the French authorities and they receive a quota of non-franc foreign exchange to cover approved imports from outside the area.

New regulations drawn up in July 1967 provided for the free convertibility of currency with that of countries outside the Franc Zone. Restrictions are to be removed on the import and export of CFA and Malagasy banknotes, although some capital transfers will still be subject to approval by the governments concerned.

When the French Government instituted exchange control to protect the French franc following the May 1968 crisis, other Franc Zone countries were obliged to take similar action in order to maintain free convertibility within the Franc Zone. The CFA and Malagasy francs were devalued following devaluation of the French franc in September 1969.

CENTRAL ISSUING BANKS

Banque Centrale des Etats de l'Afrique Equatoriale et du Cameroun: 29 rue du Colisée, Paris 8c; f. 1955 under the title "Institut d'émission de l'AEF et du Cameroun"; re-created under present title in 1960; issuing house for the four equatorial African member countries and Cameroon; Pres. GEORGES GAUTIER.

Institut d'Emission d'Outre-Mer: 233 blvd. Saint-Germain, Paris 7e; issuing house for the French Pacific territories; Dir.-Gen. ANDRÉ POSTEL-VINAY.

Institut d'Emission Malgache: avc. Le Myre de Vilers, B.P. 550, Tananarive; f. 1962, replacing former Banque de Madagascar et des Comores, under the terms of the Co-operation Agreement signed with France in June 1960; issuing house for Madagascar; Dir.-Gen. JEAN KIENZT.

THE FRANC ZONE

ECONOMIC AID

France's ties with the African Franc Zone countries involve not only monetary arrangements, but also include comprehensive French assistance in the forms of budget support, foreign aid, technical assistance and subsidies on commodity exports.

Official French financial aid and technical assistance to developing countries is administered by the following agencies:

Fonds d'Aide et de Co-opération—FAC: 20 rue Monsieur, Paris 7e. In 1959 FAC took over from FIDES (Fonds d'Investissement pour le Développement Economique et Social) the administration of subsidies and loans from the French Government to the former French African States and Madagascar. FAC is administered by the Secretariat of State for Co-operation, which allocates budgetary funds to it.

Caisse Centrale de Co-opération Economique—CCGE: 233 Boulevard Saint-Germain, Paris 7e. Founded in 1941, and given present name in 1958. French Development Bank which executes the financial operations of FAC. Lends money to member States of the Franc Zone. Dir.-Gen. ANDRÉ POSTEL-VINAY.

Bureau de Liaison des Agents de Coopération Technique: 66 ter rue St.-Didier, Paris 16e.

FRENCH COMMUNITY

The Community was created by the 1958 Constitution, adopted by referendum by the countries of French West Africa (with the exception of Guinea, which opted for total and immediate independence), French Equatorial Africa and Madagascar, which all chose to become member states of the Community. The field of the Community's competence included foreign policy, defence, currency, economic and financial policy, strategic materials and higher education. Between October and December 1958 all the States of the Community were granted internal autonomy.

A Constitutional Act of June 1960 introduced the possibility of concluding agreements whereby a member state could become independent without ceasing to belong to the Community. Six states—Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Gabon, Madagascar and Senegal—decided to become independent within the Community which was then called the "renewed Community", while all the other states preferred total independence. France has concluded co-operation agreements in international law with all these states (including Togo and Cameroon which included territories entrusted to France by international mandate and therefore could not be members of the Community).

The Articles of the Constitution dealing with the Community have not been expressly abolished but are no longer applied today and the various organs of the Community have fallen into abeyance. The two main organizations now responsible for liaison between France and African and Madagascar states are:

Secretariat-General for the Community and African and Madagascan Affairs, 138 rue de Grenelle, Paris 7e; Sec.-Gen. JACQUES FOCCART.

Secretariat of State for Foreign Affairs in Charge of Co-operation, 20 rue Monsieur, Paris 7e; Sec.-Gen. YVON BOURGES.

CUSTOMS UNIONS

Under the terms of the first Yaoundé Convention, July 1963, all CFA countries and Madagascar became associate members of the European Economic Community. This Convention of Association stipulates the gradual abolition of tariff and quota restrictions for the whole Common Market, and therefore the guaranteed markets and prices for African produce in France are now being phased out.

The following regional common markets within the Franc Zone have been formed:

Union Douanière des Etats de l'Afrique de l'Ouest (UDEAO) (see chapter).

Union douanière et économique de l'Afrique centrale (UDEAC) (see chapter).

Organisation Commune Africaine, Malgache et Mauricienne (OCAM): a common market in sugar has been established (see chapter).

INDUS WATERS TREATY

A Treaty governing the use of the Indus Basin waters, signed September 1960.

SIGNATORIES

India

Pakistan

International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank)

THE INDUS BASIN

Some 50 million people depend for their livelihood upon the six rivers of the Indus Basin flowing from the Himalayas to Pakistan and the Arabian Sea. These rivers are the Indus itself, the Jhelum, the Chenab, the Ravi, the Sutlej and the Beas. Before 1947, the rivers fed the irrigation canals of the Punjab in undivided India. At the transfer of power in 1947, most of the irrigated area became part of Pakistan although some canals and head-works went to India. Since 1951 the World Bank has been trying to settle differences between India and Pakistan over the division of river water and these attempts came to fruition in the Indus Waters Treaty 1960. Under the Treaty the waters of the three eastern rivers, the Ravi, Beas and Sutlej will be allocated to India and the waters of the three western rivers, the Indus, the Jhelum and the Chenab to Pakistan. Storage and irrigation works to the value of over U.S. $1,000 million have been constructed.

INDUS COMMISSION

Indian Commissioner: B. S. BANSAL.

Pakistani Commissioner: MIAN KHALIL-UR-RAHMAN.

The two-man Commission is responsible for establishing and maintaining co-operative arrangements for the implementation of the Indus Water Treaty, and for promoting co-operation between the parties in the development of the waters of the rivers. The Commission reports at least once a year to member governments. First Meeting March 1961.

DEVELOPMENT FUNDS

Simultaneously with the signing of the Treaty, an international financial agreement was executed by the Governments of Australia, Canada, Federal Republic of Germany, New Zealand, Pakistan, United Kingdom, United States and by the IBRD. This agreement created the Indus Basin Development Fund to finance the construction of irrigation and other works in Pakistan.

In April 1964 a Supplemental Agreement came into force, providing for a further $315 million in foreign exchange. The aggregate resources of the Fund in foreign exchange and in Pakistani rupees amount to the equivalent of $1,200 million.

The Indus Basin Development Fund also financed a study, completed in 1967, of the water and power resources of West Pakistan to provide the Pakistan Government with a basis for development planning.

In May 1968, an agreement was executed by the Governments of Canada, France, Italy, Pakistan, the United Kingdom, the United States and the IBRD creating the Tarbela Development Fund to finance the construction of a dam on the Indus River at Tarbela.

ADMINISTRATION

The Indus Basin and Tarbela Development Funds are administered by the IBRD.

INDUS BASIN DEVELOPMENT FUND

SYSTEM OF WORKS

The following major operations are to be undertaken by Pakistan and financed from the Indus Basin Development Fund:

1. Construction of the Mangla Dam on the Jhelum River. This Dam was inaugurated in November 1967.
2. Development of 3 million kW of hydroelectric potential in West Pakistan.
3. Construction of six new barrages.
4. Construction or re-modelling of eight link canals. The first link canal system, joining the Chenab and Sutlej Rivers, was completed in March 1965.

The Indus Basin Development Fund Agreement, as supplemented in 1964, provides for the following contributions:

GRANTS

Australia	£A11,634,643
Canada	Canadian $38,910,794
German Federal Republic	DM206,400,000
India*	£62,060,000
New Zealand	£NZ1,503,434
United Kingdom	£34,838,571
United States of America	U.S. $295,590,000

* See also Article 5 of Indus Water Treaty.

LOANS

IBRD (World Bank)	U.S. $ 80,000,000
IDA (International Development Association)	U.S. $ 58,540,000
United States	U.S. $121,220,000

The United States has also contributed U.S. $235,000,000 in Pakistan rupees. Pakistan is providing £440,000 and the remainder of the local currency required.

INDUS WATERS TREATY

TARBELA DEVELOPMENT FUND

The construction of the Tarbela Dam is to be undertaken by Pakistan and financed by the Tarbela Development Fund which will receive the balance of the Indus Basin Development Fund available after the other works have been completed and the following contributions by the parties to the Tarbela Development Fund Agreement:

Canada	Canadian $5,000,000
France	150,000,000 francs

Italy	25,000,000,000 Lire
United Kingdom	£10,000,000
United States	U.S. $50,000,000
IBRD	U.S. $25,000,000

Pakistan will provide the Tarbela Development Fund with rupees for the required local expenditure. The Canadian, U.K. and U.S. contributions can be used only for expenditures in those countries. The contributions of the U.S. and the IBRD are residual.

INDUS WATERS TREATY

1. The Preamble recognizes the need to fix and de-limit the rights and obligations of the Governments of India and of Pakistan concerning the use of the waters of the Indus river system.
2. Allots the waters of the three eastern rivers to India with certain minor exceptions. The transition period will be 10 years.
3. The waters of the three western rivers are allotted to Pakistan with certain stated exceptions.
4. Pakistan undertakes to construct a system of works.
5. India is to contribute to the Indus Basin Development Fund £62.06 million in 10 equal yearly instalments.
6. Both countries recognize their "Common interest in the optimum development of the rivers, and, to that end, they declare their intention to co-operate, by mutual agreement, to the fullest possible extent".
7. The Treaty sets up a permanent Indus Commission consisting of two persons, one appointed by each of the two Governments. The functions of the Commission will be "to establish and maintain co-operative arrangements between the parties in the development of the waters of the rivers".
8. Where differences cannot be settled by agreement between the Commissioners the Treaty establishes machinery for resort to the Administrator (who is to be a highly qualified engineer) for a final decision on technical questions.
9. Differences which cannot be settled by the neutral expert will be treated as disputes, and failing resolution by agreement between the two Governments will be referred to a Court of Arbitration.
10. The Treaty has eight annexures. The principal matters covered in these annexures are:
 - (a) Agricultural use by Pakistan of water from the tributaries of the Ravi river.
 - (b) Agricultural use by India of water from the western rivers.
 - (c) The use of the water of the western rivers by India for the generation of hydroelectric power.
 - (d) The storage of water by India on the western rivers.
 - (e) The questions which may be referred to a neutral expert.
 - (f) The appointment and procedure of a court of arbitration.
 - (g) Transitional arrangements relating to the supply of water to Pakistan during the transition period.
11. The Treaty came into force on January 12th, 1961, on the exchange of ratification.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All the powers of the Bank are vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of one Governor and one alternate appointed by each member country.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of seven Directors responsible for the conduct of operations and answerable to the Board of Governors. Six are elected by Latin American countries and one is designated by the U.S.A.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

ORDINARY CAPITAL RESOURCES

Loans are made to governments, and to public and private bodies for specific economic projects. They are repayable in the currencies lent and their terms range from 10 to 25 years.

Authorized capital $3,150 million, of which $475 million is paid-in and $2,675 million is callable. Action is now being taken by member countries to increase the authorized capital to a total of $5,150 million. The callable portion constitutes, in effect, a guarantee of the securities which the Bank issues in the capital markets in order to increase its resources available for lending.

FUND FOR SPECIAL OPERATIONS

The Fund enables the Bank to make loans for economic and social projects where circumstances call for special treatment, such as lower interest rates and longer repayment terms than those applied to loans from the ordinary resources, and possibility of repayments in whole or in part in local currency.

Authorized subscribed resources: $2,328,009,000. Member countries are acting to increase this sum by $1,500,000,000.

SOCIAL PROGRESS TRUST FUND

The Social Progress Trust Fund was set up in 1961 by the United States to promote social development in Latin America under the Alliance for Progress programme. It has a total capital of $525,000,000 and is administered by IDB under an agreement with the United States. Resources have been used to grant loans in four fields: housing for low income groups; water supply and sanitation installations; land settlement and rural development; and higher education and training related to economic development.

The Fund is now totally committed and its fields of action transferred to the Fund for Special Operations.

OTHER FUNDS

The Bank in 1964 began administering a Canadian Fund created by the Government of Canada within its external aid programme to finance economic, technical and educational assistance projects in Latin America. The Fund currently amounts to 60 million Canadian dollars.

Through a 1961 agreement, supplemented by protocols, the Government of Federal Germany placed under Bank administration a fund which currently amounts to 32,920,000 Deutschmarks, specifically to finance the rehabilitation of Bolivia's national tin mines.

INTER-AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

In 1966, the Government of the United Kingdom established under Bank administration a fund now amounting to £3,021,000 for development projects in Latin America. An additional $2 million was entrusted to the Bank in 1971.

In 1966, the Government of Sweden placed a similar fund under Bank administration totalling $5 million.

In 1969, the Bank entered into an agreement to administer the Populorum Progressio Fund established by the Holy See with an initial contribution of $1 million to benefit low-income sectors in Latin America, especially in the field of land reform.

In 1970 the government of Norway placed under Bank administration a fund amounting to $2 million. The Bank also administers loan resources made available by Argentina for its neighbouring countries.

BOND ISSUES AND LOANS

To increase its lendable ordinary resources, the Bank has issued long-term bonds in the markets of Austria, Belgium, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Switzerland, the United States, the United Kingdom and the German Federal Republic and a short-term issue purchased by Central Banks in Latin America, and by Israel. It has also entered into loan agreements with Finland, the German Federal Republic, Sweden, the United Kingdom, Japan, Norway and Spain. These operations, as of September 30th, 1971, are as follows:

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The Bank provides technical assistance for Latin American development, often together with its loans and frequently independently of them. This assistance is given for the preparation, financing and execution of development plans and projects, the formulation of loan proposals and the development and advanced training, through seminars and other forms of instruction, of personnel specializing in the formulation and implementation of development plans and projects.

A total of $162.4 million has been authorized up to September 1969 for technical assistance, of which $125.8 million is on a reimbursable and $36.6 million on a non-reimbursable basis. The greatest part of the reimbursable assistance consists of loans for the creation of pre-investment funds in various national development institutions to help identify and formulate development projects.

INSTITUTE FOR LATIN AMERICAN INTEGRATION—INSTITUTO PARA LA INTEGRACIÓN DE AMÉRICA LATINA (INTAL)

Cerrito 264, 2° piso (Casilla de Correo 39, Sucursal 1), Buenos Aires, Argentina

The Institute was established in 1965 as a permanent department of the Inter-American Development Bank. Its functions are: to study the regional integration process; carry out research into problems which the integration movement poses for individual countries; organize training courses and seminars; conduct, at the request of member countries, preliminary studies on joint development schemes and on economic integration alternatives available to individual countries; to provide advisory services to the Bank and to other public and private institutions; to disseminate knowledge about the various economic, political, social, institutional, legal, scientific and technological aspects of regional integration.

Director: FELIPE TAMI.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL COMMITTEE FOR EUROPEAN MIGRATION—ICEM

9 rue du Valais, Geneva, Switzerland

ICEM was established in 1951 to achieve the orderly migration of those Europeans who could not migrate without international assistance, to help resettlement of refugees in countries of permanent asylum to sponsor immigration into the less developed countries in accordance with their economic needs. World membership: 31 nations and 8 observer nations.

COUNCIL

In the Council each member country has one representative and one vote. Meetings are normally held once or twice a year at Geneva. Membership is open to any country subscribing to the principle of free movement of peoples and prepared to contribute to the Committee's administrative budget. The Council determines policy, reviews the activities of the Executive Committee, and approves the budget. A chairman is elected at each session.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of representatives of nine member governments, elected annually, and eligible for re-election. The Committee meets regularly before Council sessions, but special sessions may be called.

SUB-COMMITTEE ON BUDGET AND FINANCE

Composed of representatives of five member governments elected annually by the Council. It is responsible for studying financial questions and making appropriate recommendations to the Executive Committee and Council.

SUB-COMMITTEE ON CO-ORDINATION OF TRANSPORT

Membership is open to any member government. It meets once a year, studies matters concerning transport and makes recommendations to the Council.

SECRETARIAT

Director: JOHN F. THOMAS (U.S.A.).

Deputy-Director: G. MASELLI (Italy).

ACTIVITIES

ICEM's objectives are threefold: to effect the movement of refugees to countries offering final resettlement; to meet the specific needs of overseas countries by providing migration from Europe in the sectors of their economies where government-sponsored migration is required; and to promote, through selective migration, the socio-economic advancement of Latin American countries as a vital form of development aid.

The tasks of ICEM range from helping an individual refugee or a national migrant to assisting member governments in the development of their migration programmes.

ICEM helps to select migrants and refugees for emigration to receiving countries, such as Australia, Latin America, South Africa and the United States of America. Upon request from member governments, ICEM also provides essential services such as counselling, orientation, medical examination, vocational and language training, placement and the organization of adaptation courses. Furthermore, ICEM arranges transport at a moderate cost, finances the movement of those refugees and migrants who are unable to meet their own expenses.

The movement of refugees to countries offering them opportunity and security is a major function of ICEM. To assure the efficient resettlement of 40,000 to 45,000 uprooted people each year ICEM closely co-ordinates its refugee activities with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the United States Refugee Program and with other governmental and non-governmental organizations. ICEM has implemented the processing and movement of 816,309 refugees between 1952 and 1969.

ICEM's programmes for Latin America aim at making a contribution to the solution of development problems by providing skilled workers and technicians through immigration.

Immigrants with experience and professional knowledge of modern techniques form an important stepping-stone in the process of speeding up economic and social development. Through its selective migration programme ICEM is transferring qualified Europeans to vital sectors of industry agriculture and education for which sufficient man-power cannot be found on the national labour markets. Training centres and demonstration projects have been established with immigrant instructors to teach local labourers and farmers improved methods.

Telephones: (Montreal) 866-1011; (Geneva) 98-33-66.

Founded 1945 to promote safe, regular and economical air transport, to foster air commerce and to provide a means of international air transport collaboration. Membership: 90 international airlines (active members), 16 domestic airlines (associate members).

ORGANIZATION

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The basic source of IATA authority. All active members have an equal vote and decisions are by majority. The A.G.M. elects the President and the Executive Committee. It designates committees to be organized by the Executive Committee.

President (1971-72): FLOYD D. HALL (EAL).

President Elect (1972-73): KEITH GRANVILLE (BOAC).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of eighteen elected members. Carries out policy between Annual General Meetings, and is assisted by Financial, Legal, Technical, Traffic Advisory and Medical Committees.

Members: Sheikh NAJEB ALAMUDDIN (MEA), Dr. WALTER BERCHTOLD (Swissair), ERIK DE CARVALHO (Varig), Cheikh FAL (Air Afrique), GEORGES GALICHON (Air France), J. C. GILMER (CP-Air), KEITH GRANVILLE (BOAC), F. D. HALL (EAL), S. ASADA (JAL), Dr. H. CULMANN (Lufthansa), Lt.-Gen. A. M. KHADEMI (Iran Air), Chief A. S. FUNDIKIRA (East African), K. VAN DER WAL (KLM), Sir ROLAND WILSON (Qantas), Dr. OSCAR MACHADO ZULOAGA (VIASA).

TRAFFIC CONFERENCES

Negotiation of fares and rates is carried out through the IATA Traffic Conferences, with separate meetings considering passenger and cargo matters. Decisions are unanimous and cannot become effective without the approval of interested governments. The conferences are held in various world cities, usually at two year intervals, in the autumn for passenger operations and the following spring for matters involving cargo. The three IATA Traffic Conferences have their office in Geneva, with two Traffic Service Offices located in New York and Singapore.

SECRETARIAT

Carries out the day-to-day administration of IATA.

Director-General: KNUT HAMMARSKJÖLD (Geneva/Montreal).

Assistant Director-General (Technical): Dr. R. R. SHAW (Montreal).

Assistant Director-General (Traffic): H. DON REYNOLDS (New York/Geneva/Montreal).

INTERNATIONAL AIR TRANSPORT ASSOCIATION

PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES

Finance: Member airlines may settle their international accounts through the IATA Clearing House in Geneva, enabling a single cash settlement of all debts in dollars or convertible sterling.

Technical Problems. There is a full and free exchange of experience and information between airlines, and experts study such problems as minimum noise procedures for take-off and landing, linking of airline telecommunications systems and the application of production planning and control techniques to maintenance. Other groups are concerned with problems of navigation aids, turbine fuels, helicopter operations and supersonic transport.

Air Traffic: Subject to the approval of governments, agreements are reached on international fares and rates through the Traffic Conferences. IATA also furthers the standardization of documentation and all phases of passenger, baggage and cargo handling.

International Law: IATA formulates and represents airlines' views on international conventions affecting the legal position of air carriers in various fields including liability and armed aggression. Standardized Conditions of Contract governing carriage of passengers and cargo have been drawn up, and Conditions of Carriage for all aspects of transport are in preparation.

Information and Documentation: IATA acts as a documentation centre, collecting and issuing statistics, internal manuals, technical surveys, reports and publicity material.

International Co-operation: IATA works closely with the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) and also co-operates with other bodies such as the International Telecommunication Union (ITU), The World Meteorological Organization (WMO) and the International Standards Organization.

BUDGET

Financed from dues paid by member airlines in proportion to the amount of international air traffic carried.

PUBLICATIONS

IATA Bulletin (annual, English, French, and Spanish).

IATA News Review (eight times a year, in English).

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITIES—IAU

1 rue Miollis, Paris 15e, France

Founded 1950 to promote practical academic co-operation and to assist university institutions throughout the world. Members: 546 universities and institutions of higher learning in 101 countries; 8 associate members (international university organizations).

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Composed of the full and associate members and meets at least once every five years. Determines general policy and elects the President and members of the Administrative Board.

MEETINGS

Nice	1950
Istanbul	1955
Mexico City	1960
Tokyo	1965
Montreal	1970

Sixth General Conference to meet in Moscow 1975.

ADMINISTRATIVE BOARD

Composed of the President and fourteen other members, including the Vice-President. Meets annually. Gives effect to decisions of the General Conference and directs the work of the secretariat.

President (1970-75): VELI MERIKOSKI, Professor of Law, University of Helsinki, Finland.

Vice-President (1970-75): A. E. SLOMAN, Vice-Chancellor, University of Essex, U.K.

INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITIES BUREAU

The permanent secretariat of the Association. Carries out day-to-day administration between meetings of the Administrative Board and General Conference.

Secretary-General: H. M. R. KEYES (U.K.).

PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES

Documentation and Information: The secretariat is a source of information on higher education throughout the world. Its reference library of published and unpublished material in many languages is probably unique of its kind. An extensive network of contacts with national and international bodies, academic and governmental, facilitates the international exchange of information.

Research and Studies: These activities are most closely related to the themes of the General Conferences in an attempt to contribute in an international setting to the classification and resolution of major problems of higher educational policy. Since 1960 special efforts in this field have been concentrated in the Joint UNESCO-IAU Research Programme in Higher Education. This is carried out with the support of major private foundations and includes systematic studies of urgent problems connected with the rôle of universities in the modern world.

Publications Programme: A quarterly Bulletin provides a chronicle of university affairs in all parts of the world. A series of reference works published at regular intervals gives detailed information about university institutions and organizations concerned with higher education. Special reports and issues in the series of "Papers" of the Association are devoted to selected research themes and studies.

BUDGET

Annual expenditure amounts to approximately $200,000, excluding expenditure from special grants for the Joint UNESCO-IAU research programme.

SELECTED PUBLICATIONS

Bulletin of the International Association of Universities (English and French; quarterly).

International Handbook of Universities (English; every three years—5th edition, 1971).

INTERNATIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

ORGANIZATION

CONGRESSES

Meets every two years. Composed of delegates from member states and observers from governments and international organizations. Promotes policy, discusses economic issues, examines conclusions reached by the International Council. Recent Congresses have concentrated on a particular theme: in 1971, "Technology and Society—A Challenge to Private Enterprise" was chosen. The twenty-third Congress was held in Vienna in April 1971. Next Congress: Rio de Janeiro, May 1973.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL

Governing body of the organization. Composed of permanent delegates elected by the National Committees. Considers, co-ordinates, amends and approves reports and activities of the Technical Commissions. Meets twice annually and reports to Congress.

President: Baron HOTTINGUER (France).

Vice-Presidents: The Chairmen of the National Committees.

Chairman of the Budget Commission: ALFRED E. SARASIN (Switzerland).

Treasurer: (vacant).

Secretary-General: WALTER HILL (U.K.).

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

Established in 43 countries. Composed of leading trade associations and individual companies. Each Committee has its own secretariat, and draws public and government attention to ICC policies.

External Affairs Director: PIERRE JONNERET.

Information Section Head: JEAN-PIERRE PRÉVOST.

Internal Administration: ANDRÉ FERMON.

Meetings-Documentation: WLADIMIR ZWEGUINTZOW.

ACTIVITIES

Standardization: ICC brings together national representatives and invites them to agree on standard rules for commercial transactions.

Economic Problems: Policy statements and analyses of conventions, regulations and agreements are submitted to governments for their consideration.

Settlement of Business Disputes. The good offices of ICC are available in international business disputes. Should conciliation fail, the differences can be settled by the Court of Arbitration in the form required by law, so that the decision can be enforced by the courts if necessary.

Industry and Finance. ICC has recommended greater protection for trade-marks and patents, fair treatment of foreign private investments, a multilateral guarantee system and the abolition of double taxation. It has also urged the simplification of governmental regulations and formalities and the standardization of sales contracts.

Transport and Banking. ICC sponsors consultations between carriers and users on transport of goods and promotes a joint policy for all branches of commercial transport. Its standard practices for commercial credits are used by banks all over the world, and it has recommended international rules for payment and transfer orders.

Distribution and Advertising. New methods to increase efficient distribution are publicized by ICC, which also compiles statistics for traders. It promotes fair standards of advertising, standardization of advertising contracts and research into press, cinema, outdoor and television media.

Information Exchange. A Centre for the Exchange of Information on Distribution has been established. Training courses are organized for staff of Chambers of Commerce in the developing countries and the International Bureau of Chambers of Commerce makes available information on a wide range of commercial subjects.

Co-operation. ICC co-operates with a large number of international organizations, both governmental and non-governmental. Liaison offices with the United Nations are maintained in Bangkok, Geneva and New York.

BUDGET

The International Chamber of Commerce is a private organization financed entirely by members' contributions and charges for certain services and publications.

PUBLICATION

A monthly bulletin, ICC Information, is published in English and French and sent to ICC members and other interested parties.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANISATION OF EMPLOYERS —IOE

98 rue de St. Jean, 1201 Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 31 73 50.

Founded in 1920 and reorganized in 1948, IOE represents the interests of private employers in the social field, defends free enterprise and provides a permanent liaison in labour matters.

World membership: 87 federations in 77 countries.

ORGANIZATION

Hon. President: M. P. WALINE.

GENERAL COUNCIL

President (June 1971–June 1972): MASSOUD GHAYOUR (Iran).

The Council is composed of two delegates sent by each affiliated federation, and is the supreme body of the IOE. It meets once a year. Among its functions are the drawing up of the annual budget and the review of the events of the previous year.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Chairman: G. BERGENSTRÖM (Sweden).

Vice-Chairmen: MOHAMED GHALI (Tunisia), E. G. ERDMANN (Federal Republic of Germany), E. P. NEILAN (U.S.A.), N. H. TATA (India), F. YLLANES RAMOS (Mexico).

The Committee is composed of one representative from each affiliated federation. It meets three or four times a year and formulates general policy.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: R. LAGASSE (Belgium).

Responsible for day-to-day administration, and executes the decisions of the General Council and Executive Committee.

RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED NATIONS

The International Organisation of Employers is one of the fifteen international non-governmental organizations having category "I" consultative status with the Economic and Social Council of UN and consultative status with the International Labour Organisation in Geneva.

SUMMARY OF THE STATUTES

CONSTITUTION AND OBJECTIVE

ARTICLES 1 and 2. The IOE is an international organization of national central employers' federations. It is to maintain contact between members, to keep them informed of developments in social questions and to promote common discussion of these questions and their repercussions.

MEMBERSHIP AND ADMINISTRATION

ARTICLES 3–5. Any central employers' federation with the aims given above may become a member, provided that it does not include any workers' organization, that it defends the principles of free enterprise, and that it is a free and independent voluntary organization outside governmental or other control. All applications are considered by the General Council. If there is no such central federation, individual federations may be admitted with the permission of the General Council. The administration is to consist of the General Council, the Executive Committee and the Secretary-General.

GENERAL COUNCIL

ARTICLES 6–13. The General Council shall be composed of two delegates from each central federation, accompanied by any technical advisers. Other members are represented according to the conditions of their admission. The General Council shall elect a President and two Vice-Presidents. The President shall serve for one year, to be succeeded in turn by the senior and junior Vice-Presidents. The General Council shall pass the annual budget and completed accounts at its annual meeting. Special meetings may be held. Voting shall only be held on administrative questions, and shall be done by a simple majority. Each delegation shall have two votes.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

ARTICLES 14–18. The Executive Committee shall be elected at the annual meeting of the General Council, and the General Council shall fix the number of members. The Executive Committee shall appoint the Secretary-General and decide on proposals made by the Secretariat. The Committee shall hold regular meetings.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS INSTITUTE—IPI

Münstergasse 9, 8001 Zürich, Switzerland

Telephone: (051) 34 48 38.

Founded in 1951. A non-governmental association of editors, publishers and news broadcasters independent of governments who support the principles of a free and responsible Press. Membership: 1,600 (publishers and journalists of press, radio and TV systems) from 60 countries spread over five continents.

ORGANIZATION

ANNUAL ASSEMBLY

Composed of delegates from all member countries. The Assembly elects the Executive Board, appoints the Director and lays down Institute policy.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of the Institute. The Board consists of editors from 20 countries, who are elected by the Annual Assembly. It meets when necessary, but must do so at least once a year.

Chairman: Miss AW SIAN (Hong Kong).

Vice-Chairmen: ABDI İPEKCI (Turkey), L. K. JAKANDE (Nigeria).

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

Established in every country where the press is free. Composed of the leading editors of these countries, the Committees recruit the membership, report to the Secretariat on developments affecting the press and conduct the business of the Institute in their countries.

MEMBERSHIP

Comprises two categories: full members and associate members.

Full membership is open to persons who have responsibility for the editorial and news policies of newspapers, weekly and monthly journals or news agencies and of radio and television systems and who are dedicated to the principles of freedom of the press.

Associate membership is open to persons whose work is associated with journalism in its editorial aspects but who cannot qualify for full membership because they are not executives of newspapers or agencies; for example newspaper correspondents and commentators, members of journalism faculties and the like.

SECRETARIAT

Director: ERNEST MEYER (France).

AIMS

The International Press Institute was founded in 1951 by 34 newspaper publishers and editors from North America, Western Europe, Latin America and Asia, who met in New York to study the role of the press in the post-war world. They believed that if journalists from different countries and different parts of the world were brought together to discuss current problems and the improvement of professional journalism, they would at the same time learn to understand each other's individual problems better. Free access to information and free transmission and dissemination of news are the guarantee for a truthful picture given of the problems of other people.

The Preamble of the Constitution of the International Press Institute, defining the essential aims of the Institute, states:

"World peace depends upon understanding between people and peoples. If peoples are to understand one another, it is essential that they have good information. Therefore, a fundamental step towards understanding among peoples is to bring about understanding among the journalists of the world. In accordance with this belief there is established an organization to work toward the following objectives:

1. The furtherance and safeguarding of freedom of the press, by which is meant: free access to the news, free transmission of news, free publication of newspapers, free expression of views;

2. The achievement of understanding among journalists and so among peoples.

3. The promotion of the free exchange of accurate and balanced news among nations.

4. The improvement of the practices of journalism."

ACTIVITIES

Defence of Press Freedom

IPI takes the following action: publication of the facts in the monthly IPI Report; protests to governments; public protests spread over the world through news agencies, newspapers, radio and television; direct pressure on governments and direct intervention.

Meetings

Regional meetings have been a regular feature of the Institute's programme. These are held between newspapermen from pairs of countries to discuss mutual problems and misunderstandings and ways to improve relations through the press. Since the initial Franco-German meetings which began in 1954, meetings have been organized between British and American journalists, British and German, Greek and Turkish, American and Canadian and Korean and Japanese as well as meetings between British, French and American editors and British, French, German, American and Canadian. Articles and newspapermen have been exchanged and newspaper columns thrown open for frank discussion of controversial topics.

Seminars are arranged with the aim of improving the practices of journalism. The first journalism seminar, held in Zurich in 1954, grouped German and Austrian journalists for a ten-day course in relations between the press and government in a democratic country. Other seminars have been for United Nations correspondents, on Science Writing, Security in the Sixties, Medical Reporting, The Woman's Page, Problems of Disarmament, Crime Reporting, Agriculture in Today's Press, Reporting the Air, New Perspectives on Strategy, The Press and the International Economic Challenge, the Atlantic Seminar in Brussels and Paris, and the Libel Symposium. Give-away papers symposium, Bi-lateral Austro-Italian meeting on South Tyrol, Bi-lateral American-Japanese meetings.

Economic and foreign editors have been brought together for seminars on the European Economic Communities and the Free Trade Area, and on European Economic Integration.

Improvement of the Practices of Journalism

A programme to train staff of Asian newspapers was launched in 1960 and a number of workshop seminars have been held with the aim of improving newspaper techniques. IPI Consultants have visited newspapers, particularly those published in Asian languages, to give advice and training to editorial and management staffs. The Institute's active work in Asia began with two plenary Asian meetings held in Tokyo in 1956 and in Kandy, Ceylon, in 1957. Since then, the Press Institute of India has been launched as a result of collaboration between IPI and a group of leading Indian newspaper publishers and editors. Other institutes followed in South Korea, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Malaysia, providing newspapers with their own bodies to study professional problems and train journalists.

In March 1963, the first IPI training course for African journalists opened in Nairobi, Kenya. Since then over 200 journalists from a dozen African countries, who have studied at IPI residential courses in Nairobi and in Lagos, Nigeria, have moved on to responsible posts and the IPI certificate of training has become recognized as the mark of a qualified journalist. Instruction has also been given to African newspaper cameramen and IPI has given the first course for African women journalists.

Research

A Research Section prepares studies on problems of international journalism. Information is frequently supplied on such questions as legislation affecting the press, professional standards and training in journalism.

Library and Press Centre

This Centre is maintained at the headquarters of IPI in Zurich. Material on a wide range of press subjects, including news coverage, legislation and freedom of the press, is at the disposal of members.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS INSTITUTE

BUDGET

The Institute is supported by members' subscriptions and donations from publishers. It began with the aid of the United States Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations. The current African training scheme is financed by a $300,000 grant from the Ford Foundation which was made in 1965 at the termination of the previous two-year scheme backed by the Foundation. A grant of $813,700 was made by the Rockefeller Foundation in March 1965 to support the Asian Programme up to May 1968. In 1967 the Ford Foundation made a grant of $150,000 for a programme of activities to improve objective news coverage between countries.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

Chairman: Dr. JAN ZELENKA (U.S.S.R.).

Vice-Chairmen: Representatives of the German Democratic Republic and the Lithuanian S.S.R.

There are between 7 and 13 members in the Council, which meets annually. The last meeting was in October 1970, in Smokovec.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Consists of one representative from each member organization. Makes decisions about OIRT policy; directs the activities of Committees and appoints new ones. The General Assembly meets once a year.

COMMISSIONS

Technical Commission:

Chairman: B. IONIȚA (Romania).

A consultative body of representatives from member organizations with six study groups: wired broadcasting and transmission lines; electroacoustics, studio technique and sound recording; television; radio waves propagation and broadcasting systems; stereophony; automation and computers in broadcasting.

Radio Programme Commission:

Chairman: KÁLMÁN KISS (Hungary).

Considers theoretical and practical problems in sound radio programmes. Organized like the Technical Commission.

Television Programme Commission and Intervision Council:

Chairman: Mr. SLAVKOV (Bulgaria).

Organized like the Technical Commission. It considers programmes, and the organization of the exchange of television programmes. The exchange of Intervision programmes and the daily television news exchange are co-ordinated by the Intervision and Technical Co-ordination Centres, which are part of the OIRT permanent services.

TECHNICAL CENTRE

Director: H.-A. JUŠKEVIČIUS.

The work of the Technical Commission and its study groups is organized and co-ordinated at the Centre.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

General Secretary: J. HŘEBÍK (Czechoslovakia).

BUDGET

INTERNATIONAL RADIO AND TELEVISION ORGANIZATION

INTERVISION

The Intervision network was set up in 1960 under OIRT to link the television services of Czechoslovakia, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary and Poland. Links were extended to the U.S.S.R. in 1961 (the Soviet Central Television and TV services of the Ukraine, Estonia and Latvia). Bulgaria and Romania joined in 1963. In 1965 Finnish Television and TV services of Byelorussia and Lithuania joined. The TV service of Moldavia joined in 1967.

Intervision is controlled by the OIRT Administrative Council and decisions about programmes are made by the Intervision Council. Programme details are settled by the Intervision International Programme Centre.

There is a regular exchange with the Eurovision network.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

Geneva, Switzerland

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC*

THE LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES—LORCS*

THE NATIONAL RED CROSS SOCIETIES

COMMON ORGANS

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE RED CROSS

The supreme deliberative body of the International Red Cross. Composed of delegations of National Red Cross, Red Crescent and Red Lion and Sun Societies, of the States parties to the Geneva Conventions and of the International Committee of the Red Cross and of the League of Red Cross Societies. Conference's function is to secure unity of effort between the National Societies, the International Committee and the League. It usually meets every four years. (Last Conference: Istanbul, September 1969.)

STANDING COMMISSION

President: The COUNTESS OF LIMERICK (United Kingdom).

The Commission meets twice a year in ordinary session. Its functions are to prepare the International Conference and to settle any disputes between the International Committee and the League. It consists of two members each from the ICRC and the League, and five members chosen by the Conference.

MEETINGS OF THE THREE PRESIDENTS

The President of the Standing Commission, the President of the International Committee and the Chairman of the Board of Governors meet once between Standing Commission meetings and whenever else they wish. They present a report to each Standing Commission.

THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC

7 avenue de la Paix, 1211 Geneva 1, Switzerland

Founded in 1863 and assumed present title in 1876. The ICRC is the guardian of the Principles of the Red Cross and the Geneva Conventions.

PRINCIPLES OF THE RED CROSS

Humanity.

Impartiality.

Neutrality.

Independence.

Voluntary Service. The Red Cross is a voluntary organization not prompted in any way by desire for gain.

Unity. There can be only one Red Cross Society in any one country. It must be open to all. It must carry out its work throughout the whole territory.

Universality.

GENEVA CONVENTIONS

The first Geneva Convention (Geneva Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick in Armed Forces in the field) was signed in 1864 by twelve countries. In 1929 a second Convention was approved, concerning the treatment of prisoners of war.

Under the following 4 Conventions agreed in 1949 protection is bestowed upon:

1. The wounded and sick in the armed forces, doctors and medical personnel, chaplains.
2. The wounded and sick and medical personnel at sea; the shipwrecked.
3. Prisoners of war.
4. Civilians.

* ICRC and LORCS were jointly awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1963.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

The ICRC is an independent institution of a private character, neutral as regards politics, ideology and religion. It is exclusively composed of Swiss nationals. Members are co-opted, and their total number may not exceed 25. The international character of the ICRC is based on its mission and not on its composition.

PRESIDENTIAL COUNCIL

Consists of the President and at least three other members of the Committee. Executes current work between sessions of the International Committee.

DIRECTORATE

Secretary-General: JEAN-LOUIS LE FORT.

Special Assistant to the President and Director of Operations: RAYMOND COURVOISIER.

Director, Department of Principles and Law: CLAUDE PILLOUD.

FINANCE

The ICRC's work is financed by a voluntary annual grant from governments parties to the Geneva Conventions, and similar grants from National Red Cross Societies and the Swiss public.

PUBLICATIONS

International Review of the Red Cross (monthly): French and English editions.

THE LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES— LORCS

17 Chemin des Grets, Petit-Saconnex, 1211 Geneva 19, Switzerland

Founded in 1919, by the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese Red Cross Societies to be a permanent organ of liaison between national societies.

MEMBERS

National Red Cross, Red Crescent, Red Lion and Sun Societies in 114 countries at the end of 1971, with an aggregate junior and adult membership of over 224 million.

FUNCTIONS

1. To facilitate, as the International Federation of the National Societies, their humanitarian action at all times and carry out the responsibilities devolving on it in this capacity, being a permanent organ of liaison, co-ordination and study among the various National Societies, and having the duty of assisting them in organizing and carrying out their work on both national and international level.

2. To promote the establishment and development of an independent and duly authorized National Society in each country.
3. To be the official representative of the Member Societies in the international field.
4. To accept the mandates entrusted to it by the International Conference of the Red Cross and the Board of Governors.

FINANCE

The League of Red Cross Societies is financed by the contributions of Member Societies on a pro-rata basis. Each relief action is financed by contributions specified for that action and the development programme is also financed on a voluntary basis by National Societies.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Chairman: JOSÉ BARROSO CHÁVEZ (Mexico)

The Board is the highest authority of the League and meets every two years. It is composed of representatives from all National Societies Members of the League.

Meetings:	1961	Prague	1963	Geneva
	1965	Vienna	1967	The Hague
	1969	Istanbul	1971	Mexico

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Meets every two years, alternately with the Board of Governors. It is composed of representatives from the Societies to which the Chairman and nine Vice-Chairmen of the Board of Governors belong and from nineteen other Societies appointed by the Board of Governors for a four-year term. It directs the League between sessions of the Board of Governors.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES AND STANDING FINANCE COMMISSION

Development Programme Advisory Committee.
Disaster Relief Advisory Committee.
Health and Social Service Advisory Committee.

Youth Advisory Committee.
Nursing Advisory Committee.
Standing Finance Commission.

These Committees meet, in principle, once every two years. Members are elected by the Board of Governors and number between 10 and 16 except the Standing Finance Commission which numbers 14.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: HENRIK BEER (Sweden).

Deputy Secretary-General: NEDIM ABUT (Turkey).

Under Secretary-General (a.i.): YVONNE HENTSCH (Switzerland).

Treasurer-General: Baron VAN ZEELAND (Belgium).

The Secretariat has a staff of 100 from some 22 countries. Its work falls into two main categories, relief in times of natural disaster and development of National Societies. The League is recognized by the United Nations as the main co-ordinating agency in emergency stages of international disaster relief, and launches an appeal if requested by the National Society, or the government, of the country concerned. In the field of development, Regional Service Bureaux, in consultation and close co-operation with the technical bureaux, provides assistance on request to National Societies in process of formation or development by means of regional, field and technical delegates, regional seminars, training institutes and conferences, and help established National Societies develop and extend existing services and set up new ones if and when the need arises.

TECHNICAL BUREAUX

Health and Social Service, promoting and co-ordinating National Societies' activities in first aid, preventive medicine, organization of blood transfusion services and donor recruitment and social welfare activities.

Nursing, which reinforces the efforts of National Societies to improve recruitment and training of nursing personnel for their own health programmes and state needs, provides documentation for basic and post-basic nursing schools, training of auxiliary nursing personnel and development of "Health in the Home" instruction.

Red Cross Youth: promotes and co-ordinates activities by children and young people in fields of health, community and international service, and international friendship and understanding. 108 National Societies have Youth Sections or involve young people in their programmes.

Information, which provides National Societies with publications, photographs, films, tape recordings and other audio-visual materials, maintains constant contact with international information media; is responsible for all League publications, in particular the review Panorama, published eight times a year. All periodicals appear in English, French and Spanish.

International Relations, which is entrusted with co-ordinating and strengthening the relations of the League with all governmental and non-governmental international organizations, which might influence League policy. The League maintains close relations with many inter-governmental organizations, in particular the World Health Organization, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and UNESCO, and non-governmental organizations.

INTERNATIONAL SECRETARIAT FOR VOLUNTEER SERVICE—ISVS

10-12 Chemin de Surville, Petit Lancy, 1213 Geneva, Switzerland

Established 1962 to support and assist national volunteer service programmes. Members: 55 governments.

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY

Composed of governments of countries attending the 1962 International Conference on Middle Level Manpower and of those governments which have since been voted into membership. It is the ultimate authority on policies and scope of the organization. Membership is open to all countries which are members of UN or its Specialized Agencies.

COUNCIL

Composed of 16 governments which contribute support to ISVS, either in the form of cash or in the assignment of personnel, or both. It determines questions of policy, programme and budget.

SECRETARIAT

Responsible for the executive functions of the organization.

Secretary-General: MAXIME-LEOPOLD ZOLLNER (Dahomey).

REGIONAL OFFICES

Asia: ISVS Asian Office, 303 Trade Centre Bldg., Padre Faura and A. Mabini Sts., Ermita, Manila, Philippines.

Latin America: Secretaría Internacional para el Servicio Voluntario, Oficina de Latinoamérica, Cangallo 524, 2 Piso, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

North America: 1028 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Suite 523, Washington, D.C. 20036, U.S.A.

AIMS

1. To support and assist national volunteer programmes by serving as an information and experience exchange clearing house.
2. To encourage the formation of new national volunteer service programmes.
3. To provide technical assistance where requested in the setting up and support of national volunteer service organizations, both those for service overseas and those within their own borders.

4. To co-operate with other organizations, international, governmental and private in working to increase and improve volunteer service, and to increase the supply of skilled manpower in the developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

1. Circulation of volunteer information, documentation and statistics, films, language and other training materials for volunteers.
2. Sponsorship of international and regional conferences and seminars about volunteer service and related subjects.

3. Technical assistance for the establishment of national volunteer organizations.
4. Aid to international co-ordination of volunteer service.

FINANCE

The Secretariat is financed by contributions of member governments, principally those of the Council.

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS SATELLITE CONSORTIUM—INTELSAT

950 L'Enfant Plaza South, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20024, U.S.A.

Founded in August 1964 by agreements which provide interim arrangements for the establishment of a global commercial communications satellite system. Definitive arrangements, agreed upon in May 1971, have been signed by most of the member countries and are expected to come into force in 1972.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership of INTELSAT is available to all states which are members of the International Telecommunication Union, and as at December 1st, 1971, comprised 81 states.

AIMS

The prime objective of INTELSAT is to provide the satellite facilities required for an international public telecommunications system, operating on commercial principles and available, on a non-discriminatory basis, to all areas of the world. States may invest in the system, with consequent participation in development, construction (including provision of equipment), operation and ownership.

ORGANIZATION

INTERIM ARRANGEMENTS

Under the interim arrangements the governing body is the Interim Communications Satellite Committee (ICSC). It is responsible for the development and operation of the "space segment" of the global system of INTELSAT. (The "space segment" means the communications satellites and the ground equipment required for their tracking and control.) Members of INTELSAT are represented in ICSC on an investment quota basis. As at December 1st, 1971, there were 18 committee members representing 49 states.

Pursuant to the interim arrangements and under the authority of the ICSC, the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT), a private corporation set up by an Act of the U.S. Congress, at present acts as the Manager for INTELSAT in the development and operation of the space segment.

DEFINITIVE ARRANGEMENTS

The new international agreements are expected to come into force in 1972, following ratification by at least two-thirds of the former member states of INTELSAT, holding at least two-thirds of the total investment quotas. Under these agreements INTELSAT will possess juridical personality and will have a structure consisting of the following organs:

Assembly of Parties, consisting of one representative from each INTELSAT member state. Concerned with matters of interest to members in their capacity as sovereign states, including amendments to the agreements and consideration of general policy and long-term objectives. Will confirm the appointment of the Director-General. Each member state will have one vote. Substantive decisions will require a majority of two-thirds. Ordinary meetings will be scheduled every two years.

Meeting of Signatories, consisting of one representative of each government or its designated communications entity. Concerned with financial and operational aspects of the INTELSAT system, including future increases in the capital ceiling (basically $500,000,000), general rules for approval of earth stations, allotment of space segment capacity and for establishment of rates of charge, and considering reports on finances and future programmes. Each member will have one vote. Substantive decisions will require a two-thirds majority. Meetings will be held once in every calendar month.

Board of Governors, consisting of 20 to 25 Governors representing the major users (countries) and groups of smaller users. Will have broad responsibilities and powers for the development and operation of the INTELSAT system. Will act by weighted vote, with votes distributed according to financial interest (financial interest determined according to current utilization of the system). A weighted vote of two-thirds will be needed for substantive decisions. No Governor will cast a vote greater than 40 per cent of the total, and the concurrence of at least four Governors will be needed to carry an affirmative vote or to impose a veto. The Board of Governors will meet as often as necessary, but at least four times a year.

Executive Organ, headed initially by a Secretary-General and after December 31st, 1976, by a Director-General. The Secretary-General will have limited management responsibilities, including the provision of financial and administrative services, and will have a small staff to assist him in his functions; COMSAT will continue to furnish management services of a technical and operational nature, under contract to INTELSAT and reporting directly to the Board of Governors. After December 31st, 1976, the Director General, appointed by and responsible to the Board of Governors, will be responsible for all management services, though he is expected to contract-out technical and operational functions to one or more competent entities so far as is practicable.

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS SATELLITE CONSORTIUM

ACTIVITIES

SATELLITES

Four satellites, in synchronous orbit, were in service as at December 1st, 1971, covering more than 90 per cent of the earth's inhabited area. Two of these satellites are over the Atlantic, one over the Pacific and one over the Indian Ocean. Together they provide a total capacity equivalent to 6,000 to 13,000 telephone circuits, including channels permitting global distribution of television programmes. Other satellites are in orbit as reserves in case of need. At the end of 1971 there were approximately 2,700 telephone circuits in full-time use. In 1971, more than 1,400 hours of television programmes were transmitted to one or more receiving earth stations and widely broadcast.

The following is a list of the satellites in service as at December 1st, 1971:

INTELSAT IV F-2 was placed in service in March 1971. It is carrying traffic over the Atlantic.

INTELSAT III F-3 was launched and placed in service over the Pacific in February 1969. In July 1969 it was relocated over the Indian Ocean, where it is carrying traffic.

INTELSAT III F-4 was launched and placed in service in May 1969. It is carrying traffic over the Pacific.

INTELSAT III F-7 was placed in service in May 1970. It is carrying traffic over the Atlantic.

There have, in addition, been some failures, either of launch attempts or of operational satellites. INTELSAT financial planning is based on the statistical assumption that one out of four launchings will fail. There have also been a number of temporary interruptions of service, generally for less than 5 minutes and caused in most cases by earth station difficulties. As a representative measure of the reliability of the INTELSAT system, the monthly record of continuity of service (including the effect of interruptions at earth stations as well as in satellites) averaged better than 99.6 per cent over the 18 months ended August 31st, 1971. INTELSAT satellites further improve the overall reliability of international communications by restoring circuits temporarily interrupted due to faults in transoceanic cables. Such faults, occurring on the average 3-6 times monthly, would otherwise interrupt communications on the affected route for periods of up to one week.

Each INTELSAT III satellite has a nominal capacity of 1,200 telephone circuits or up to 4 simultaneous TV transmissions, and an estimated life of 5 years in orbit. The INTELSAT IV satellite has a design life of 7 years and a capacity of from 3,000 to 9,000 telephone circuits, depending upon the transmission techniques and antenna arrangements selected. This capacity includes ample television transmission capability. Four such satellites—two over the Atlantic and one each over the Pacific and Indian Oceans—will be capable of accommodating the anticipated growth of traffic through 1974-75. A total of eight INTELSAT IV satellites have been ordered, to provide for possible launch failures and to enable spare satellites to be placed in orbit as reserves. INTELSAT is currently studying possible types of still more advanced satellites to be used in the future.

EARTH STATIONS

Earth stations which work with the INTELSAT satellites are the property of organizations in the countries in which they are located. INTELSAT establishes performance characteristics for these stations, taking account of the recommended standards of the International Telecommunication Union, and approves their access to the satellites.

It is expected that by early 1972 some 69 standard earth station antennas will be carrying commercial traffic via the INTELSAT system. These are distributed as follows:

Africa (6): Morocco, Kenya, Zaire, Nigeria, Senegal, Madagascar.

Asia (18): Republic of China, Japan (3), Philippines (2), Thailand (2), Hong Kong (2), Indonesia, India, Iran, Korea, Malaysia, Pakistan, Singapore.

Australia and Oceania (5): Australia (3), Guam, New Zealand.

Central and South America (12): Argentina (2), Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Venezuela, Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica, Martinique.

Europe and the Middle East (17): France (2), German Federal Republic (2), Greece, Iran, Italy (2), Lebanon, Spain (3), U.K. (2), Bahrain, Kuwait, Sweden.

North America and Hawaii (11): Canada (2), U.S.A. (9).

This total is expected to increase to 82 by the end of 1972 and to 88 by the end of 1973.

FINANCE

INTELSAT establishes the charges for use of the space segment to cover estimated operating, maintenance and administrative costs, amortization of capital investment and a return (currently 14 per cent) on net investment. The satellite utilization charges are paid to INTELSAT by the operators of the various earth stations, and the revenues thus generated are distributed among the member countries in proportion to their investments.

The INTELSAT space segment charge was initially set in 1965 at $32,000 per year per unit of utilization. (A unit of utilization is basically a two-way, voice-grade link between a satellite and a standard earth station.) The growth in capacity, lifetime, and use of the INTELSAT satellites has allowed this charge to be reduced progressively and, effective on January 1st, 1972, it has been set at $13,000 per year per unit of utilization. This reduction in the cost of satellite communications has been widely reflected in lower tariffs for intercontinental telephone, television and telegraph service.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION

Place du Petit-Saconnex, 1211 Geneva, Switzerland

Founded in 1889 to promote personal contacts among the members of the world's parliaments.
World membership: 66 Parliamentary Groups.

ORGANIZATION

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY CONFERENCE

Meets once a year. National Groups are represented by Delegations consisting of Members of Parliament. Conference adopts resolutions on subjects referred to it by the Inter-Parliamentary Council.

RECENT CONFERENCES

1953	Washington	1962	Brasilia
1954	Vienna	1963	Belgrade
1955	Helsinki	1964	Copenhagen
1956	Bangkok	1965	Ottawa

1958	Rio de Janeiro	1968	Lima
1959	Warsaw	1969	New Delhi
1960	Tokyo	1970	The Hague
1961	Brussels	1971	Paris

Forthcoming Conferences will be held in 1972 in Rome and in 1973 in Santiago.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

The directing organ of the Union. Composed of two members from each affiliated National Group. The Council convenes Inter-Parliamentary Conferences, fixes their agenda, approves the annual budget of the Union and appoints the Secretary General.

President: ANDRÉ CHANDERNAGOR (France).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The administrative organ of the Union. It supervises the work of the Inter-Parliamentary Bureau. The President of the Council is ex officio a member and President of the Committee.

Vice-President: J. HALL (United Kingdom).

Members: G. S. DHILLON (India), R. CARPIO-CASTILLO (Venezuela), A. P. CHITIKOV (U.S.S.R.), K. FUKUNAGA (Japan), W. HOFER (Switzerland), M. MARIGOH MBOUA (Cameroon), M. DE NIET (Netherlands), M. LEVENTE (Romania), G. VEDOVATO (Italy).

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY BUREAU

The Secretariat of the Union. It maintains contacts with the National Inter-Parliamentary Groups, organizes meetings held under the auspices of the Union, carries out study programmes and issues publications.

Secretary-General: PIO-CARLO TERENCE.

Assistant Secretary-General: PIERRE CORNILLON.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Union promotes personal contacts among members of all Parliaments constituted into National Groups with a view to establishing and developing firm democratic institutions and to advancing international peace and co-operation.

The Union organizes conferences bringing together parliamentarians of different nationalities and ideologies to study objectively political, economic, social and cultural problems of international significance.

The Union operates an International Centre for Parliamentary Documentation (CIDP) which collects and circulates material on the structure and functioning of legislative assemblies throughout the world, and also organizes symposia on questions of parliamentary interest.

The Union has general consultative status, Category 1, with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations (ECOSOC). It has entered into consultative arrangements with UNESCO and also maintains regular contacts with other UN specialized agencies. Co-operation also exists with the Inter-Parliamentary Union of the Nordic Countries (Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden), the Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council of Benelux (Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg), the Latin American Parliament, and the Arab Parliamentary Union.

BUDGET

Contributions from National Groups are the main source of revenue. These are paid annually on a scale fixed by the Council. The Union's budget for 1973 is about 1,339,000 Swiss francs.

ORGANIZATION

COMMITTEE OF GOVERNMENT PLENIPOTENTIARIES

The Committee is the supreme authority of the Joint Institute. It is composed of the chairmen or heads of the atomic energy authorities of member countries. The Committee meets about once a year, and makes decisions about future policy, and finance.

SCIENTIFIC COUNCIL

Chairman: Academician N. N. BOGOLUBOV (U.S.S.R.).

Plans the programme of work. Composed of senior scientists from the member countries.

MANAGEMENT

Director: Academician N. N. BOGOLUBOV (U.S.S.R.).

Vice-Directors: Prof. A. MIKHUL (Romania), Prof. N. SODNOM (Mongolian People's Republic).

Administrative Manager: V. L. KARPOVSKY.

Broad executive powers are vested in the Director. The Management carries out all practical work of the Institute between meetings of the Committee. The Director and Vice-Directors are elected by the Committee.

RESEARCH LABORATORIES

LABORATORY OF NUCLEAR PROBLEMS

Director: Prof. V. P. DZHELEPOV.

This laboratory has a synchrocyclotron that accelerates protons to 680 MeV, deuterons to 420 MeV, and alpha-particles to 840 MeV and is a powerful source of 600 MeV neutrons and charged and neutral mesons. This accelerator started operating in 1949. The main directions of research at this laboratory are the investigation of nucleon-nucleon scattering, the processes of pion production and their interaction with nucleons, the investigation of μ -meson properties and weak interaction processes, and the interaction of nucleons and mesons with complex nuclei.

The Laboratory also has a Radio-chemical Laboratory.

LABORATORY OF HIGH ENERGIES

Director: Prof. A. M. BALDIN.

The Laboratory has a 10 BeV synchrophasotron that has been operating since 1957.

Experimental investigations are carried out with protons and secondary particles. The experiments are devoted to the study of nucleon structure problems, strong interactions of strange particles and weak interaction processes. In 1960 the laboratory discovered the anti-sigma minus hyperon.

JOINT INSTITUTE FOR NUCLEAR RESEARCH

LABORATORY OF THEORETICAL PHYSICS

Director: Prof. D. I. BLOKHINTSEV.

This Laboratory works on the problems of field theory, the theory of elementary particles, nucleon structure, the phenomenological theory of scattering, and the use of superconductivity methods to the atomic nucleus.

LABORATORY OF NEUTRON PHYSICS

Director: Prof. I. M. FRANK.

An experimental fast neutron pulse reactor came into operation in 1960. It is being used for research in low-energy physics and neutron spectrometry, and for studying the structure of matter. Nuclear reactions induced by light nuclei are studied with the aid of the laboratory electrostatic generator.

LABORATORY OF NUCLEAR REACTIONS

Director: Prof. G. N. FLEROV.

In 1960 a cyclotron of multiple-charged ions came into operation. It is used to produce powerful beams of various ions up to the light-charged 320 MeV ion Ar. In 1962 a new type of nuclear radioactivity—proton radioactivity was discovered, in 1963 a new isotope of the 102 element with a mass number of 256 was synthesized, in 1964 the 104 element was synthesized. In 1970 the 105 element was synthesized. The chemical properties of transuranium elements are studied at the laboratory.

LABORATORY OF COMPUTING AND AUTOMATION

Director: Prof. M. G. MESCHERYAKOV.

This Laboratory was founded in 1966, its purpose being the centralization of computing and data handling facilities at JINR.

The main directions of the laboratory activities are the creation and operation of systems for analysis of data collected on film, development of automatic flying spot devices for scanning and measuring chamber films, organization of measuring centres at other Laboratories of the Institute and development of mathematical methods and programmes for data processing as supplied to problems of elementary particle physics.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS

Two special departments have been established at the Institute, one of them performing research in the field of collective ion acceleration and the other operating the large experimental programme of JINR at the Soviet GeV accelerator in Serpukhov.

HISTORY

In 1946 work was begun on the 680 MeV synchrocyclotron at Dubna. In 1949, when it was put into operation, the Institute of Nuclear Problems of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences was set up. In 1957 the 10 GeV synchrophastron of the Electrophysical Laboratory of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences was completed and the two installations formed the centre of a new town named Dubna, 80 miles from Moscow. In 1956 these two large research institutes were handed over to the Joint Institute for Nuclear Research and Dubna became an international centre. During the following years the Joint Institute for Nuclear Research founded four new Laboratories: the Laboratory of Theoretical Physics, the Laboratory of Nuclear Problems, the Laboratory of Neutron Physics and the Laboratory of Computing and Automation.

There are over 3,000 staff at the Institute. Scientists of other member states make liaison visits and work at the Joint Institute for Nuclear Research laboratories for short and long periods of time.

BUDGET

Contributions by all member states are approximately proportional to their national incomes.

ORGANIZATION

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Established in 1965 as the supreme organ of LAFTA, the Council is composed of the Foreign Ministers of all member countries. It meets regularly and makes important policy decisions relating to regional integration.

CONFERENCE OF CONTRACTING PARTIES

The Conference of Contracting Parties is composed of delegations from each member country and makes decisions on matters that require a joint resolution of the Contracting Parties. Its functions are to take steps towards the implementation of the Treaty, to approve the annual Budget, to fix contributions, to elect a President and two Vice-Presidents and to appoint the Executive Secretary of the Permanent Executive Committee. It meets in ordinary session once a year, when trade negotiations are carried out, and in extraordinary session when convened by the Permanent Executive Committee.

PERMANENT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Committee, consisting of one representative of each contracting party, is the Permanent body of the Association and is responsible for supervising the implementation of the provisions of the Treaty. Among its regular duties are the convoking of the Conference of Contracting Parties, to submit to the Conference an annual progress report and budget, to represent the Association, to carry out studies, suggest measures and submit recommendations to the Conference and to apply for technical assistance and collaboration. The Committee operates at the headquarters of the Association in Montevideo.

President (1971): ALBERTO ZELADA CASTEDO (Bolivia).

SECRETARIAT

The technical and administrative functions of LAFTA are carried out by the Secretariat, which is directed by an Executive Secretary elected by the Conference for a term of three years. The appointment is renewable. The Executive Secretary participates in the work of the Council of Ministers, the Conference and the Committee.

The Secretariat is composed of the Departments of Trade Policy, Industrial Affairs, Economic Affairs, Agricultural Affairs, and Administration, and a number of specialized services.

Executive Secretary: GUSTAVO MAGARIÑOS (Uruguay), re-elected June 1967.

Deputy Executive Secretaries: CÉSAR A. VENEGAS C. (Peru), JUAN PASCAL MARTÍNEZ (Argentina).

FUNCTIONS

The Latin American Free Trade Association is an inter-governmental organization, created by the Treaty of Montevideo in February 1960 with the object of increasing trade between the Contracting Parties and of promoting regional integration, thus contributing to the economic and social development of the member countries.

System of Tariff Reductions. The Treaty of Montevideo provides for the gradual establishment of a free trade area, which would form the basis for a Latin American Common Market. Reduction of tariff and other trade barriers is to be carried out gradually up to 1980 by two means, the National Lists and a Common List.

The National Lists form the basis for reductions of tariff and trade barriers between the member countries. Each country presents annually a list of those commodities on which it is prepared to concede reductions and agreement between the members shall be reached by negotiation. Reductions agreed in National Lists come into force on January 1st of the year following agreement.

The Common List includes those products on which complete exemption from all duties and charges shall obtain within the Free Trade Zone. The products represented on this list shall represent at least 25 per cent of the total trade of the area during the first three years, 50 per cent during the second three year period, 75 per cent during the third three year period, and the greater part of the inter-alia trade during the final three year period.

LATIN AMERICAN FREE TRADE ASSOCIATION

The Treaty includes provisions for Special Lists for more favourable terms for less developed countries. Paraguay has already obtained benefits under this clause, which also covers Ecuador, Bolivia and, to some extent, Uruguay.

Subregional Agreements. The Association approves in principle the drawing up of subregional agreements between its members, in accordance with the Declaration of the Presidents of America, signed at Punta del Este in April 1967, as being a means of encouraging the realization of a Latin American Common Market.

The Andean group of countries (Bolivia, Colombia, Chile, Ecuador and Peru) signed the Cartagena Agreement in May 1969 and in July 1969 the Permanent Executive Committee of LAFTA unanimously approved the establishment of an Andean Common Market.

A River Plate Basin Treaty (Tratado de la Cuenca de la Plata) was signed in Brasilia in April 1969, by Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay, to co-operate in joint development schemes in the area drained by the rivers which flow into the Plate estuary.

ACTIVITIES

Trade Liberalization Programme. The annual rounds of negotiations have given rise to approximately 11,000 tariff reductions incorporated in the National Lists. More than 7,000 preferential tariff reductions in favour of less developed member countries have been included in Special Lists. These concessions cover almost 90 per cent of trade between countries of the region.

Negotiations for a second Common List were begun in December 1967 and continued July–November 1968, but no agreement was reached. In October 1969, when negotiations for the Common List were resumed, the Contracting Parties adopted a protocol, drawn up in June 1969 by the Permanent Executive Committee, modifying the Treaty of Montevideo. The amendments provide for prolongation of the strict time limits set for the introduction of free trade in the area, and the transition period is to terminate in 1980 instead of in 1973.

Growth of Trade. While from 1955 to 1961 the volume of intraregional trade decreased from $1,087 million to $659 million, since the Treaty of Montevideo came into effect it has increased to a total of $1,342 million in 1970.

Co-operation and Development. A number of industrial agreements have been completed in relation to electronics, chemicals, petro-chemicals, electrical appliances and pharmaceuticals and the Permanent Executive Committee agreed in September 1969 on proposals for a regional policy for industrial development, integration of industry by sector, widening of markets, investment policy, and measures to be taken to assist the less developed countries of the region.

LAFTA has established a System of Payments and Credits to facilitate commercial operations between member countries. The system functions by means of a network of credit agreements between central banks, and a procedure of multilateral compensation, which is administered by the Central Reserve Bank of Peru. Operations channelled through this system have increased from $6 million in 1966, the first year of functioning, to almost $165 million in 1971.

LAFTA has adopted a policy of co-ordination and harmonization of legislation, principally through special intergovernmental agreements, such as the Agreement on Transport by Water, the Protocol on Transit of Persons, and the Protocol on the Settlement of Disputes. A number of studies have been carried out on matters relating to integration, such as industrial property, harmonization of fiscal laws, customs legislation and the adoption by Contracting Parties of common positions with regard to third parties.

LAFTA-CACM Co-ordinating Commission (Comisión Coordinadora ALALC-MCCA). The Commission was created in September 1967 by LAFTA and CACM (Central American Common Market) to devise methods for the formation of a Latin American Common Market. Also included in the Commission are Latin American countries which do not belong to either LAFTA or CACM. The first meeting of the Commission was held in Port of Spain, Trinidad and Tobago, in October 1968.

LATIN AMERICAN FREE TRADE ASSOCIATION
ANDEAN DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
 (CORPORACIÓN ANDINA DE FOMENTO)

c/o Dirección de Integación, Ministerio de Relaciones Exteriores del Perú, Lima, Peru.

In August 1966, representatives from Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela met in Bogotá and signed a pact calling for accelerated regional integration measures to facilitate the establishment of a Latin American Common Market. In June 1967, at the close of the fifth Inter-American ECOSOC conference at Viña del Mar, the Andean Development Corporation was founded, and a Mixed Commission of ten delegates from the five countries was formed.

In July 1967 the Mixed Commission held its second meeting in Quito to draw up a sub-regional planning agreement. This agreement covers co-operation on development projects, particularly in the petrochemical, iron and steel, automotive and electronics industries, and also includes provisions for the eventual establishment of a common external tariff for the region and plans for coordinating national economic policies. The text of the agreement was approved by the Council of LAFTA Foreign Ministers in September 1967.

In July 1968, at a meeting at Cartagena, Colombia, the Mixed Commission agreed that the first integration measures should take effect in 1970 and that elimination of internal tariffs and the adoption of a common external tariff should be achieved by 1980.

In May 1969 the Mixed Commission, including a delegate from Bolivia, met in Cartagena, Colombia, to sign an Andean Regional Agreement (Acuerdo Regional Andino). Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru signed the pact, which calls for rapid reductions in tariff barriers, leading to the establishment by 1980 of a free trade area, and for integration of industry in the region.

The first step towards reduction of tariff barriers and other trade restrictions within the Group came on April 15th, 1970 with the coming into force of the Andean Regional Agreement. The 175 items which are now to be traded freely between Chile, Colombia and Peru comprise the LAFTA Common List and include agricultural products, raw materials and a few items of industrial machinery. Bolivia and Ecuador who are also signatories to the Cartagena Agreement are expected to remove tariffs more gradually over the period 1970-73.

An agreement was signed by member countries in 1970 providing for the pooling of merchant fleets.

The joint financing of development projects by members of the Group was discussed at a meeting in June 1970 of representatives of banks in the region. Other matters discussed included participation in the formation and development of state-owned companies, facilitating the movement of capital towards industrial development projects and financing commercial operations from within and outside the sub-region.

In November 1970, the President of the Andean Group, Jorge Valencia Jaramillo visited the Commission of the European Communities in Brussels. Discussions covered trade matters, technical and financial co-operation, investment policy and exchange of information on the Communities' experiences in regional integration. It was suggested that a joint committee could be set up to reinforce relations between the two groups.

Maghreb Committee on Railways: Algiers.

Maghreb Committee on Shipping: Tunis.

Maghreb Committee on Roads: Algiers.

Maghreb Committee on Insurance and Reinsurance: Rabat.

RECORD OF EVENTS

1964
October First meeting of the Economic Ministers of the four Maghreb countries, Tangier. Two bodies to be set up: the permanent consultative committee, which would implement decisions on economic co-ordination; and an institute of industrial studies, which would harmonize joint industrial planning.
The four countries should work towards the establishment of a tariff union and towards joint negotiation with outside institutions and organizations.

November Second Conference of Ministers.

1965
March First meeting of the Permanent Consultative Committee, Algiers. Inner organization and operation of the Committee: three commissions appointed: one to draw up a schedule of the economies of the four countries, in order to be able eventually to establish relations with the important economic communities; a foreign trade commission to consider means of co-ordinating the export of citrus fruits, wines, esparto and olive oil, and to study the problems of duty-free trade within the Maghreb; and a commission to study the co-ordination of industry and energy, and to seek markets for Maghrebi industrial products.

May Third meeting of the Maghreb Economic Ministers, Tripoli. Plans agreed for the co-ordination of exports of citrus fruits, wines, esparto and olive oil. An esparto bureau established in Algiers to handle the exports of all four countries. Special commissions set up for statistics, accounting, and the steel industry, and it was agreed to study improvement of telecommunication links. Secretariat for the Consultative Committee established.

October Meeting of Maghreb Committee on Tourism, Algiers. Meeting of Commission on Transport and Communications, Tunis.

November Signing of convention setting up Committee on Railways.

December Meeting of Consultative Committee, Algiers. Studied reports on co-ordination of transport and tourism in the Maghreb, and on industry and postal and telecommunications agreements.

THE MAGHREB PERMANENT CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

1966 February	Fourth annual meeting of the Maghreb Economic Ministers, Algiers. Plans agreed for establishment of a permanent secretariat in Tunis, under direction of MOHAMED CHERKAOU, with budgetary and administrative responsibilities to aid the Consultative Committee; MOHAMED CHERKAOU appointed Director of Consultative Committee; agreement on co-ordination of commercial statistics in Maghreb; budget approved for 1966.	1968 January (cont.)	First meeting of the Administrative Council of the Centre for Industrial Studies, Tripoli. Approval of study programmes on fertilizers, desalinization of seawater and training of skilled manpower.
July	Meeting of Commission on Trading Relations, Tunis. Discussion of liberalisation of Maghreb reciprocal trade relations.	April	Meeting of Commission on Transport and Communications, Tunis. Recommendation for a master plan to be drawn up of transport in the Maghreb region.
August	Robert Gardiner, Exec.-Sec. of UN ECA, announced that the proposed Maghreb Secretariat with additional UN staff was to replace the Consultative Committee.	May	Meeting in Algiers of Mixed Commission on Frontier Formalities. Recommendations were made on facilitating the movement of travellers between Maghreb countries by road and rail.
September	Permanent Maghreb Committee on Tourism created in Algiers.	July	Meeting of representatives of Insurance Companies of the Maghreb countries. Decision to create a Maghreb Committee on Insurance and Re-insurance.
November	Meeting of Maghreb Air Transport Committee, Algiers; agreement for study group to examine constitution of a Maghreb Airlines Company.	Meeting in Tunis of trade union leaders of the Maghreb countries. Decision to hold annual meetings and to organize joint seminars.	Meeting of experts in Tunis to examine reports on problems of customs, commerce and external payments.
1967 January	Meeting of Permanent Consultative Committee, Rabat; discussion of possible negotiations with EEC and inter-Maghreb trade relations.	October	Meeting of experts in Tunis to examine reports on problems of customs, commerce and external payments.
March	Indefinite postponement of Maghreb Economics Ministers meeting originally planned for May 1966.	November	Meeting of experts in Rabat on agricultural exchanges. Ordinary session of Committee on Railways.
July	Meeting of the Advisory Committee on Education, Algiers.	1969 March	Meeting of experts in Algiers to examine study on industry.
October	Agreement between presidents of National Airlines to form a single company, to be called "Air Maghreb".	May	Second extraordinary session of Centre for Industrial Studies. Meeting of government delegates to study synthesis report on economic co-operation.
November	Fifth meeting of Economic Ministers in Tunis. Decision to draft a new agreement on general economic co-operation. A Maghreb Bank is to be created, and a multinational system of payments is envisaged.	1970 March	Sixth meeting of Economic Ministers postponed because of absence of Libya.
1968 January	Meeting of Maghreb Air Transport Committee, Rabat. Agreement on the creation of "Air Maghreb" and on other co-operation projects concerning air transport.	July	Meeting held without participation of Libya, who later in summer announced withdrawal from organization. Programme for 1970-71 drawn up: studies on co-operation in tourism, national infrastructures, transport, export policies, etc. Mauritania attended meeting as an observer.

(No meetings have been reported since July 1970.)

THE MAGHREB PERMANENT CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

STATUTES

Signed at Tunis, October 1st, 1964, by the Economic Ministers of the four member states.

Article 1. The Permanent Consultative Committee is an organism in which representatives of the four countries of the Maghreb are brought together. It is composed of a President and eight members, of whom four are titular representatives and four are deputies.

Article 2. The President of the Permanent Consultative Committee must have the rank of Minister. The Presidency is entrusted to each of the member states in turn for the duration of one year.

Article 3. The President may arrange to be assisted by a Vice-President who will be the titular representative of the country which is holding the Presidency.

Article 4. The Government of each of the countries of the Maghreb will appoint a deputy titular member with the rank of Director of Central Administration.

The representatives of each country will be able to command the help of these experts in case of need.

Article 5. The Permanent Consultative Committee is provided with a Permanent Secretariat headed by an Administrative Secretary appointed by the President.

The location of the Secretariat will vary according to the location of the Presidency.

Article 6. The Permanent Consultative Committee will have correspondents in each member state appointed by the government concerned. These correspondents must establish a Central Administration, and preferably some organizations and services with the object of planning economic programmes.

Article 7. Meetings of the Permanent Consultative Committee will be held at least once every three months when called by the President. At the same time as the President calls members of the Committee to meetings, he will present them with a programme embodying the proposals which he has received from the member countries.

Article 8. The proceedings of every session of the Permanent Consultative Committee must be recorded in Minutes drawn up by the President in office. These minutes must receive the unanimous approbation of the members of the Committee.

Article 9. The President will supply each of the members of the Committee with a copy of all documents brought to his attention, as well as any document likely to be of value to the Committee.

Article 10. The President will submit the budget planned to cover the expenses of the Permanent Consultative Committee for the approbation of the Maghreb Council of Economic Ministers.

CO-ORDINATION COMMITTEE

Committee for Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin: c/o ECAFE, Sala Santitham, Bangkok, Thailand; founded in 1957 to administer the overall Mekong Project; meets three or more times annually, chairmanship rotating between the four member (riparian) states (Chair. 1971, Laos); Mems.: PHLEK CHHAT (Khmer Republic), HOUMPHANH SAIGNASITH (Laos), H.E. Dr. BOONROD BINSON (Thailand), PHAM HUU VINH (Republic of Viet-Nam); publ. Annual Report (issued Jan.-Feb.).

ADVISORY BOARD

Composed of ten members of outstanding international reputation to advise the Committee on technical, financial, economic and other matters; Mems.: EUGENE BLACK, P. BOURRIÈRES, Sir ARTHUR GAITSKELL, Sir ROBERT JACKSON, P. S. N. PRASAD, F. RODRIGUEZ, KANWAR SAIN, C. HART SCHAAF, GENGU SUZUKI, Dr. V. H. UMBRIGHT.

EXECUTIVE AGENT

Responsible for day-to-day management and co-ordination between sessions of the Committee. Assisted by a staff provided by the riparian member countries and the United Nations (ECAFE and UNDP).

Executive Agent: W. J. VAN DER OORD.

THE LOWER MEKONG BASIN

The 2,620 mile long Mekong is the tenth largest river in the world. The Lower Mekong, which extends from the Burma-Laos border to the South China Sea, has a drainage area of some 236,000 square miles, i.e. as large as France and twice as large as Japan. Some 28 million people live in this area, which lies within Khmer Republic, Laos, Thailand and the Republic of Viet-Nam. Investigations of the river's potential were carried out in 1951, 1956 and 1957 with a view to developing hydroelectric power, navigation, irrigation and flood control; and in 1958 a UN Survey Mission under Lt-Gen. Raymond Wheeler reported favourable prospects for comprehensive development. In 1959, an FAO Mission, organized at the request of the Committee, completed a report which amplified the recommendations of the Wheeler Mission in the fields of agriculture, forestry and fisheries. In 1961, similarly at the request of the Committee, the Ford Foundation financed a team of experts headed by Professor Gilbert White to examine the social, economic and administrative implications of the Mekong Development Project.

MEKONG RIVER DEVELOPMENT PROJECT

MAIN ACTIVITIES

Data Collection

A continuing programme of basic data collection in such fields as hydrology, meteorology, topographic mapping and levelling, agriculture and industry, in addition to technical and engineering investigations of multi-purpose projects. An indicative development plan for the water resources of the Basin will be published in 1972.

Mainstream and Tributary Projects

Of the 10 mainstream and 16 tributary projects identified in early surveys, priority has been given to the feasibility investigation of mainstream projects at Pa Mong, Sambor and Tonle Sap. In 1970, after seven years of investigation, the Pa Mong (Stage I) mainstream project feasibility report was completed by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, and the Sambor mainstream project feasibility report was completed by the Overseas Technical Cooperation Agency of Japan.

Five tributary projects, Nam Pung and Nam Pong in Thailand, Nam Ngum, Nam Dong and Lower Se Done in Laos, are in operation, and three projects (Prek Thnot in the Khmer Republic, Lam Dom Noi and Nam Phrom in Thailand) are under construction. Feasibility reports have been completed for a further seven projects. In addition, two bridges across the mainstream Mekong are planned: at My Thuan in the Viet-Nam Delta and between Laos and Thailand in the Vientiane-Nong Khai area.

In 1971, arrangements were made by the Mekong Committee for the pre-investment preparation of up to fifteen pioneer agricultural projects in the four riparian countries. This programme is to be executed by the World Bank, in collaboration with the FAO and Asian Development Bank, with funds provided by Japan, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, the United States, and the UNDP.

Lam Dom Noi .	Thailand	24,000*	25,000†
Nam Phrom .	Thailand	40,000*	—
Nam Dong .	Laos	1,035	—

* Initial installed capacity. The installed capacity at the Nam Ngum, Lam Dom Noi and the Nam Phrom power stations could ultimately be raised to 135,000, 36,000 and 80,000 kW., respectively.

† Potential irrigated area. At the end of 1970 Nam Pong irrigation system covered approximately 15,000 ha.; the initial irrigation system at Prek Thnot is to cover 5,000 ha.

Navigation Improvement

Hydrographic surveys of important reaches of the Mekong river have been in progress for several years. Rock-blasting, channel marking and dredging operations have been organized, as well as provision for improvement in cargo-handling facilities and craft construction.

Other Projects

Experimental farms, mineral surveys, fisheries and forestry development, power market surveys, power market and electro-processing industry studies, and training of administrative and technical personnel from the four riparian states.

Medicine: S. BERGSTRÖM (Chair.), C. G. BERNHARD, U. BORELL, G. KLEIN, R. ZETTERSTRÖM.

Literature: K. R. GIEROW (Chair.), A. J. ÖSTERLING, L. GYLLENSTEN, E. O. V. JOHNSON, K. H. OLSSON.

Peace: A. LIONAES (Chair.), B. INGVALDSEN, H. REFSUM, J. SANNESS, H. ROGNLIEN.

The will of ALFRED NOBEL bequeathed the whole of his fortune (more than 30 million kronor) to a fund, the interest of which would be paid out annually to those who during the preceding year "have conferred the greatest benefit on mankind". The interest is divided into five equal parts, to be allotted as follows: "One part to the person who shall have made the most important discovery or invention within the field of physics; one part to the person who shall have made the most important chemical discovery or improvement; one part to the person who shall have made the most important discovery within the domain of physiology or medicine; one part to the person who shall have produced in the field of literature the most outstanding work of an idealistic tendency; and one part to the person who shall have done the most or the best work for fraternity between nations, for the abolition or reduction of standing armies, and for the holding and promotion of peace congresses".

Prizes have been distributed annually on the festival day of the Foundation, December 10th, since 1901 (except during the two world wars).

PRIZEWINNERS

Physics

1970 Awarded jointly to:

Prof. HANNES ALFVÉN, Royal Institute of Technology, Sweden.

Prof. LOUIS NÉEL, University of Grenoble.

1971 Prof. DENNIS GABOR, Imperial College of Science and Technology, London.

Chemistry

1970 Prof. LUIS F. LOLOIR, Institute for Biochemical Research, Buenos Aires.

1971 Dr. GERHARD HERZBERG, National Research Council of Canada, Ottawa.

Physiology or Medicine

1970 Awarded jointly to:

Prof. BERNARD KATZ, University College, London.

Prof. ULF VON EULER, Caroline Institute, Stockholm.

Prof. JULIUS AXELROD, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda.

1971 Prof. EARL W. SUTHERLAND, Vanderbilt University.

Literature

1970 ALEXANDER SOLZHENITSYN (U.S.S.R.).

1971 PABLO NERUDA (Chile).

Peace

1970 NORMAN E. BORLAUG (U.S.A.).

1971 WILLY BRANDT (Federal Republic of Germany).

Economics

In October 1969 a first annual prize for Economic Science was given by the Swedish Royal Bank in memory of Alfred Nobel.

1970 Prof. PAUL A. SAMUELSON (U.S.A.).

1971 Prof. SIMON KUZNETS (U.S.A.).

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

The Nordic Council, an advisory body, was inaugurated in 1953. Finland joined in 1956. The Council considers economic, social, cultural, legal and communications questions.

PRESIDIUM AND COUNCIL

(1971-72)

President: JENS OTTO KRAG (Denmark).

Vice-Presidents: JOHANNES ANTONSSON (Sweden), OLAVI LÄHTEENMÄKI (Finland), MATTHIAS A. MATHIESEN (Iceland), GUTTORM HANSEN (Norway).

The Council meets annually in one of the Nordic capitals. At each session a Presidium is elected to take charge of the Council's work until the next session. Each delegation elects its own President, the Council President being the one from the country which is host that year. The other four are Vice-Presidents.

The Council consists of 78 delegates elected annually from the Parliament of each country (see Statute below, amended Articles 1, 2 and 3) and of Government Representatives. Resolutions are passed in the form of recommendations sent to the Governments. Governments must submit progress reports to the Council annually.

SECRETARIATS

A secretariat for the Presidium was established in 1971 in Stockholm. This secretariat is responsible for the Nordic Council's tasks of a common Nordic character and for contacts with the Council of Ministers. Besides this, the Nordic Council has a national secretariat in each capital. The heads of the secretariats form a collegium that prepares the Nordic Council's work.

ACTIVITIES

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

In 1957 a Scandinavian Co-operation Committee advocated a Scandinavian Common Market but in 1959 the plan was abandoned in favour of joining EFTA (The Seven). A Permanent Committee of Ministers for Economic Co-operation (see below), and a committee of officials to assist them, has been set up to direct Scandinavian co-operation in production and investment, trade and economic policy, statistics and customs administration and to co-ordinate investigations in the present European market situation. The Council has given special consideration to joint assistance schemes for the developing countries.

During the final phase 1966-67 of the Kennedy Round talks within the framework of GATT, the member countries of the Nordic Council acted through a single chief negotiator.

At the meeting of Prime Ministers from Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden, held in Copenhagen in April 1968, closer economic arrangements between these countries were proposed.

In July 1969 officials from Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden drew up a draft treaty establishing the Organization for Nordic Economic Co-operation. In February 1970 basic agreement was reached by the Committee on the establishment of the Scandinavian customs union (Nordek) by January 1st, 1972. The Nordic agreement, however, was delayed in spring 1970 as a result of the scheduled negotiations between the Nordic countries and the European Economic Community (EEC).

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

In November 1970 agreement was reached to revise the Helsinki Treaty of 1962 and thereby establish a Nordic Council of Ministers, a Committee of Experts, an Arbitration Tribunal and a Permanent Secretariat. The revision came into force in July 1971.

CULTURAL CO-OPERATION

The Council has recommended that Scandinavia should be an educational unit, with interchangeable scholarships. Many university examinations are recognized throughout Scandinavia. The Council has also encouraged the teaching of all the Nordic languages, especially in teachers' training colleges and elementary schools.

At the Council's recommendation a joint Scandinavian college for the training of journalists was set up, intended for persons who had already received a basic journalistic training.

Other institutions created on the recommendation of the Council: Nordic Institute of Theoretical Nuclear Physics (Copenhagen); Institute of Maritime Law (Oslo); Institute of African Studies (Uppsala); Institute of Asiatic Studies (Copenhagen); Institute for Social Planning (Stockholm); Scandinavian Institute of Public Health (Gothenburg); Nordic Institute for Theoretical Atomic Physics (Stockholm).

The Council has fostered co-operation between the national broadcasting and television administrations (NORDVISION).

In 1967, on the recommendation of the Council, the governments of the Nordic countries established a Nordic Cultural Foundation with an annual budget of 5 million Danish crowns. The Fund, financed by the four member countries, is directed by a common board with supra-national authority.

Increased Nordic cultural co-operation was indicated by a Nordic Cultural Treaty, introduced in July 1971. This agreement aims at developing the Nordic cultural community and increasing the joint impact of the Nordic countries' achievements in education, research and other cultural fields by common planning, co-ordination and division of work.

Under the Council of Ministers, a Nordic Officials Committee is directly responsible for optimum cultural co-operation. A common Nordic cultural secretariat has been established in Copenhagen.

LEGAL CO-OPERATION

The Council works towards securing uniformity of legislation and interpretation of the law. A large proportion of private law is already uniform throughout the Nordic countries. The Nordic Council has recommended an Inter-Nordic patent convention, and visualises one joint Scandinavian patent institution. There are also joint or common laws on marriage, divorce, property, copyright and trade marks.

There are special extradition facilities between the Nordic countries, but the Council would like to see police and courts having wider authority to examine suspected persons or to hear witnesses at the request of another country.

The Council has arranged for citizens working in other Nordic countries to be given the legal status of nationals in many respects, and recommended relaxation of the rules whereby foreigners may not join the boards of directors or corporations for a certain time. New rules have been introduced making it easier to change citizenship of Nordic countries.

SOCIAL CO-OPERATION

At the Council's recommendation, a Convention came into force in 1954 abolishing working permits for wage earners in all the Nordic countries except Iceland, and creating a common labour market. A free labour market exists for certain professions, e.g. physicians, dentists and nurses, and the Council is working to this goal in other branches of the medical profession.

Reciprocity in social security legislation was largely achieved before the Nordic Council was set up, but the Council has arranged for the 16 existing agreements to be consolidated into a single Convention, which came into force in 1956.

Joint research is now taking place in all branches of health care and medicine, as well as in environmental protection, for which a special Nordic committee has been set up.

TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS

The "Sound Bridge". In 1953 the Council recommended that a bridge be built between either Malmö or Helsingborg in Sweden and either Copenhagen or Elsinore in Denmark. A report recommending that construction start was published in December 1962 and in 1965 the Council recommended that the bridge be built between Copenhagen and Malmö. A final government report was published in November 1967.

Traffic Regulations. These are gradually being unified, and there is increasing common planning about communications between Scandinavia and the continent.

North Calott. The Council has made several recommendations for the improvement of communications in this area, the northern regions of Finland, Norway and Sweden.

Postal and Telegraphic Communications. Several recommendations have been executed to improve and cheapen facilities.

Passports. These were abolished for nationals in 1952, and for non-nationals in 1958, within the Nordic area. Customs formalities and baggage control have been substantially reduced, with the aim of making Scandinavia one unit for travel and tourist purposes.

Transport Co-operation. The Council has recommended the Governments to sign a Transport Treaty (Nordtrans) instituting closer co-operation in the field of transport policy planning.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

REVISION OF THE HELSINKI TREATY

In November 1970 agreement was reached on revising the Helsinki Treaty of 1962 and thereby establishing a Nordic Council of Ministers, a Committee of Experts and an Arbitration Tribunal. The revision came into force on July 1st, 1971.

Under this revision a Nordic Council of Ministers with jurisdiction over the whole field of Nordic co-operation was established. An important part of Nordic co-operation at governmental level takes place within the framework of this Council or at informal meetings of Nordic Ministers.

The composition of the Council of Ministers varies according to the kind of questions to be dealt with. When dealing with specialized questions the Council of Ministers includes the specialist Ministers concerned. A government member has been appointed by each country with general co-ordinating tasks relating to the work of the Council of Ministers and to Nordic governmental co-operation in general, as well as to contacts with the Nordic Council. The Council of Ministers may not take formal decisions without the explicit support of the countries concerned. The Council of Ministers is not a supra-national organization. Except in questions of procedure, unanimity is required; each country has one vote.

The Council of Ministers presents an annual report to the Nordic Council on the past year's achievements and on plans for continued co-operation. Recommendations and other representations from the Nordic Council are submitted by the latter or by the governments. The Council of Ministers can also make proposals to the Nordic Council.

Among important tasks for the Council of Ministers are economic co-operation, cultural co-operation within the framework of the Nordic Cultural Treaty (see above), transport co-operation and major policy questions in the legal and security fields.

NORDIC CO-OPERATION

Outside the Nordic Council, there are hundreds of Nordic or Scandinavian societies, enterprises and committees, governmental, private and commercial. The following are some of the most important:

MINISTERIAL COMMITTEES

Permanent Nordic Committee for Agriculture: f. 1961; four members nominated by each government; discusses common problems of agricultural production and sales.

Permanent Nordic Committee for Fishery Problems: f. 1963; four members nominated by each government; discusses common problems of fisheries and sales of fishery products.

Nordic Cultural Commission: f. 1946; advises governments on cultural matters. Each government appoints a maximum of nine members to cover these three fields: academic and scientific, education, adult education and arts.

Officers Co-ordinating for Legislative Co-operation: f. 1959; committee of the chief officials from the Ministries of Justice. Annual Ministerial meetings co-ordinate work in Nordic legislation.

Nordic Social Policy Committee: f. 1946; consists of two high officials from the Ministry of Social Welfare in each country. It submits proposals for new joint projects, organises Ministerial meetings and implements their decisions, and generally co-ordinates policy. Social Insurance Congresses are also held at three-year intervals.

Permanent Labour Market Committee: f. 1955; meets at least once a year to co-ordinate work regarding the Nordic labour market.

Nordic Contact Committee for Atomic Energy: f. 1957; meets twice a year to exchange information about atomic energy problems.

PRIVATE SOCIETIES, ENTERPRISES

Nordic Council for Applied Research (Nordforsk): f. 1947; aims to exchange information about research, to arrange symposia and to help towards the exchange of scientists among the Scandinavian countries; publishes a Scandinavian Research Guide.

Scandinavian Tourist Committee: f. 1926; the joint secretariat of the national travel organisations. It organises festivals and co-ordinates publicity.

Foreningen Norden (Norden Associations): f. 1919; 120,000 members; aims to increase co-operation generally; activities include information work, lecturing, courses, revision of textbooks and exchange between towns.

Nordic Council of the Fine Arts: f. 1945; arranges exhibitions, etc.

Nordisk Andelsförbund (Scandinavian Co-operative Wholesale Society).

Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS): f. 1946; Bromma Airport, Bromma 10, Stockholm; consortium: Norwegian, Danish and Swedish airlines.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

STATUTE OF THE NORDIC COUNCIL

(effective from January 1958; amended January 1970)

ARTICLE 1. The Nordic Council is a body formed for the purpose of consultation among the Folketing of Denmark, the Eduskunta-Riksdag of Finland, the Alting of Iceland, the Storting of Norway and the Riksdag of Sweden (legislatures), as well as the Governments of these countries, in matters involving joint action by any or all of these countries.

The Lagting (legislature) and the Landsstyre (executive) of the Faroe Islands as well as the Landsting (county council) and the Landskapsstyrelse (county board) of Åland participate in the work of the Council.

ARTICLE 2. The members of the Council are 78 elected members, Government representatives and representatives of the Landsstyre and the Landskapsstyrelse.

The Folketing of Denmark elects 16 members, the Eduskunta-Riksdag of Finland elects 17 members, the Alting of Iceland elects 6 members and the Storting of Norway and the Riksdag of Sweden both elect 18 members to the Council. The Lagting of the Faroe Islands elects 2 members and the Landsting of Åland 1 member to the Council. Furthermore, the necessary number of deputies are elected. Elections are made among the members of each legislature and in such a way that different political opinions are represented. In other respects elections are made at the time and in the manner decided by each legislature.

Each Government appoints from among its members as many Government representatives as it desires. The Landsstyre and the Landskapsstyrelse both appoint one representative from among their members.

The members elected by the Folketing and the Lagting as well as the representatives appointed by the Danish Government and the Landsstyre jointly constitute the delegation of Denmark. The members elected by the Eduskunta-Riksdag of Finland and the Landsting of Åland as well as the representatives appointed by the Government of Finland and the Landskapsstyrelse jointly constitute the delegation of Finland. The delegation of Iceland consists of the members elected by the Alting and the representatives of the Icelandic Government. The delegation of Norway consists of the members elected by the Storting and the representatives of the members elected by the Riksdag and the representatives of the Swedish Government.

ARTICLE 3. The representatives of the Governments, the Landsstyre and the Landskapsstyrelse have no vote in the Council.

ARTICLE 4. The Council shall meet once a year on such date as it may decide (Ordinary session). Furthermore, special meetings may be held, if the Council so decides, or if a meeting is requested by not less than two Governments or not less than 25 elected delegates (Extraordinary session). Ordinary sessions shall be held in the capital of one of the countries, as decided by the Council.

ARTICLE 5. For each ordinary session and for the period until the next ordinary session, the Council from among its elected delegates shall elect a President and four Vice-Presidents who, together, shall constitute the Presidium of the Council.

ARTICLE 6. The deliberations of the Council shall be open to the public, unless, in view of the special nature of a matter, the Council decides otherwise.

ARTICLE 7. During each ordinary session the elected delegates shall form standing committees to undertake preparatory work in connection with matters before the Council. By decision of the Presidium, the standing committees may meet also during inter-sessionary periods in special cases.

Special committees may be set up during inter-sessionary periods to prepare special matters.

ARTICLE 8. The delegation of each country shall appoint a Secretary and other staff members. The activities and collaboration of the secretariats shall be supervised by the Presidium.

ARTICLE 9. All governments and delegates are entitled to submit a matter to the Council by written application to the Presidium. The Presidium shall cause such investigations to be made as it may deem necessary, and shall send out the documentation to the Governments and delegates well ahead of the session.

ARTICLE 10. The Council shall discuss questions of common interest to the countries and may adopt recommendations to the Governments. Recommendations shall be accompanied by information as to how each delegate has voted.

In questions which concern only certain of the countries, only the delegates from those countries may vote.

ARTICLE 11. At each ordinary session, the Governments should inform the Council of any action taken on the recommendation of the Council.

ARTICLE 12. The Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

ARTICLE 13. Each country shall defray the expenses involved by its membership in the Council. The Council shall decide how common expenses shall be apportioned.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

AGREEMENT OF CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE NORDIC COUNTRIES

Signed in Helsinki, March 23, 1962; amended in February 1971

The Governments of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden:

Desirous of furthering the close connections between the Nordic nations in culture and juridical and social conceptions and of developing co-operation between the Nordic countries;

Endeavouring to create uniform rules in the Nordic countries in as many respects as possible;

Hoping to achieve in all fields where prerequisites exist an appropriate division of labour between these countries;

Desirous of continuing the co-operation, important to these countries, in the Nordic Council and other agencies of co-operation;

In 1971, the Governments of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden:

Desirous of strengthening and further enlarging the institutional foundations of the co-operation between the Nordic countries;

Considering it appropriate for this purpose to amend the Treaty of Co-operation of March 23rd, 1962, between the Nordic countries;

Having therefore decided to include in the Treaty of Co-operation the fundamental provisions regarding the Nordic Council;

Having also decided to include in the Treaty of Co-operation provisions regarding a Nordic Council of Ministers, with competence in the whole field of Nordic co-operation, have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE 1. The Contracting Parties shall endeavour to maintain and further develop co-operation between the countries in the juridical, cultural, social and economic fields and in questions of communications.

ARTICLES 2-7. Juridical Co-operation.

ARTICLES 8-13. Cultural Co-operation.

ARTICLES 14-17. Social Co-operation.

ARTICLES 18-25. Economic Co-operation.

ARTICLES 26-29. Co-operation in Communications.

ARTICLES 30-34. Other Co-operation.

ARTICLES 35-38. The Forms of Nordic Co-operation.

ARTICLES 39-54. The Nordic Council.

ARTICLES 55-62. The Nordic Council of Ministers.

ARTICLE 63. Amendments to the Agreement.

ARTICLES 64-65. Final Provisions.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION— NATO

Brussels 1110, Belgium

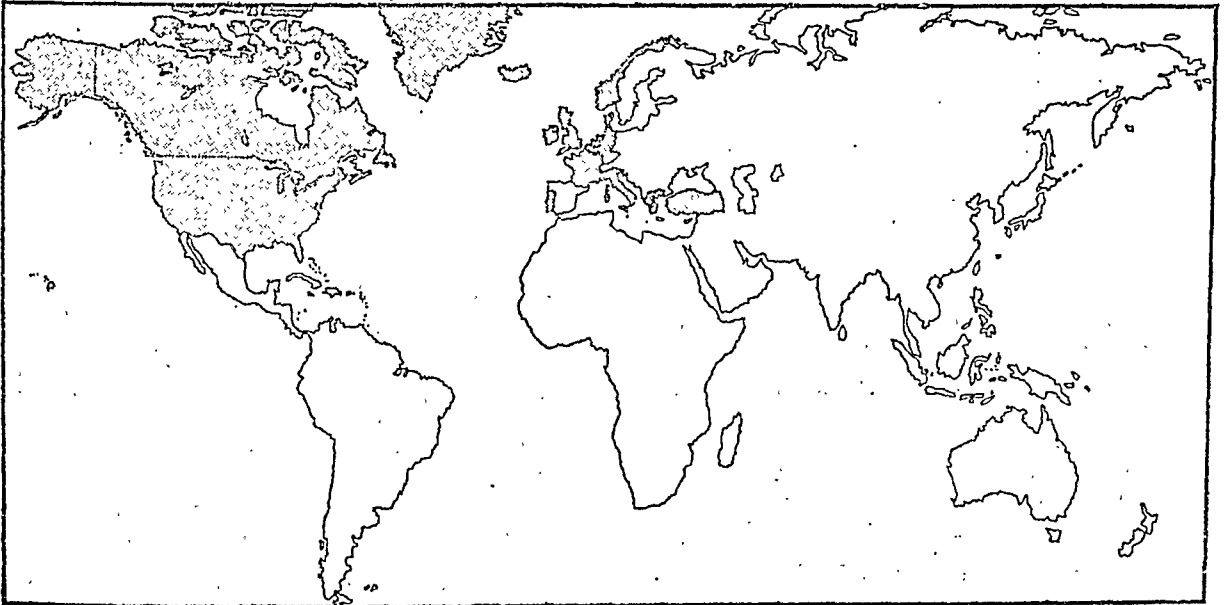

Founded in 1949 as an international collective defence organization linking a group of European states with the U.S.A. and Canada. NATO members declare that they will regard an attack on one of them as an attack on all, and will assist any attacked country "by such action as it deems necessary". Greece and Turkey joined in 1952, and the Federal Republic of Germany in 1955. France withdrew from the military side of NATO in 1966.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION

ORGANIZATION

THE NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

President: GASTON THORN (Luxembourg).

Chairman: JOSEPH LUNS (Netherlands).

The Council is the highest authority of NATO, and decides all administrative and financial matters. It meets either at Ministerial level, or functions through the Permanent Representatives. The Council gives political guidance to the military authorities and is also concerned with many aspects of wartime civil emergency planning.

MINISTERIAL SESSIONS

Composed of Ministers of the member governments. Sessions are held two or three times a year.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General, and Chairman of North Atlantic Council: JOSEPH LUNS (Netherlands).

Deputy Secretary-General: P. PANSÀ CEDRONIO (Italy).

The Secretary-General is empowered to offer his help in cases of disputes between member countries and to initiate and facilitate procedures for settlement.

Director of Information: JOHN L. W. PRICE (U.K.).

THE DIVISIONS

Division of Political Affairs

Assistant Secretary-General: JÖRG KASTL (Federal Republic of Germany).

Keeps in contact with delegations and international organizations, and prepares reports for the Secretary-General and the Council.

Division of Defence Planning and Policy

Assistant Secretary-General: KENNETH NASH (U.K.).

The Division studies economic matters of concern to the Alliance, especially any with political effect on defence problems, and also the overall financial aspects of defence by country. It analyses and estimates the cost by services of the defence programmes.

Division of Defence Support

Assistant Secretary-General: A. TYLER PORT (U.S.A.).

The Division promotes the most efficient use of the Allies' resources in the production of military equipment and studies its standardization. It exercises technical and financial supervision over the infrastructure programme.

Division of Scientific Affairs

Assistant Secretary-General: Prof. GUNNAR RANDERS (Norway).

Advises the Secretary-General on scientific matters of interest to NATO.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY

(April 1949)

The Parties to this Treaty reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all Governments.

They are determined to safeguard the freedom, common heritage and civilization of their peoples, founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law.

They seek to promote stability and well-being in the North Atlantic area.

They are resolved to unite their efforts for collective defence and for the preservation of peace and security.

They therefore agree to this North Atlantic Treaty:

ARTICLE 1

The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international dispute in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered, and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 2

The Parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well-being. They will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between any or all of them.

ARTICLE 3

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this Treaty, the Parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack.

ARTICLE 4

The Parties will consult together whenever, in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the Parties is threatened.

ARTICLE 5

The Parties agree that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all; and consequently they agree that, if such an armed attack occurs, each of them, in exercise of the right of individual or collective self-defence recognised by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, will assist the Party or Parties so attacked by taking forthwith, individually and in concert with the other Parties, such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area.

Any such armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall immediately be reported to the Security Council. Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security.

ARTICLE 6

For the purpose of Article 5 an armed attack on one or more of the Parties is deemed to include an armed attack on the territory of any of the Parties in Europe or North America, on the Algerian Departments of France (inapplicable since July 1962), on the occupation forces of any Party in Europe, on the islands under the jurisdiction of any Party in the North Atlantic area north of the Tropic of Cancer or on the vessels or aircraft in this area of any of the Parties. (Amended on the accession of Greece and Turkey.)

ARTICLE 7

This Treaty does not affect, and shall not be interpreted as affecting, in any way the rights and obligations under the Charter of the Parties which are members of the United Nations, or the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 8

Each Party declares that none of the international engagements now in force between it and any other of the Parties or any third State is in conflict with the provisions of this Treaty, and undertakes not to enter into any international engagement in conflict with this Treaty.

ARTICLE 9

The Parties hereby establish a council, on which each of them shall be represented, to consider matters concerning the implementation of this Treaty. The Council shall be so organized as to be able to meet promptly at any time. The Council shall set up such subsidiary bodies as may be necessary; in particular it shall establish immediately a defence committee which shall recommend measures for the implementation of Articles 3 and 5.

ARTICLE 10

The Parties may, by unanimous agreement, invite any other European State in a position to further the principles of this Treaty and to contribute to the security of the North Atlantic area to accede to this Treaty. Any State so invited may become a party to the Treaty by depositing its instrument of accession with the Government of the United States of America. The Government of the United States of America will inform each of the Parties of the deposit of each such instrument of accession.

ARTICLE 11

This Treaty shall be ratified and its provisions carried out by the Parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Government of the United States of America, which will notify all the other signatories of each deposit. The Treaty shall enter into force between the States which have ratified it as soon as the ratifications of the majority of the signatories, including the ratifications of Belgium, Canada, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States, have been deposited and shall come into effect with respect to other States on the date of the deposit of their ratifications.

ARTICLE 12

After the Treaty has been in force for ten years, or at any time thereafter, the Parties shall, if any of them so requests, consult together for the purpose of reviewing the Treaty, having regard for the factors then affecting peace and security in the North Atlantic area, including the development of universal as well as regional arrangements under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION

ARTICLE 13

After the Treaty has been in force for twenty years, any Party may cease to be a party one year after its notice of denunciation has been given to the Government of the United States of America, which will inform the Governments of the other Parties of the deposit of each notice of denunciation.

ARTICLE 14

This Treaty, of which the English and French texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies will be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatories.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Château de Vidy, 1007 Lausanne, Switzerland

The International Olympic Committee was founded in 1894 to ensure the regular celebration of the Olympic Games. The Games are restricted to amateurs.

INTERNATIONAL OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

The International Olympic Committee unites 126 national Olympic committees. The 73 members of the International Olympic Committee are chosen as individuals, not as national representatives.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Executive Board takes decisions affecting the management of the International Olympic Committee, and assigns duties connected with its current affairs to the Secretariat-General in Lausanne.

President: AVERY BRUNDAGE (U.S.A.) 1952-.

Vice-President: LORD KILLANIN (Ireland), Le comte J. DE BEAUMONT (France), Jonkheer H. A. VAN KARNEBEEK (Netherlands).

Members of the Boards Sir ADE ADEMOLA (Nigeria), CONSTANTIN ANDRIANOV (U.S.S.R.), Maj. S. DE MAGALHAES PADILHA (Brazil), Prince TSUNEYOSHI TAKEDA (Japan), JUAN A. SAMARANCH (Spain).

Secretary-General: (acting) MONIQUE BERLIOUX.

Chief of Protocol: JUAN ANTONIO SAMARANCH (Spain).

Honorary Treasurer: Maître MARC HODLER (Switzerland).

Past Presidents: DIMETRIUS BIKELAS (Greece) 1894-96, Baron PIERRE DE COUBERTIN (France) 1896-1925, Count DE BAILLET-LATOUR (Belgium) 1925-42, J. SIGFRID EDSTRÖM (Sweden) 1946-52.

OBJECTIVES

(as stated by Baron Pierre de Coubertin)

1. To bring to the attention of the world the fact that a national programme of physical training and competitive sport will not only develop stronger and healthier boys and girls but also, and perhaps more important, will make better and happier citizens through the character building that follows participation in properly administrated amateur sport.
2. To demonstrate the principles of fair play and good sportsmanship, which could be adopted with great advantage in many other spheres of activity.
3. To stimulate interest in the fine arts through exhibitions and demonstrations, and thus contribute to a broader and more well rounded life.
4. To teach that sport is play for fun and enjoyment and not to make money and that with devotion to the task at hand, the reward will take care of itself—the philosophy of the amateur as contrasted to that of materialism.

5. To create international amity and good will, thus leading to a happier and more peaceful world.

THE GAMES

The Winter Games may include:

Ski-ing, Skating, Ice Hockey, Bobsleighing, Luge and Biathlon.

FLAG, MOTTO AND FLAME

Flag: White, with five interlaced rings in the centre. The rings are blue, yellow, black, green and red, with the blue ring high on the left nearest the flag pole. These rings represent the five continents joined in the Olympic Movement.

Motto: The Olympic motto is Citius, Altius, Fortius, which means Faster, Higher, Braver.

Flame: In ancient Greece, during the Olympic Games, a sacred flame burned at the Altar of Zeus, in whose honour the Games were held. At the opening ceremony of the modern Olympic Games, the Olympic Flame is lighted. It burns in a conspicuous place in the main stadium throughout the Games. The Torch to light the Flame is lit by the sun at Olympia and carried by runners from a distant point to the Olympic Stadium.

ORGANISATION COMMUNE AFRICAINE, MALGACHE ET MAURICIENNE—OCAM

B.P. 437, Yaoundé, Cameroon

Founded February 1965 in succession to the Union africaine et malgache de coopération économique (UAMCE), to accelerate the political, economic, social, technical and cultural development of member states within the framework of the OAU.

MEMBERS

Cameroon
Central African Republic
Chad
Congo (Brazzaville)
Dahomey
Gabon
Ivory Coast
Madagascar
Mauritius
Niger
Rwanda
Senegal
Togo
Upper Volta
Zaire

Mauritania left the organization in July 1965, but remains a member of the Technical Committees of OCAM.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE OF HEADS OF STATE AND OF GOVERNMENT

Chairman: (vacant).

The supreme authority of OCAM meets once a year in ordinary session. The following meetings have been held:

Tananarive, Madagascar	1966	June
Niamey, Niger	1968	January.
Kinshasa, Congo	1969	January.
Yaoundé, Cameroon	1970	January.
Fort Lamy, Chad	1971	January.

Next meetings to be held at Lomé, Togo, in February (postponed from January) 1972, and Port Louis, Mauritius in May 1972.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Composed of Foreign Ministers of member states. Meets once a year in ordinary session. Responsible for implementing co-operation between OCAM countries as directed by the Conference of Heads of State.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEES

Committee on Sugar: implements provisions of the Common Sugar Market (see below, Accord africain et malgache du sucre), in particular the fixing of a guaranteed price for sugar in OCAM countries.

Scientific and Technical Research Committee: concerned with co-ordination of national research programmes.

Committee of PTT Experts.

Ad hoc Committee for Insurance.

Ad hoc Meat Committee.

Meeting of Statisticians.

SECRETARIAT

Responsible for the administration of OCAM. Appointed by the Conference of Heads of State, upon the proposal of the Council of Ministers, for a minimum of two years.

Secretary-General: FALLOU KANE (Senegal).

Directeur de Cabinet: ALI B. TALL (Upper Volta).

DEPARTMENTS

Département des affaires économiques et financières: Dir. AMBROISE FOALEM (Cameroon).

Département des affaires culturelles et sociales, et santé: Dir. ALBERT EKUE (Dahomey).

OCAM is represented at the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) in Montreal, Canada.

AIMS

Harmonization of Customs regulations.
Setting up an African Common Market.
Agreement on Double Taxation.
Regularization of insurance and other costs on trade exchanges.

Stabilization Funds in support of steady prices.
Harmonization of investment codes.
Suppression of subversion in African states.

AFRO—MALAGASY CO-OPERATION

Accord africain et malgache du sucre (Common Sugar Market): Secretariat: Fort-Lamy, Chad. An agreement, signed in June 1966, came into force in October 1966 and established a common market in sugar between members of OCAM. Both the sugar-producing countries (Congo-Brazzaville and Madagascar) and the consumer countries benefit from this agreement, which provides for the fixing each year of a guaranteed price for sugar in OCAM countries. A levy is imposed on sugar imported from non-member countries, though preference is given to European sugar (mainly from Belgium and France). This levy is placed in a common fund; Exec. Dir. ANTOINE ESSOMÉ.

Air Afrique: B.P. 21.017, Abidjan, Ivory Coast; provides international air services between member states and other countries (Cameroon withdrew from the airline in January 1971 and later set up her own national company); Pres. and Dir.-Gen. CHEIKH FAL (Senegal).

Comité des ministres des transports: Dakar, Senegal; f. 1962 to study transport problems within the former Union Africaine et Malgache (UAM); Sec.-Gen. CHEIKH FAL (Senegal).

Ecole Inter-Etat des Ingénieurs de l'Équipement Rural (EIER): Ouagadougou.

Mouvement d'étudiants de l'organisation commune africaine, malgache et mauricienne (MEOCAM): f. 1967; student movement of the Afro-Malagasy Common Organization; Pres. KACK KACK (Cameroon).

Office africain et malgache de la propriété industrielle (OAMPI) (Afro-Malagasy Industrial Property Office): B.P. 887, Yaoundé, Cameroon; f. 1962 at Libreville on signature of an agreement by all OCAM states except Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of the Congo; entered into force January 1964; administers the common national legislation on industrial designs, patents, and trade marks; Pres. KONAN BEDIÉ (Ivory Coast); Dir.-Gen. DENIS EKANI.

Organisation africaine et malgache du café (OAMCAF): Paris, France. The eight coffee producing countries of OCAM, including Togo, Dahomey and Ivory Coast, have formed themselves into the African and Malagasy Coffee Organization, which is treated as one unit for purposes of operation of the International Coffee Agreement. These countries receive a block quota under that Agreement and distribute it among themselves through their own consultative machinery.

Organisation pour le développement du tourisme en Afrique—ODTA: 6 rue Mesnil, Paris 8e, France; Pres. M. MAMODOU ABDOU; Sec.-Gen. JULIEN KONAN.

Union africaine et malgache des postes et télécommunications (UAMPT): B.P. 44, Brazzaville, Congo; f. 1961; the UAMPT is a Committee of Ministers of Posts and Telecommunications set up to study problems of common interest and to promote the co-ordination of postal and telecommunications services in member countries. Last meeting: November 1967; Gen. Dir. JOACHIM BALIMA; Publs. Revue UAMPT, Compte rendu des conférences et des réunions.

Other Ministerial Meetings: Education Ministers of OCAM countries meet annually, and Ministers of Finance and Economics met in March 1966; Labour Ministers met in March 1967; Ministers of Information met in August 1967.

Other Co-operation. There are plans to establish two multinational insurance companies, a joint shipping company, and to provide for mutual consultation on Planning. The Scientific, Technical Research Committee aims to co-ordinate national research programmes. A Permanent African Committee on Higher Education has been established, with an office in each state.

During a conference of the UAM at Tananarive in September 1961, the following agreements were drawn up, and remain in force between the members of OCAM:

Convention générale relative à la représentation diplomatique: foresees common diplomatic missions and meetings of heads of missions accredited to France and the United Nations to harmonise their policies.

Convention générale de coopération en matière de justice: the courts of each country are open to nationals of any other member country without discrimination. Aims to simplify and unify existing national judicial systems.

Convention générale relative à la situation des personnes et aux conditions d'établissement: provides for free movement of persons between member states.

STRUCTURE AND TASKS

COUNCIL

Representatives of all member countries. Meets at ministerial or official level. Designates annually a Chairman and two Vice-Chairmen. Responsible for general policy and administration. Approves the Budget, Staff Rules and Regulations and senior staff appointments.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Representatives of eleven member countries elected annually by the Council. Meets at least once a week. All questions to be submitted to the Council are first examined by the Executive Committee which is responsible on all matters to the Council.

ECONOMIC POLICY COMMITTEE

Composed of senior officials who may make recommendations to the Council. Keeps under review the economic and financial policies of member countries.

ECONOMIC AND DEVELOPMENT REVIEW COMMITTEE

Responsible for the annual examination of the economic situation of member countries. Reports to the Council on national development programmes.

ENVIRONMENT COMMITTEE

Studies the economic and trade implications of environmental policies.

DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE COMMITTEE

Consists of representatives of Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom, United States and of the European Communities. Considers how to help countries in the process of economic development.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION COMMITTEE

Responsible for drawing up and supervising programmes of technical assistance arranged for the benefit of member countries.

TRADE COMMITTEE

Examines trade policies and practices in order to maintain multilateral trading.

PAYMENTS COMMITTEE

Advises the Council on payments aspects of "invisible" transactions, capital movements and long-term financing.

COMMITTEE FOR INVISIBLE TRANSACTIONS

Examines means of abolishing obstacles to "invisible" trading.

INSURANCE COMMITTEE

Examines government regulations affecting insurance activities in member and associated countries.

OECD

FISCAL COMMITTEE

Studies double taxation and other technical questions.

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS ON RESTRICTIVE BUSINESS PRACTICES

Studies these practices in member countries.

TOURISM COMMITTEE

Co-operation in the field of tourism is to be continued.

MARITIME TRANSPORT COMMITTEE

Responsible for collecting information and for arranging meetings on national policies.

CONSUMER POLICY COMMITTEE

Surveys legislation and activities in the field of consumer protection and information.

AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES COMMITTEES

May meet at ministerial or official level. Make recommendations on problems and policies of agriculture and fisheries.

COMMITTEE FOR SCIENCE POLICY

Deals with permanent co-operation among member countries on the various aspects of science policy at national and international levels.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Responsible for assessment of educational structures and implications for the allocation and use of resources.

COMMITTEES FOR INDUSTRY, ENERGY AND OIL

These Committees review the policies of member countries in their respective fields.

MANPOWER AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

Deals with social questions and manpower movements in Europe.

EUROPEAN NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY

Initiates and encourages joint action to develop nuclear energy for peaceful purposes. (See chapter, below.)

DEVELOPMENT CENTRE

Set up to train workers of the developing and developed countries.

President: PAUL-MARC HENRY (France).

Vice-President: MONTAGUE YUDELMAN (U.S.A.).

CENTRE FOR EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH AND INNOVATION

Created in 1968 to assist major changes in member countries' education systems.

Chairman: A. H. HALSEY (U.K.).

EUROPEAN MONETARY AGREEMENT—EMA

EMA came into force at the end of 1958 in replacement of the European Payments Union (EPU). When OECD replaced OEEC in 1961 the Agreement continued in force but the two new members, Canada and the United States, did not join.

OBJECTIVES

To foster full multilateral trade and convertibility through monetary co-operation between governments and between central banks.

To lay down basic rules concerning foreign exchange transactions.

To discourage any relapse into bilateralism in international payments relations.

To help members to overcome temporary balance-of-payments difficulties.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF MANAGEMENT

Chairman: A. HAY (Switzerland).

Vice-Chairmen: M. THERON (France), R. P. FENTON (United Kingdom).

Members: A. MADRONERO (Spain), A. VERNUCCI (Italy), H. JOERGES (Federal Republic of Germany), R. MIKKELSEN (Denmark), P. C. TIMMERMAN (Netherlands).

The Board of Management, which is responsible for the supervision of the execution of the EMA, consists of financial experts nominated by member countries and appointed by the OECD Council. It exercises powers delegated to it by the Council, to which it makes periodic reports and members make recommendations on all payments matters in their capacity as financial experts, rather than as government delegates. Its decisions are taken by a majority, including not less than four of its members.

EUROPEAN FUND

The European Fund, provided for by EMA, has a capital of $607 million. It provides aid to members to help them withstand temporary difficulties in their overall balance of payments. Credits are granted after agreement has been reached on the measures required to restore internal and external equilibrium. The country concerned undertakes to carry out these measures and to reinforce them, as necessary, in consultation with OECD.

MULTILATERAL SYSTEM OF SETTLEMENTS

The principal role of the Multilateral System of Settlements is to give each member's central bank the assurance of obtaining settlement in dollars, at an exchange rate known in advance, of any balance in another member's currency acquired by it. This exchange guarantees results from the undertaking by each member to keep the fluctuations of its currency within moderate and stable margins and, for this purpose, to declare buying and selling rates designed as limits to the market quotations for its currency; and each country undertakes, if it should change its rates, to settle any outstanding balance in its currency at the previous lower limit. Thus the necessary framework and guarantees are created for the effective development of the foreign exchange markets in a climate of confidence.

CONVENTION OF OECD

ARTICLE 1

The aims of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development shall be to promote policies designed:

To achieve the highest sustainable economic growth and employment and a rising standard of living in member countries, while maintaining financial stability, and thus to contribute to the development of the world economy.

To contribute to sound economic expansion in member as well as non-member countries in the process of economic development.

To contribute to the expansion of world trade on a multilateral, non-discriminatory basis in accordance with international obligations.

ARTICLE 2

In the pursuit of these aims, the members agree that they will:

Promote the efficient use of their economic resources.

Promote the development of their scientific and technological resources, encourage research and promote vocational training.

Pursue policies to achieve economic growth and financial stability.

Pursue their efforts to reduce or abolish obstacles to the exchange of goods and services and current payments and maintain and extend the liberalisation of capital movements.

Contribute to the economic development of member and non-member countries.

ARTICLE 3

Members agree that they will:

Furnish each other with information.

Consult together, carry out studies and participate in agreed projects.

Co-operate closely and where appropriate take co-ordinated action.

ARTICLE 4

The Contracting Parties to this Convention shall be members of the Organisation.

ARTICLE 5

The Organisation may:

Take decisions binding on all the members.

Make recommendations.

Enter into agreements with members, non-members and international organisations.

ARTICLE 6

Decisions shall be taken and recommendations shall be made by mutual agreement.

Each member shall have one vote. If a member abstains from voting such abstention shall not invalidate the decision, which shall be applicable to the other members but not to the abstaining member.

No decision shall be binding on any member until it has complied with the requirements of its own constitutional procedures. The other members may agree that such a decision shall apply provisionally to them.

ARTICLE 7

A Council composed of all the members shall be the body from which all acts of the Organisation derive.

ARTICLE 8

The Council shall designate each year a Chairman, who shall preside at its ministerial sessions, and two Vice-Chairmen.

ARTICLE 9

The Council may establish an Executive Committee and such subsidiary bodies as may be required.

ARTICLE 10

A Secretary-General responsible to the Council shall be appointed by the Council for a term of five years. He shall be assisted by one or more Deputy Secretaries-General or Assistant Secretaries-General appointed by the Council.

The Secretary-General shall serve as Chairman of the Council meeting at sessions of Permanent Representatives.

ARTICLE 11

The Secretary-General shall appoint such staff as the Organisation may require. Staff regulations shall be subject to approval by the Council.

The Secretary-General and staff shall neither seek nor receive instructions from any of the members or from any government or authority external to the Organisation.

ARTICLE 12

The Organisation may:

Address communications to non-member states or organisations.

Establish relations with non-member states or organisations.

Invite non-member governments or organisations to participate in activities of the Organisation.

ARTICLE 13

Representation in the Organisation of the European Communities shall be as defined in Supplementary Protocol No. 1 to this Convention.

ARTICLE 14

This Convention shall be ratified or accepted by the Signatories in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements.

Instruments of ratification or acceptance shall be deposited with the Government of the French Republic.

Manner of coming into force of the Convention:

ARTICLE 15

When this Convention comes into force the reconstitution of the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation shall take effect.

ARTICLE 16

The Council may decide to invite any government to accede to this Convention.

ARTICLE 17

Any Contracting Party may terminate the application of this Convention to itself by giving twelve months' notice to that effect.

ARTICLE 18

The headquarters of the Organisation shall be in Paris, unless the Council agrees otherwise.

ARTICLE 19

The legal capacity of the Organisation shall be as provided in Supplementary Protocol No. 2 to this Convention.

ARTICLE 20

Each year the Secretary-General shall present to the Council for approval an annual budget.

General expenses of the Organisation, as agreed by the Council, shall be apportioned in accordance with a scale to be decided upon by the Council.

ARTICLE 21

Upon the receipt of any instrument of ratification, acceptance or accession, or of any notice of termination, the depositary government shall give notice thereof to all the Contracting Parties and to the Secretary-General of the Organisation.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROTOCOL No. 1

The Commissions of the European Economic Community and of the European Atomic Energy Commission as well as the High Authority of the European Coal and Steel Community shall take part in the work of the Organisation.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROTOCOL No. 2

The Organisation shall have legal capacity and the Organisation, its officials, and representatives to it of the members shall be entitled to specified privileges, exemptions, and immunities.

PROTOCOL ON THE REVISION OF THE CONVENTION FOR EUROPEAN ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION, 1948

ARTICLE 1

The Convention shall be revised and as a consequence thereof it shall be replaced by the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation.

ARTICLE 2

This Protocol shall come into force when the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development comes into force.

The Convention shall cease to have effect as regards any Signatory of this Protocol when the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development comes into force.

EUROPEAN NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY—ENEA

38 Boulevard Suchet, Paris 16e, France

Tel.: 870-46-10

In 1957 the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) adopted the Statute of the European Nuclear Energy Agency, which came into effect in February 1958. The functions of the Agency are confined to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. In September 1961, the Agency was taken over by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

ORGANIZATION

Director-General: EINAR SAELAND.

Deputy Director-General: IAN G. K. WILLIAMS.

Scientific Adviser: Prof. LEW KOWARSKI.

ENEA Steering Committee: Chair Prof. C. SALVETTI (Italy); Vice-Chair. Dr. C. CACHO (Portugal), R. POLACZEK (Austria).

The European Nuclear Agency aims to foster the development of the production and uses of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes. Its functions include the promotion of joint undertakings and common services; co-ordination of nuclear research (especially through international scientific committees); development of uniform legislation on health and safety, liability and insurance; assessments of nuclear fuel resources and the contribution of nuclear power towards meeting Europe's future energy requirements. ENEA has also established a security control system to prevent the use of joint undertakings for military purposes.

ACTIVITIES

EUROCHEMIC (European Company for Chemical Processing of Irradiated Fuels). EUROCHEMIC is a $38 million international shareholding company set up in 1957 to treat used uranium fuel from reactors in participating countries. Present shareholders are governments, public authorities and industrial organisations in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, the German Federal Republic, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey. The company's plant at Mol, Belgium, begun in 1960, entered into service in July 1966 since when it has reprocessed over 100 tons of irradiated fuels from more than 20 reactors. In October 1969 the formation of Société de Fluoration de l'Uranium (S.F.U.) was announced, to build and operate at Mol an installation for converting uranyl nitrate from the main reprocessing plant into uranium tetrafluoride, a stage in the production of hexafluoride for feeding to enrichment plants.

HALDEN Project. The Experimental 20 MWt. Boiling Heavy Water Reactor at Halden, Norway, first became an ENEA joint undertaking under an Agreement signed in 1958 between the Norwegian Institutt for Atomenergi (owner of the reactor), Austria, the Danish Atomic Energy Commission, EURATOM, AB Atomenergi of Sweden, Switzerland, and the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority. The original three-year duration of this Project was twice extended by eighteen months. Under a separate Agreement with the Norwegian Institutt, the Finnish Atomic Energy Commission also took part in the Project.

In 1964 a new Agreement was reached between a number of the original participants (the Norwegian Institutt, the Danish and Finnish Commissions, Reactor Centrum Nederland, AB Atomenergi, Switzerland and the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority) for a further three-year joint programme to include tests of prototype fuel elements and certain other specialised research and development work. This new programme was subsequently joined by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, the Italian National Nuclear Energy Committee, and a German industrial group. In 1966 it was prolonged for a further three years until the end of 1969, and again in 1969 for the three years 1970-72. By the end of this period total expenditure by the Project since its inception is expected to be some $14.5 million.

DRAGON Project. The Dragon (U.K.) Experimental High-Temperature Reactor project was set up under a 1959 Agreement signed by the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority, Austria, the Danish A.E.C., EURATOM, the Norwegian Institutt for Atomenergi, AB Atomenergi of Sweden and Switzerland. Supporting research is being done in many European countries. In November 1962, the original five-year period of the Project was extended to eight years, and the original budget of £13.6 million was increased to £25 million. Construction of the Dragon Reactor was completed early in 1964, first criticality was achieved in August, and its full design power of 20 MWt. in April 1966. At the end of 1966 the Project was further extended to March 31st, 1970, and subsequently to March 31st, 1973, these extensions bringing the overall budget to £38 million over the 14 years. Modified objectives were adopted in 1969 to enable maximum assistance to be given to industry in participating countries for the commercial exploitation of the Dragon system.

Food Irradiation. On October 14th, 1970, 17 OECD and 2 non-OECD countries signed an agreement setting up an International Project in the Field of Food Irradiation. The Project, which is jointly sponsored by ENEA, the International Atomic Energy Agency, and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations, came into being on January 1st, 1971: its main objectives are wholesomeness testing of selected food products preserved by irradiation processes, together with investigations into the methodology of wholesomeness testing. Most of this work is being carried out under contract in specialist laboratories and institutions in the Project's participant countries. The overall programme is co-ordinated through a small headquarters organization accommodated in the German Federal Research Institute for Food Preservation at Karlsruhe. Since its inception, 2 further countries have joined the Project, bringing the number of participants to 21 (Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, United Kingdom and the United States).

Common Services. In June 1964, agreements were concluded with EURATOM and the French Commissariat à l'Energie Atomique for the establishment of an ENEA Computer Programme Library at the EURATOM Joint Research Establishment at Ispra (Italy), and an ENEA Neutron Data Compilation Centre at the Saclay Centre d'Etudes Nucléaires (France). Both these Common Services operate in close co-operation with equivalent services in the U.S.A. and, through the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), with services in the rest of the world.

Scientific Committees. The European-American Nuclear Data Committee (EANDC) was set up in 1959 to review and co-ordinate research programmes for data measurements. An analogous committee for reactor physics research, the European-American Committee on Reactor Physics (EACRP) was established in 1962. The work of both Committees includes detailed examinations of experimental work under way and proposed in their respective fields, in order to assess relative priorities and suggest the most appropriate division of such work between laboratories equipped to carry it out. In 1965 an International Committee on Reactor Safety Technology (CREST) was created to survey current work on reactor safety and to promote international co-operation for its improvement.

Special Studies. A study of possible uses in Europe for radioisotopic power generators, and of European industrial potential for their production, was begun in 1965. In June 1967 Austria, Denmark, France, the German Federal Republic, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland launched a collaborative programme for the development of "radioisotopic batteries". The world's first human implantation of an isotope-powered heart pace-maker, in Paris in April 1970, was part of this programme.

A second study, begun at the end of 1964, concerns the long-term rôle of nuclear energy in Western Europe. This is an attempt to evaluate the probable nuclear contribution to Europe's overall long-term energy requirements, examining the characteristics of the different power reactor systems which are envisaged and estimating corresponding requirements for fuel production, enrichment, fabrication and reprocessing capacities. A number of specialized reports have been published.

Following proposals by ENEA's Working Group on Gas-cooled Fast Reactors, in October 1971 seven countries (Austria, Belgium, Germany, Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and U.K.) decided to collaborate—through a special restricted group set up for the purpose—in a co-ordinated programme of development work in this field, to be carried out in a number of their national research and industrial centres.

Health and Safety. ENEA's Health and Safety Committee, in close liaison with IAEA, has prepared international protection norms against ionizing radiations. These norms are revised from time to time to take account of advances in scientific knowledge. Applications of the norms to specific circumstances, for example for regulations governing the use of radioisotopes in certain products on public sale (e.g. radio-luminous paints), or the manufacture and use of radioisotopic generators, are the subjects of separate recommendations. Problems of radioactive waste disposal in the sea are being examined, and internationally planned and controlled disposal operations were carried out deep in the Atlantic Ocean in 1967, 1969 and 1971.

Third Party Liability. The 1960 OECD (Paris) Convention on Third Party Liability in the Field of Nuclear Energy, signed by most of ENEA member countries, came into force in April 1968. The Convention defined for the first time the underlying principles of all international agreements on nuclear liability, and also of most national legislation in this field. It has now been ratified by seven countries: Belgium, France, Greece, Spain, Sweden, Turkey and the United Kingdom; preparations are under way in a number of other countries for ratification in the near future.

In January 1963 a Supplementary Convention to the Paris Convention, extending the maximum limit of compensation but maintaining the principles of the Paris Convention was signed in Brussels. This Convention, however, is not yet in force.

Security Control. The ENEA Convention on Security Control, which came into force in 1959, is based on a system of inspection and control of the movement and use of fissile materials to ensure that these are not diverted to any military purpose. The ENEA Control Bureau, established under the Convention, has adopted detailed rules for the joint undertakings HALDEN, DRAGON and EUROCHEMIC, and inspections take place. Rules applicable to facilities using nuclear materials recovered or obtained in an ENEA joint undertaking have also been adopted: these cover materials from all ENEA joint undertakings but have particular importance in connection with the EUROCHEMIC plant because, following the reprocessing of spent fuel, recovered materials may be despatched to various countries and continued control of these materials must be ensured.

Budget. The ENEA budget forms part of the OECD budget, and for 1971 was approximately $1 million for the Central Secretariat, with a further $0.8 million for the Common Services at Saclay and Ispra which are financed under the Secretariat budget. The EUROCHEMIC, HALDEN and DRAGON Projects, and the Karlsruhe Food Irradiation Project, are financed separately, and now represent a total investment of over $150 million.

Publications: Annual activity reports of ENEA, EUROCHEMIC, HALDEN and DRAGON. There are also specialized series publications (e.g., Nuclear Law Bulletin, Radioisotopic Generator Newsletter, Food Irradiation Information Bulletin), reports on nuclear fuel resources, production and utilization, and Proceedings of Agency-sponsored conferences and symposia.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

There were various attempts at establishing an inter-African organization before the OAU Charter was drawn up. In November 1958 Ghana and Guinea (later joined by Mali) drafted a Charter which was to form the basis of a Union of African States. In January 1961 a conference was held at Casablanca, attended by the heads of state of Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco, and representatives of Libya and of the provisional government of the Algerian Republic (GPRA). Tunisia, Nigeria, Liberia and Togo declined the invitation to attend. An African Charter was adopted and it was decided to set up an African Military Command and an African Common Market.

Between October 1960 and March 1961 three conferences were held by French-speaking African countries, at Abidjan, Brazzaville and Yaoundé. None of the twelve countries which attended these meetings had been present at the Casablanca Conference. These conferences led eventually to the signing in September 1961, at Tananarive, of a charter establishing the Union africaine et malgache, which was succeeded in 1965 by the Organisation commune africaine et malgache.

In May 1961 a conference was held at Monrovia, attended by the heads of state or representatives of nineteen countries: Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo Republic (ex-French) Dahomey, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Madagascar, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Somalia, Togo, Tunisia and Upper Volta. They met again (with the exception of Tunisia and with the addition of the ex-Belgian Congo Republic) in January 1962 at Lagos, and set up a permanent secretariat and a standing committee of Finance Ministers, and accepted a draft charter for an Organization of Inter-African and Malagasy States.

It was the Conference of Addis Ababa, held in 1963, which finally brought together African states despite the regional, political and linguistic differences which divided them. The Foreign Ministers of thirty African states attended the Preparatory Meeting held in May: Algeria, Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Congo (Brazzaville), Congo (Léopoldville), Dahomey, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Libya, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Niger, Nigeria, Rwanda, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Somalia, Sudan, Tanganyika, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Republic, Upper Volta.

The topics discussed by the meeting were: (1) creation of the Organization of African States; (2) co-operation among African states in the following fields: economic and social; education, culture and science; collective defence; (3) decolonization; (4) apartheid and racial discrimination;

ORGANIZATION OF AFRICAN UNITY

(5) effects of economic groupings on the economic development of Africa; (6) disarmament; (7) creation of a Permanent Conciliation Commission; (8) Africa and the United Nations.

The Heads of State Conference which opened on May 23rd drew up the Charter of the Organization of African Unity, which was then signed by the heads of thirty states on May 28th, 1963. The Charter was based essentially on the concept of a loose association of states favoured by the Monrovia Group, rather than the federal idea supported by the Casablanca Group, and in particular by Ghana.

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY OF HEADS OF STATE

The Assembly of Heads of State and Government meets annually to co-ordinate policies of African States. Resolutions are passed by a two-thirds majority, procedural matters by a simple majority. Last meeting June 1971, Addis Ababa (eighth); next meeting June 1972, Rabat.

Chairman (1971-72): President MOKTAR OULD DADDAH (Mauritania).

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Consists of Foreign and/or other Ministers and meets twice a year, with provision for extraordinary sessions. Each session elects its own Chairman. Prepares meetings of, and is responsible to, the Assembly of Heads of State. By June 1971 seventeen Ordinary Meetings and seven Extraordinary Sessions had been held.

ARBITRATION COMMISSION

Commission of Mediation, Conciliation and Arbitration: Addis Ababa; f. 1964; consists of 21 members elected by the Assembly of Heads of State for a five-year term; no state may have more than one member; has a Bureau consisting of a President and two Vice-Presidents, who shall not be eligible for re-election; to hear and settle disputes between member states by peaceful means; Pres. M. A. ODESANYA (Nigeria).

SPECIALIZED COMMISSIONS

The Assembly of Heads of State and Government at its third ordinary session at Addis Ababa in November 1966 ratified the recommendations for the regrouping of the Six Specialized Commissions into the following three:

Economic and Social Commission (also in charge of Transport and Communications).

Educational, Cultural, Scientific and Health Commission.
Defence Commission.

LIBERATION COMMITTEE

Co-ordinating Committee for Liberation Movements in Africa: Dar es Salaam, Tanzania; f. 1963; to provide financial and military aid to nationalist movements in dependent countries; Eighteenth Session was held in Moshi, Tanzania, February 1971; Chair. SAIL ELINAWINGA (Tanzania).

SECRETARIAT

P.O. Box 3243, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

The General Secretariat is a permanent and central organ of the OAU. It carries out functions assigned to it in the Charter of the OAU and by other agreements and treaties made between member states. ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Meets annually and can also hold special sessions when convoked by the Permanent Council. Replaces the Inter-American Conference taking over its functions of deciding general action and policy.

MEETINGS OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

Meetings take place intermittently and may be assisted by an Advisory Defence Committee, composed of the highest military authorities in the member countries.

PERMANENT COUNCIL

Composed of one representative of each member state with the rank of ambassador; each government may accredit alternate representatives and advisers and when necessary appoint an interim representative. Chairman and Vice-Chairman are appointed every three months. The Council acts as an Organ of Consultation and oversees the maintenance of friendly relations between members, assisted by its subsidiary organ the Inter-American Committee on Peaceful Settlement. The Council supervises the work of OAS and promotes co-operation with a variety of other international bodies including the United Nations. Other principal organs of OAS include:

INTER-AMERICAN ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Composed of one principal representative from each member state. Holds regular annual meetings at Ministerial level and other meetings when necessary. Executive functions are at present carried out by the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress (CIAP).

INTER-AMERICAN COUNCIL FOR EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND CULTURE

Composed in the same manner as the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Both are dependent on the General Assembly.

INTER-AMERICAN JURIDICAL COMMITTEE

Composed of eleven jurists, nationals of member states, elected by the General Assembly for a period of four years.

INTER-AMERICAN COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS

Composed of seven members elected for four years. Holds one or two regular meetings each year and may hold special meetings.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

The central and permanent organ of the Organization, carries out the duties entrusted to it by the General Assembly, Meeting of Foreign Ministers or the various Councils. Departments of Economic and Social Affairs, Education, Science and Culture, Management and Technical Co-operation under Assistant Secretaries, and Departments of Legal Affairs, and Information and Public Affairs which come directly under the Secretary-General.

Official languages: English, French, Portuguese, Spanish.

Secretary-General: GALO PLAZA (Ecuador).

Assistant Secretary-General: MIGUEL RAFAEL URQUÍA (El Salvador).

SPECIALIZED COMMITTEES

Many committees meet to deal with technical matters and Inter-American co-operation.

SPECIALIZED ORGANIZATIONS

Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences (IAIAS).

Pan American Health Organization (PAHO).

Inter-American Commission of Women (IACW).

Inter-American Children's Institute (IACI).

Pan American Institute of Geography and History (PAIGH).

Inter-American Indian Institute (IAII).

SPECIAL AGENCIES AND COMMISSIONS

Inter-American Defense Board (IADB).

Inter-American Statistical Institute (IASI).

Inter-American Nuclear Energy Commission (IANEC).

Special Consultative Committee on Security.

FUNCTIONS

1. Economic and Social Matters. Regional projects have been established relating to economic development and its social aspects, international trade, basic products, transportation and travel, social welfare, co-operatives, social insurance, immigration and colonisation, labour, housing and urban development, and technical co-operation. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council has established close working relationships at all levels. In September 1960 all members, except Cuba, signed the Charter of Punta del Este, establishing the Alliance for Progress. (For details see separate section.)

2. Juridical Matters. The Inter-American Juridical Committee, one of the principal organs of the Organization, serves as an advisory body on juridical matters; promotes the progressive development and codification of international law; studies juridical problems related to the integration of the developing countries of the hemisphere, and in so far as may appear desirable the possibility of attaining uniformity in legislation.

3. Cultural Matters. The Council of OAS and the Inter-American Cultural Council carry out a broad cultural programme. Activities cover education, philosophy and letters, music, art, science, and libraries. Co-operation is maintained with UNESCO projects.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

4. Agriculture. An OAS special agency, the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences (IAIAS), is helping to improve plant strains, crop yields, and breeds of cattle, and to conserve the natural resources of forest, water, soil and wild life. It also conducts research and initiates training schemes for post-graduates.

5. Public Health. The OAS Pan American Health Organization also acts as the Regional Organization of the UN World Health Organisation. It plans joint action against communicable diseases, strengthens the health services, and expands the education and training facilities for health workers.

6. Statistics. The four main objectives of the Inter-American Statistical Institute (IASI) are: to stimulate better methods in the collection, tabulation, analysis and publication of statistics; to provide a medium for professional collaboration among statisticians; to co-operate with national and international organizations in advancing the science and administration of statistics. Plans have been devised for co-ordinating national censuses and for conducting agricultural censuses. Canada is a member of the Institute.

7. Geography and History. The Pan American Institute of Geography and History (PAIGH) encourages and co-ordinates these studies. It works through commissions on cartography, geography and history, and committees on oceanography, vulcanology, and other subjects. It also administers the Pan American Training Centre for evaluation of Natural Resources in Rio de Janeiro.

8. Status of Women. The Inter-American Commission of Women (IACW), has campaigned for thirty years to raise the political status of women.

9. Child Welfare. Founded in Montevideo in 1927, the Inter-American Children's Institute (IACI) serves as a centre of social action, documentation, study, advice, and information on childhood and the family.

10. Indian Affairs. The Inter-American Indian Institute (IAII) serves as the permanent committee of the Inter-American Indian Conferences. Projects of research and field work on the conditions of Indian women have been completed in Mexico and in Central and South America. Legislation is being prepared.

11. Defence. The Inter-American Defense Board, Washington, D.C., works towards the co-ordination of common defence measures and the establishment of the broadest possible basis for inter-American military co-operation. The Inter-American Defense College, Washington, D.C., a teaching institution for high-ranking officers of the Latin American armed forces, was established in 1962.

12. Nuclear Energy. The Inter-American Nuclear Energy Commission, set up in 1959, facilitates co-operation among the member States in matters relating to the peaceful applications of nuclear energy. In 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed with the International Atomic Energy Agency.

13. Human Rights. The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights studies problems in this field.

14. Peace. Two treaties cover the area of peaceful settlement of disputes, The Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance (Rio Treaty), and the American Treaty on Pacific Settlement (Pact of Bogotá). The Permanent Council is assisted in the maintenance of friendly relations by the Inter-American Committee on Peaceful Settlement.

15. Alliance for Progress. For details see separate chapter.

16. Special Consultative Committee on Security. Established in March 1962 to help members guard against the action of international communism.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES
INTER-AMERICAN NUCLEAR ENERGY COMMISSION—IANEC

Organization of American States, Washington, D.C. 20006, U.S.A.

IANEC was established in 1959 as a Technical Commission of the Organization of American States. It makes recommendations to member governments and to OAS.

MEMBERS

Argentina	Ecuador	Panama
Barbados	El Salvador	Paraguay
Bolivia	Guatemala	Peru
Brazil	Haiti	Trinidad and Tobago
Chile	Honduras	U.S.A.
Colombia	Jamaica	Uruguay
Costa Rica	Mexico	Venezuela
Dominican Republic	Nicaragua

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

The Commission is made up of one delegate from each of the member states, and the Secretary-General of OAS (who may speak but not vote). Regular meetings are held every two years.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairman are elected by and from the members and hold office until the next regular meeting.

COMMITTEES

The Commission may set up such working committees as it considers necessary. The committees elect their own Chairman and Rapporteur from among their members.

SECRETARIAT

Executive-Secretary: Dr. JESSE D. PERKINSON.

The Secretary-General of OAS appoints all IANEC Secretariat staff, who form a part of OAS.

ACTIVITIES

IANEC was set up to help the American Republics to develop and co-ordinate research and training in nuclear energy. In addition to providing direct aid to Latin American institutions for work in development and research, IANEC also sends professors and researchers, finances the development of courses and defrays the expenses of Fellows in the training centres. It also distributes information and recommends public health measures.

Since 1959 the Commission has undertaken a survey of facilities available in Latin American universities and has established an Advisory Committee to make recommendations on scientific and engineering training. In 1963 studies were undertaken on nuclear power in Latin America and on Civil Liability in the field of nuclear energy.

In December 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed between IANEC and the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and in 1963 a memorandum was exchanged between the secretariats of IANEC and EURATOM establishing co-operation. Several meetings, workshops and symposia have been co-sponsored by IANEC and IAEA.

Since 1968 IANEC has organized periodic Latin American Conferences on radiochemistry, increasing agricultural production through the use of radio-isotopes, hydrology and food irradiation. It has held a number of meetings of study groups on other topics related to nuclear energy.

Since 1969 IANEC has been in charge of the Multinational Nuclear Energy Project of the OAS Regional Program for Scientific and Technological Development.

BUDGET

1971-72 (including $155,145 assigned to Multinational Nuclear Energy Project): $180,862.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

PAN AMERICAN HIGHWAY CONGRESSES

Organization of American States, Washington, D.C. 20006, U.S.A.

Inaugurated 1925 to promote the construction of a highway to link the U.S.A. with South and Central America.

MEMBERS

The 23 members of the Organization of American States

ORGANIZATION

PAN AMERICAN HIGHWAY CONGRESS

Held every three years to promote road building and inform member governments, the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Economic and Social Council on matters relating to Highway planning and construction and maintenance. Made up of representatives of member states (who may speak and vote), the Permanent Executive Committee, Chairmen of the Technical Committees and the Secretary-General of OAS (who have no vote), and observers and special observers (who may speak but not vote).

The Chairman is elected by the delegates.
Next meeting: 1974, in San José, Costa Rica.

PERMANENT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Attached to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Composed of specialists representing nine of the member countries, seven elected by Congress. Functions are to implement the resolutions of Congress. It meets at least once a year.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEES OF EXPERTS

Set up by Congress, as necessary. There are five permanent Committees: Development of Government Highway Agencies, Planning, Finance, Terminology, and Traffic and Safety, and seven subcommittees as follows:

Darien Subcommittee: Created in 1954 to promote interest in the construction of a road to connect the existing highway systems of North and South America through the Darien region of Panama and adjacent area of Columbia. This Committee administers the work of the survey teams now working on the project.

Subcommittee on the Pan American Transversal Highway in South America: Created in 1963 to promote the construction of a highway to connect Paranaguá, Brazil, with Asunción, La Paz and Lima.

Subcommittee on the Bolivarian Forest Edge Highway (Carretera Bolivariana Marginal de la Selva): Created in 1965 to encourage the construction of a continuous highway along the lower eastern edge of the Andes in Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay. This will extend and interconnect penetration roads leading from the Andean highlands to points in Brazil and Argentina.

Co-ordinating and Study Group on the Caribbean Circuit: Established to determine the possibility of constructing a highway which, by crossing the Atrato River, would connect a point on the Panama-Colombian border with points along the coast to Venezuela as part of the Caribbean Circuit.

Lima-Brasília Highway, via Pucallpa, Peru: Bolivia-Brazil-Peru Subcommittee established for a highway to link Lima with the Brazilian capital, now including a spur to La Paz and Bolivia.

Pan-Amazonic Subcommittee: Subcommittee created 1965 for the construction of a highway to establish a connection between the Pacific Ocean and the Amazon basin, so as to take advantage of river transportation throughout the length of the Amazon River and its principal tributaries. First meeting of Subcommittee held in Bogotá in March 1967.

International Bridge over the Uruguay River: This bridge will link Puerto Unzué, Argentina, to Fray Bentos, Uruguay, and is considered to be a high priority project in the highway system of both countries.

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

The services are provided by the General Secretariat of the OAS, Washington D.C.

THE HIGHWAY

The total mileage of the Pan American Highway System, including alternative routes, is 49,315 miles of which 27,513 are paved.

Mexico. The Highway has four sections converging on Mexico City. The eastern road enters at Laredo, Texas, with branches to Brownsville and McAllen, Texas; the Central Highway runs from El Paso, Texas; the Pacific Highway is along the west coast from Nogales, Arizona; and the Constitution Highway begins at Piedras Negras.

Guatemala. The Highway through Guatemala has been completed and paved throughout. An additional road from the Talisman Bridge to the border with El Salvador has been added.

El Salvador. Paved throughout. An alternative route from La Hachadura on the Guatemalan border to the junction with the Pan American Highway has been added.

Honduras. Paved. A 57-mile branch road leads to Tegucigalpa, the capital.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

Nicaragua. Paved throughout. The Highway joins the Atlantic Highway at San Benito.

Costa Rica. On the southern section the bridges were completed in 1963.

Panama. Thirty-eight miles east of Panama City the road ends. Construction of the 574-mile Darien Gap between Chepo, Panama, and the Highway in Colombia, now under study, will complete the Highway.

Venezuela. The Highway runs from La Guaira, via Caracas to the Colombian frontier at Cúcuta.

Colombia. Continuation of Venezuelan road south east to Ipiales on the Ecuadorian frontier. An all-weather road links Barranquilla on the north coast to the Highway at Palmira and a branch runs to Buenaventura.

Ecuador. The Ecuadorean section of the Highway is an all-weather road. An alternative route enters Peru at Aguas Verdes.

Peru. Highway is planned to enter at La Tina. In the south the Highway forks, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway continuing southward into Chile and the main route going east and south into Bolivia.

Chile. Highway runs due south to Santiago. At Los Andes a branch turns east to Argentina. The Uspallata Pass section is closed for six months every year owing to heavy winter snows, when cars may be shipped by rail through the Transandine Railroad Tunnel.

Bolivia. Two routes lead from the Peruvian frontier to La Paz, whence the Highway continues southward to the Argentinian frontier at Villazón.

Argentina. Four routes converge on Buenos Aires. Eastward from Los Andes in Chile; southeast from Bolivia; south along the west bank of the Paraguay and Paraná rivers from Asunción in Paraguay; and south-west from Uruguaiana in Brazil and joining the Asunción road at Santa Fé.

Paraguay. The Highway runs from the Argentinian border to Asunción and eastward to Brazil at Foz do Iguaçu. A branch turns south to Encarnación on the Argentinian border.

Uruguay. From Montevideo the route in use runs north to enter Brazil at Aceguá, with alternative branches entering at Rio Branco and Chuy.

Brazil. The official road from Uruguay travels from Aceguá to Brasília. Alternative routes, from Jaguarão, Chuí and Uruguaiana, converge on Brasília. There is a connection with Paraguay at Foz do Iguaçu.

RIGOBERTO PAREDES (Panama)—represents Central America and Panama.
ROBERTO INGER BARQUERO (Nicaragua)—represents Central America and Panama.
EMILIO CASTAÑÓN PASQUEL (Peru)—represents Chile and Peru.
DOUGLAS HENDERSON (U.S.A.).
JESÚS RODRÍGUEZ Y RODRÍGUEZ (Mexico).

Created in November 1963, at the Second Annual Meeting of IA-ECOSOC in São Paulo, Brazil. Consists of a Chairman elected for a four-year term, ten members and ten alternate members elected for a two-year term. The representatives of the countries are appointed by the Inter-American Economic and Social Council for a two-year period, at the proposition of a country or a group of countries, as shown above.

CIAP is the permanent Executive Committee of IA-ECOSOC and the multilateral representative body of the Alliance for Progress. It co-ordinates Alliance action as established by the Charter of Punta del Este and carries out the mandates it receives from IA-ECOSOC.

Its principal objectives and functions are to evaluate the internal development efforts of each member country in order to estimate the needs and availabilities of external financing; to act on behalf of recipient countries in obtaining financing, and to promote the co-ordination of development assistance among lending agencies.

CIAP's activities are carried out through its own plenary meetings, usually held four times a year, and the meetings of 23 subcommittees in charge of the annual country reviews. A delegation from the respective country participates in the review process, together with representatives of the international financial community, of several United Nations organs, and of non-member countries that might assist in financing development programmes. At the end of each review, a set of specific conclusions and recommendations pertaining to the entire breadth of the development effort is worked out, including quantitative targets for internal and external resource mobilization.

ADVISORY SPECIAL GROUP OF EXPERTS

Was established under the Charter of Punta del Este. Its organization was modified at the Fourth Annual Meeting of IA-ECOSOC in March 1966 and in the light of CIES Statutes. The reconstituted body is attached to CIAP and it is composed of not more than five members elected by CIAP on the recommendations of the Secretary-General of OAS, the Chairman of CIAP, the President of IDB and the Executive Secretary of ECLA.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

To date the following experts have been appointed to the Group:

BERNAL JIMÉNEZ MONGE (Costa Rica).

JOÃO PAULO DE ALMEIDA MAGALHÃES (Brazil).

ENRIQUE V. IGLESIAS (Uruguay).

The main functions of the Group of Experts are the following: to participate in the continued evaluation made by CIAP through the country reviews, to carry on specific tasks requested by CIES or CIAP, including participation in working groups, special missions to advise the countries or similar studies, as well as studies undertaken on its own initiative.

SECRETARIAT

The General Secretariat of OAS provides the personnel required by CIAP and the Advisory Special Group of Experts.

ACTIVITIES

National development: OAS, through the Inter-American Committee for the Alliance for Progress, conducts annual reviews of the member countries of the Inter-American system. The reviews are held by CIAP subcommittees, with the participation of each country, representatives of international financial institutions, and observers from non-OAS member countries. Their objective is to evaluate economic performance and to determine the amount of foreign assistance needed to achieve the country's economic and social development goals. A report on these subjects is prepared by the Secretariat and is used as a working paper at the meetings. CIAP is also engaged in the co-ordination of external assistance, both technical and financial.

Technical Co-operation: OAS extends technical assistance services and training programmes to member states based on the National Technical Co-operation Programmes prepared by the governments. It also utilizes the potential co-operation offered by non-member states for regional and national development objectives. Centralizes information to facilitate the co-ordination of the Organization's technical co-operation activities. Trains nearly 3,000 professionals yearly and provides more than 1,000 man-months of technical assistance.

Private Enterprise: The Secretary-General of OAS has established a 23-member Business Advisory Council aimed at reinforcing the role of the business sector in Latin America's development efforts. National business liaison committees are expected to be created in each OAS member state.

Manpower and Employment: The OAS Secretariat provides technical training and assistance for labour ministry personnel, trade union staff, and university labour study and research faculty in programmes related to their active participation in national development programmes. The Inter-American labour system provides guidance to the Secretariat through the Inter-American Conference of Ministers of Labour, the Permanent Technical Committee on Labour Matters (COTPAL) and the Trade Union Technical Advisory Council (COSATE). In this area, the Secretariat has begun a pilot activity to assist countries in identifying projects which will maximize employment growth. Missions of high-level project experts are being sent to countries to help the latter develop a shelf of employment-generating projects for subsequent internal and external financing. Close co-ordination and joint activities are carried out with ILO, IDB and UNDP. The major focus of the entire programme deals with combating unemployment in Latin America.

OAS has also recently finished a report entitled Employment and Growth in the Strategy of Latin American Development: Implications for the Seventies (Doc. CIES/1641). This report will be analyzed during 1972 by different groups of government and private-sector experts on labour and employment problems. Eventually, it will be revised and its main conclusions incorporated into the development strategy for the next decade that is being prepared by CIAP.

Export Promotion: An Inter-American Export Promotion Centre was established in 1968 at Bogotá. The Centre will help to place more Latin American products in international markets. A publication in Spanish, Nuevos Mercados, gives information on export markets and marketing techniques. The Centre will open an office in Europe to facilitate contacts with European institutions in the public and private sectors. In addition, an office is being opened in the World Trade Centre in New York to take advantage of the facilities which this building offers for contacts with the United States market.

Population and Development: The Secretariat continued its activities aimed at creating an awareness in the member countries of the importance of the population variable in their development efforts and to spur them to establish policies and programmes in this field. CIAP examined the social sectors of a number of countries from a demographic standpoint. As part of the series of meetings begun earlier, a regional seminar was held in Lima on employment, population and development, attended largely by government officials from planning, labour and other executive offices in the Latin American countries. The series of national working groups on development planning and population was continued with sessions organized in Venezuela and Argentina. Plans were advanced for holding a regional seminar in urbanization and population growth, early in 1972 in Brazil. In collaboration with CELADE, IDB, ILPES, UN and PREALC the OAS has planned an Inter-American Programme on Population and the Planning of Development which is to begin offering specialized training in Latin America in 1972.

Tax Reform: Since it began in 1961, the Joint OAS/IDB Tax Programme has sent a large number of technical assistance missions to member states to work in the areas of tax policy and tax administration, has sponsored two inter-American conferences on tax matters, has assigned missions to LAFTA, the Andean Group and CACM to assist in tax harmonization policies and has published numerous studies on tax and fiscal policy. Training in taxation is provided through the Inter-American Centre on Tax Studies, a co-operative venture with the government of Argentina.

Integration: With ratification of the Protocol of Buenos Aires on February 27th, 1970, which introduced some reforms to the Charter of the OAS, the quest for integration became a contractual obligation to the members of this Organization.

The programme towards a Latin American Common Market envisaged in the Declaration on Presidents of 1967, however, has suffered some set backs. The CACM has not yet recovered from the consequences of the conflict between El Salvador and Honduras. LAFTA, on the other hand, is proceeding now at a slower pace than the Treaty of Montevideo provided. The Protocol of Caracas has extended by seven years the establishment of the free trade zone. Furthermore, the emergence of subregional groupings indicates that the road toward integration in Latin America will be facilitated by subregional schemes where memberships are more homogeneous and levels of development less accentuated.

Regarding technical co-operation, the OAS General Secretariat extends help to the integration organizations by means of joint programmes. They are mainly in the field of fiscal policies and tax harmonization, social security, natural resources development, transportation, physical infrastructure and others.

FINANCE

It was estimated that financial assistance from external sources totalling at least $20,000,000,000 would be required during the first ten years.

The amount actually committed during the period

1961-71 was $21,900,000, of which the United States Agencies provided $10,200,000,000; other international financial institutions contributed $10,400,000,000 and the OECD $1,300,000,000.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

CHARTER OF PUNTA DEL ESTE

Signed at Punta del Este, Uruguay, on August 17th, 1961, to co-ordinate Inter-American development and set up the Alliance for Progress.

SUMMARY

OBJECTIVES

1. To achieve a substantial and sustained growth of per capita incomes at a rate designed to attain levels of income capable of assuring self-sustaining development. In order to reach these objectives within a reasonable time, the rate of economic growth in any country of Latin America should not be less than 2.5 per cent per capita per year.
2. To make the benefits of economic progress available to all through a more equitable distribution of national income.
3. To achieve balanced diversification in national economic structures, while attaining stability in the prices of exports or in income derived from exports.
4. To accelerate the process of rational industrialisation so as to increase the productivity of the economy as a whole. Special attention should be given to the establishment and development of capital-goods industries.
5. To raise greatly the level of agricultural productivity and output and to improve storage, transport and marketing services.
6. To encourage programmes of comprehensive agrarian reform.
7. To eliminate adult illiteracy and by 1970 to assure access to six years primary education for each school-age child; to modernise and expand vocational, secondary and higher education; to strengthen basic research and to provide the competent personnel.
8. To increase life expectancy at birth by a minimum of five years by improving individual and public health. To attain this goal to provide potable water and drainage to 70 per cent of the urban and 50 per cent of the rural population; to reduce the mortality rate of children under five by half; to control serious transmissible diseases; to eradicate illnesses for which effective cures are known; to improve nutrition; to train medical and health personnel; to improve basic health services; to intensify scientific research.
9. To increase the construction of low-cost housing and to provide necessary public services.
10. To maintain stable price levels.
11. To strengthen existing agreements with a view to the ultimate fulfilment of a Latin American Common Market.
12. To develop co-operative programmes designed to prevent the harmful effects of excessive fluctuations in foreign exchange earnings and to adopt measures to facilitate exports to international markets.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

Basic Requirements for Economic and Social Development

1. That comprehensive and well-conceived national programmes of economic and social development be carried out.
2. That national programmes of economic and social development be based on the principles of self-help.
3. That women should be placed on an equal footing with men.
4. That Latin American countries should obtain sufficient external financial assistance and that capital from all external sources of at least 20,000,000,000 dollars be made available to the Latin American countries during the coming ten years.

5. That institutions in both the public and private sectors be strengthened and improved, and that the necessary social reforms be effected to permit a fair distribution of the fruits of economic and social progress.

National Development Programmes

1. Participating Latin American countries agree to introduce or strengthen systems for the preparation, execution and periodic revision of national programmes for economic and social development. The countries should formulate long-term development programmes.

Immediate and Short-Term Action Measures

1. Recognises that a number of Latin American countries may require emergency financial assistance; the United States will provide funds.
2. Participating Latin American countries should immediately increase their efforts to accelerate development.
3. The United States will assist in the realisation of these short-term measures by the provision of more than 1,000,000,000 dollars in the year ending March 1962.

External Assistance in Support of National Development Programmes

1. The economic and social development of Latin America will require a large amount of financial assistance from capital-exporting countries. The Act of Bogotá and the Charter provide the framework within which this assistance can be provided.
2. The United States will assist those countries whose development programmes establish self-help measures, adequate to realise the goals envisaged. The participating countries will request the support of other capital-exporting countries and appropriate institutions.
3. The United States will help in the financing of technical assistance projects.
4. The participating Latin American countries recognise that each has a capacity to assist fellow republics by providing external technical and financial assistance.

Organization and Procedures

1. In order to provide technical assistance for the formulation of development programmes the OAS, ECLA Inter-American Development Bank will strengthen their agreements for co-ordination in this field.
2. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council will appoint a panel of nine experts, attached to the Council but enjoying complete autonomy in the performance of their duties.
3. Each government may present its programme for economic and social development for consideration by an ad hoc Committee.
4. The Committee will study the development programme, exchange opinions with the Interested Government and report its conclusions to the Inter-American Development Bank and other governments and institutions prepared to extend assistance.
5. In considering a programme the ad hoc Committee will examine the consistency of the programme with the principles of the Act of Bogotá and this Charter.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

6. The General Secretariat of OAS will provide the personnel needed by the experts.

7. A government whose programme has been recommended by the ad hoc Committee may submit the programme to the Inter-American Development Bank to undertake the negotiations for obtaining finance. However, all governments will have full freedom to resort to any other channels. The Committee shall not interfere with the right of governments to formulate their own goals. The recommendation of the Committee will be of great importance in determining the distribution of public funds under the Alliance. The participating governments will use their good offices that these recommendations be accepted.

8. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council will review annually the progress achieved and will submit to the Council of the OAS such recommendations as it deems pertinent.

ECONOMIC INTEGRATION OF LATIN AMERICA

The American Republics recognise that:

1. The Montevideo Treaty and the Central American Treaty on Economic Integration are appropriate instruments for the attainment of these objectives.

2. The integration process can be intensified and accelerated through the use of the agreements for complementary production within economic sections provided for by the Montevideo Treaty.

3. To ensure balanced and complementary economic expansion, integration should take into account the condition of less-developed countries.

4. To facilitate economic integration it is advisable to establish effective relationships between LAFTA and the Central American Economic Integration Treaty countries and other countries.

5. The Latin American countries should co-ordinate their actions to meet unfavourable treatment accorded to their trade in world markets.

6. In application of resources under the Alliance, special attention should be given to investment for multi-national projects and expansion of trade in industrial products.

7. To facilitate the participation of countries at a relatively lower stage of economic development in multi-national programmes special attention should be given to these countries.

8. Economic integration implies a need for additional investment and funds provided under the Alliance should cover these needs.

9. Latin American countries having their own institutions for financing economic integration should channel financing through them. The co-operation of the Inter-American Development Bank should be sought for inter-regional contributions.

10. To approach the International Monetary Fund and other sources for solving temporary balance-of-payments problems.

11. The promotion and co-ordination of transportation and communications systems, and encourage multi-national enterprises.

12. To achieve co-ordination of national plans.

13. To promote the development of national Latin American enterprise.

14. The active participation of the private sector.

15. Countries still under Colonial rule should be invited to participate on achieving independence.

BASIC EXPORT COMMODITIES

National Measures

National measures affecting primary products should be directed and applied to: Avoid undue obstacles to expansion of trade; avoid market instability; improve efficiency of international plans and mechanisms for stabilization; increase markets.

Therefore: Importing members should reduce restrictions and discriminatory practices affecting consumption and importation of primary products. Support stabilization programmes for primary products.

Industrialized countries should give special attention to hastening economic development in less-developed countries.

Producing countries should formulate plans for production and export and try to avoid increasing uneconomic production of goods.

Adopt measures to direct technological studies towards finding new uses and by-products of primary commodities.

Try to reduce export subsidies and other measures which cause instability.

International Co-operation Measures

1. Members should make co-ordinated efforts designed to:

Eliminate undue protection of primary products.
Eliminate taxes and reduce excessive domestic prices.
Seek to end preferential agreements.
Adopt consultation mechanisms.

2. Industrialized countries should give maximum co-operation to less-developed countries.

3. Members should suggest to international organizations when considering loans, that they should take account the effect on the production of surplus products.

4. Support the national commodity study groups and the Commission on International Commodity Trade.

5. The Secretary-General of OAS shall convene a group of experts appointed by their respective governments to meet and report not later than March 31st, 1962, on measures to provide means of offsetting the effects of fluctuations in volume and prices of exports of basic products.

6. Support efforts to improve and strengthen international commodity agreements.

7. Should request other countries to co-operate in stabilization programmes.

8. Recognize that the disposal of accumulated reserves can achieve the goals.

RESOLUTIONS

The member countries also passed resolutions recommending means whereby the goals set forth in the Charter might be achieved. These resolutions covered two Ten-Year Programmes for Education and Health, Tax Reform, Planning and the setting up of bodies to deal with specific problems.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

AMENDMENTS

Amendments to the OAS Charter, approved in March 1967 and ratified in 1970, provide for the following:

The supreme organ of the OAS will be the General Assembly, which will meet annually.

The Permanent Council will supervise the day-to-day business of the Organization.

IA-ECOSOC will deal with economic and social matters, while the IA-CESC will concentrate on educational, scientific and cultural affairs.

The Inter-American Juridical Committee will devote itself to legal matters, and the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights will concern itself with eventual violations of such rights.

The Secretary-General and Assistant Secretary-General of OAS will be elected by the Assembly for a five-year term, with the possibility of one re-election.

DECLARATION OF THE PRESIDENTS OF AMERICA

Signed at Punta del Este, Uruguay, on April 17th, 1967, by the Presidents of the member states of OAS and the Prime Minister of Trinidad and Tobago.

SUMMARY

1. Creation by 1985 of a Latin American Common Market through the progressive convergence of the Latin American Free Trade Association and the Central American Common Market.

Further, to:

2. Lay the physical foundations for Latin American economic integration through multi-national projects;

3. Increase substantially Latin American foreign-trade earnings;

4. Modernize rural living conditions, raise agricultural productivity and increase food production;

5. Promote education for development;

6. Harness science and technology for the service of the peoples;

7. Expand health programmes;

8. Eliminate unnecessary military expenditures.

AIMS

1. To strengthen the bonds which unite the states of Central America.
2. To establish mutual consultation in order to guarantee and maintain fraternal relations.
3. To forestall and prevent misunderstandings and to ensure the peaceful settlement of disputes.
4. To offer mutual assistance and to seek common solutions to common problems.
5. To promote economic, social and cultural development through joint action.

ORGANIZATION

THE MEETING OF HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

The Heads of Government of the five member states in conference form the supreme organ of the Organization of Central American States.

THE CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

The Conference of Foreign Ministers is the principal organ of the Organization. Meetings, at which each member state has one vote, normally take place every year; extraordinary meetings may be held at the request of not less than three members. Its function is to initiate proposals, to consider recommendations and proposals made by the Economic Council and to elect the Secretary-General. It may also convene meetings of other Ministers to discuss particular problems which call for collective study and planning.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Executive Council is composed of the Foreign Ministers of the five republics or their appointed representatives. Its function is to direct and co-ordinate the policy of the Organization, and to elect the Secretary-General. It is a permanent body, meeting at least once a week. The President is elected annually.

President: GONZALO FACIO (Costa Rica).

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

The Legislative Council is composed of three members of each of the Legislative Assemblies of the member states. Its function is to advise on legislative matters; it is also to study the possibilities of uniform legislation in the Central American Republics. Meetings are held once a year; extraordinary meetings may be convened by the Executive Council at the request of at least two member states.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COURT OF JUSTICE

Composed of the Presidents of the Supreme Courts of each member state. Meetings are held whenever necessary, or when convened by the Executive Council.

THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL

The Economic Council is composed of the Ministers of Economy of the member countries and meets at least once a year. Its functions are the planning, co-ordination and execution of Central American economic integration. All Central American integration organizations will form part of the Council.

CULTURAL AND EDUCATIONAL COUNCIL

Formed by the Ministers of Education of the member states or their representatives.

THE DEFENCE COUNCIL

Composed of the Ministers of Defence of member states. Advises on regional defence and joint security of members.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN BUREAU

The General Secretariat has its seat in San Salvador. Its functions are to co-ordinate the work of the organs of ODECA, to assist them and to prepare and distribute information. The Secretary-General is elected for a non-renewable period of four years by the Executive Council.

Secretary-General: MANUEL VILLACORTA VIELMANN (El Salvador).

ORGANIZATION

THE CONFERENCE

Supreme authority of the Organization, responsible for the formulation of its general policy. It consists of representatives of member countries, decides upon reports and recommendations submitted by Board of Governors. Meets at least twice a year, the first meeting being in Vienna, and the second in the capital of a member country. It approves the appointment of Governors from each country and elects the Chairman of the Board of Governors. It works on the unanimity principle.

CONSULTATIVE MEETING OF CHIEF REPRESENTATIVES

Meetings held by chief representatives for the formulation of recommendations to the Conference concerning current issues.

THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Directs management of the Organization; implements resolutions of the Conference; draws up an annual Budget. It consists of one Governor for each member country, appointed for two years, and meets at least twice a year.

Chairman (1971): MAHMOUD HAMRA KAROUHA (Algeria).

THE ECONOMIC COMMISSION

A specialized body operating within the framework of the Secretariat, with a view to assisting the Organization in promoting stability in international oil prices at equitable levels; consists of a Board, national representatives and a commission staff; the Board meets at least twice a year.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General (1971): (vacant).

Administration Department: Deals with personnel matters, budget and accounting, filing and archives, conference services, general correspondence and clerical services.

Economics Department: Consists of Financial, Supply and Demand, and General Economics Sections; is responsible for all economic studies and reports.

Information Department: Responsible for a programme of general and technical publications and periodicals, appropriate relations with other oil industry institutions with a view to expanding the Information Centre of the Organization.

Legal Department: Consists of Concessions and Special Studies sections; is responsible for all legal studies and reports.

Technical Department: Carries out studies mainly on petroleum technical matters, including exploration, production and processing.

Statistical Unit: Collects, edits, collates and analyses statistical information from both primary and secondary sources.

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

JOINT UNDERTAKINGS

RCD Cultural Institute: RCD Secretariat, Teheran, Iran.

RCD Insurance Centre: Pakistan Insurance Building, Bunder Rd., P.O.B. 4777, Karachi, Pakistan.

RCD Joint Chamber of Commerce and Industry: RCD Secretariat, Teheran, Iran.

RCD Shipping Services: on intra-regional routes, Tesvikiye, Sisli, P.O.B. 35, Istanbul, Turkey.

Five Regional Reinsurance Pools: Accident and Engineering, managed by Iran; Marine (Hull and Cargo and Aviation), managed by Pakistan; Fire, managed by Turkey.

Industry: About fifty joint industrial projects have been approved for establishment, of which seventeen are in various stages of implementation. Fifteen of these have already gone into production: Bank Note Paper Plant, Machine Tools, Methanol, Urea Formaldehyde, Gear Box and Differentials, Borax and Boracic Acid, Machinery for Tea Industry, Tungsten Carbide, Filters for the Chemical Industry, Locomotive Diesel Engines, Polystyrene, Glycerine (two) and Tetracycline. Six more projects are nearing completion and are all expected to go into production by the end of 1972.

Steps are being taken by member governments to encourage the participation of the private sector in joint ventures.

A study has just been completed by UNIDO on the establishment of RCD Heavy Engineering and Electrical Corporation(s) in order to evolve an integrated approach, wherever practicable. It is hoped that this study would help in adequately setting up and distributing heavy engineering projects in the region.

In the field of petroleum and petrochemicals co-operation amongst the RCD countries is progressing satisfactorily. Measures are being taken for exploration, drilling, exploitation, refining, transportation and distribution for petroleum and natural gas in the region. The Izmir Oil Refinery project is progressing very well. The question of constructing a pipeline to carry oil from Iranian fields to a Mediterranean port in Turkey is at an advanced stage of negotiations. Furthermore, exchange of petrochemicals on joint enterprise basis and setting up of joint petrochemical plants are under consideration of member governments.

Trade and Finance: Measures include the establishment of the RCD Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the RCD Shipping Services, Agreement on the RCD Union for Multilateral Payments Arrangement, preparation of the RCD Banking Manual, the creation of the RCD Reinsurance Pools, and the RCD Agreement on Trade to promote intra-regional trade.

In pursuance of the decision of the RCD Commerce and Economy Ministers held in Teheran in September 1968, a study was entrusted to UNCTAD with a view to identifying all barriers impeding intra-regional trade and making recommendations for the liberalization and expansion of trade. This study has been submitted by UNCTAD and is under the active consideration of the three governments. The last Izmir Summit meeting in May 1970 issued directive to respective Commerce/Economy Ministers for taking effective decisions towards the reduction of tariff barriers and relaxation of quantitative restrictions and other non-tariff obstacles. The member governments are also considering the establishment of a preferential arrangement for the region. The drawing up of a preferential arrangement will go a long way in promoting trade in the region. Meanwhile member governments are taking administrative action such as barter arrangement and single-country licensing to increase the flow of intra-regional trade.

The possibilities of establishing an RCD Commercial Bank and a joint Development Bank are being explored.

In the field of insurance, the RCD Insurance Manual has already been published by the RCD Insurance Centre and the Reinsurance Pools have been functioning effectively and several national companies have joined the pools. During 1969, the Reinsurance Pools had done over U.S. $1,791,189 worth of business. During 1970, the insurance business in the region is estimated to amount to U.S. $2,056,111.

Transport and Communications: The construction of the RCD Highway linking Ankara-Teheran and Karachi is making reasonably good progress. The Pakistan railway system extends up to the Iranian city of Zahidan, the railway link between Teheran and Kashan is already in operation and the section Kashan-Yazd-Kerman is expected to be completed shortly. The Teheran-Ankara rail link became operational in September 1971. The RCD Shipping Services started operating on intra-regional routes and from U.S. ports to Turkey and Pakistan in 1966. The three airlines are considering the possibility of establishing a fourth airline to operate subsonic and supersonic aircraft. Operator trunk dialling system has been introduced between Teheran, Ankara and Karachi. An agreement has been reached between Turkey and Iran for the routing by Turkey of a telephone circuit Ankara-New York through Iran's new Earth Station at Asadabad. Postage, telephone and telegraphic rates have been reduced within the region.

Technical Assistance: A Regional Technical Assistance Programme was launched in 1965. Between 1965 and 1970, 1,737 students and trainees and 168 experts were provided for under the programme and 32 seminars had been organized on subjects such as financing of development programmes, management research, status of women, family planning, control and eradication of quarantinable diseases, water resource development, Islamic architecture, etc. Four joint courses on public administration were held in 1967 and 1970 and a fifth was held in September of 1971. A Programme of Technical Co-operation for 1971 provides for the exchange of 19 experts and 395 trainees.

Tourism: Visas were abolished for nationals of member countries in 1964.

Scientific Research: The setting up of a Regional Advisory Council is being considered. The Heads of the Atomic Energy organization of the member countries were scheduled to meet in 1971 to undertake co-operation in the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Cultural Co-operation: The Regional Cultural Institute is engaged in systematic research into the common historical and cultural heritage of the RCD countries. It has published a number of translations, in various languages of the region, of classics and well-known works of the member countries.

The RCD Annual Cultural Exchange Programme includes exchange of professors, writers and artists and the holding of art and cultural exhibitions.

Information: Collaboration is encouraged between national news agencies. A joint documentary film on general aspects of RCD emphasizing cultural and social developments in the region is being planned. RCD countries participated jointly in Expo 1970 at Osaka.

AIMS OF REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

Enunciated in Istanbul, July 23rd, 1964, by the Foreign Ministers of the Member States

1. The emergence of regional economic groupings enjoying a community of interest is an outstanding feature of our time for accelerating the pace of economic growth. Efforts directed towards regional economic collaboration have gained international acceptance and the present move to promote collaboration amongst countries of the region is directed towards the same aim, viz., the strengthening of their development efforts through active and sustained collaboration on a regional basis. This is particularly true in the case of Iran, Pakistan and Turkey since the desire and basis for such a close collaboration and co-operation exist amongst them and will continue in view of the cultural and historic ties of friendship amongst the peoples of the three countries, and further because increasing regional economic co-operation has become a necessity. Economic and cultural collaboration amongst them is therefore most desirable, and should be raised to the highest possible level. There are great possibilities for such collaboration to the mutual benefit of the three countries which should be achieved expeditiously.

Measures

2. The measures for economic collaboration suggested in the following paragraphs may be broadly divided into two categories—(a) Those which can be worked out and implemented forthwith and (b) Those which will require detailed study and scrutiny by Regional Planning Council.

3. A Regional Planning Council composed of the Heads of the Planning Organizations is established. It will be assisted by advisers and could meet in any of the regional countries, preferably by rotation.

4. The Council will study the development plans and production potential of countries of the region with a view inter alia to making recommendations on joint purpose projects and long-term purchase agreements. Joint purpose projects will feed the requirements of the three countries. There are several projects for which none of these countries can provide a sufficient domestic market yet they can be valuable projects if the total requirements of the three countries are taken into consideration.

5. The Council may also make proposals regarding the harmonization of the national development plans in the wide interest of accelerated regional development.

6. The Council will submit its reports to the Ministerial meetings. The first report is to be submitted to the next such meeting.

7. Efficient and effective means of communication and transport are essential for the promotion of the regional economic and cultural collaboration. The preparation of recommendations in this field and their implementation should be given the highest priority.

Air Transportation

8. A Committee on air transportation is set up to study measures required to—(a) improve the transport services in the region so that quick and frequent movement of passengers and freight within the region be possible; (b) establish a strong and competitive international airline among the three countries; (c) foster co-operation among the civil and commercial aviation authorities of the three countries.

The report of the Committee should be available for the next Ministerial meeting.

Shipping

9. Collaboration among the countries of the region in shipping is highly desirable. A Committee on shipping is set up to investigate the possibility of securing a close co-operation in this field including the establishment of a joint maritime line.

Roads and Railways

10. Committees on road, railways and telecommunications are established immediately. The Committee will inter alia study and report on the following:

- (a) The measures which should be taken to complete expeditiously the rail and road links among the countries of the region.
- (b) Whether any additional rail and road links are considered necessary.
- (c) Reduction of telephone rates.
- (d) Establishment of P.T.T. offices in border areas.
- (e) Feasibility of providing services such as direct dialling between the countries of the region and telecommunication, etc.

11. It is agreed that the postal and telegraph rates among Iran, Pakistan and Turkey be reduced to the levels of internal rates within the respective countries. The implementation of this decision is entrusted to the P.T.T. authorities of the three countries.

12. The construction of roads from the western and central parts of Iran to Zahidan and from Karachi to Zahidan should be given consideration by Iran and Pakistan so that the two countries are effectively linked by road. The Zahidan-Kashan rail link should be given further consideration with a view to developing it as early as possible.

Trade

13. Economic collaboration should provide for effective measures to build up and promote trade since expansion of inter-regional trade, apart from being highly desirable, in itself tends further to promote regional economic growth and amity.

14. A Committee on trade is established to study, report and recommend inter alia on the following measures on which agreement in principle has been reached:

- (a) Free or freer movement of goods among the countries of the region through practicable means such as the conclusion of trade agreements, etc.;
- (b) transit trade arrangements;
- (c) establishment of closer collaboration between existing chambers of commerce and establishment of a joint chamber of commerce;
- (d) establishment of halls and showrooms, provision of special customs facilities for exhibitions and increased participation in each other's fairs;

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

- (e) dissemination of information on a large scale of the export and import potential of the three countries and investigation of the possibilities of joint publicity and joint marketing policy outside the region for similar exportable products.

Petroleum

15. A Committee on petroleum is established to consider measures for co-operation among the three countries in the field of petroleum and natural gas and for their exploration drilling; exploration; refining; transportation; distribution, etc. Collaboration in this field could be developed to mutual advantage.

Petrochemicals

16. A Committee on petrochemical industries is established for development of these industries in the region.

Tourism

17. A Tourist Agreement will be signed at an early date among the countries of the region with a view to promoting tourist traffic among themselves and to increase the flow of tourists from other countries. A Committee on tourism should be established immediately to prepare an agreement on tourism which should inter alia cover co-operation in publicity, group or package tourist arrangements. Promotion of inter-regional travel, substitutes of passports by documents valid for travelling in the three countries. Efforts with the aim of exchanging and training of tourist personnel, technicians, tourist investments, tourist propaganda and utilization of the services and facilities of their tourist organizations, travel bureaux and other agencies in their countries and abroad. As economic collaboration grows, inter-regional travel should increase considerably; it does however need a special effort if it is to be developed to a substantial degree in the immediate future.

Abolition of Visas

18. The abolition of visas for travel purposes by their nationals in the three countries is accepted in principle; the procedure for the implementation of this decision should be worked out by the Committee on tourism.

Banking and Insurance

19. A Committee on Banking and Insurance is established for collaboration in these fields.

Technical Co-operation

20. The countries of the region should provide technical assistance to each other in the form of exports and training facilities. Such a programme will, apart from intrinsic utility, promote regional understanding and harmony. The Planning Council will be directly responsible for progress in this matter.

Joint Purpose Enterprises

21. The Committee carries out feasibility studies in regard to the development of some industries on a joint purpose basis.

Cultural Co-operation

22. Iran, Pakistan and Turkey are bound to one another by historical and cultural ties, they share a common heritage. Their cultural ties go far back in history and their national cultures owe much to continuous exchanges which have gone on for centuries. In the modern world they must integrate their traditional cultures with the new scientific outlook.

23. Co-operation in the field of education, science and culture is necessary to develop consciousness of the common cultural heritage and to promote social and economic development and political collaboration.

24. During the last few years a certain measure of progress has been achieved in cultural relations through bilateral programmes. However, there is considerable scope for further action. At the same time there is strong need for a joint sponsorship of many cultural activities under a regional programme.

Cultural Relations

25. The programme of cultural relations should be particularly oriented towards the following aims: (a) creating mass consciousness of the common cultural heritage. To this end the three countries should jointly sponsor an institute for initiating studies and research in this field and bringing out clearly those traditions which bind the people of the region together. Further, school books should be carefully reviewed to eliminate misleading interpretations of history and to promote greater understanding of their common interests; (b) disseminating information about history, civilization and culture of the people of the region. To this end each country should consider: (1) establishment of chairs for the study of its language, history, civilization and culture in universities of the other countries; (2) increasing substantially the number of scholarships for the students of other countries to enable them to study together in their educational institutions; (3) establishment of cultural centres in the other two countries; (4) provision as far as possible of facilities for the teaching of international language in the schools of other member countries; the media of mass communications, radio, films, television, etc., should be extensively used for the propagation of information and ideas aimed at a closer understanding of the people of the region.

26. Cultural co-operation may also be extended through: (a) exchanges in the field of fine arts; (b) exchanges of visits by teachers, scientists, educational administrators, writers, artists, journalists, etc.; (c) exchanges of information on educational techniques, experiences, and programmes; (d) collaboration in regard to programmes for radio, films and television; (e) elimination of obstacles in the way of free exchange of books, films and other printed materials of an educational and cultural character; (f) organization of regional tournaments; (g) co-operation in the field of joint production of films.

Organization

27. The organizational arrangements for planning and promoting economic and cultural collaboration amongst Iran, Pakistan and Turkey should be simple and effective. As the scope of co-operation widens these arrangements could be modified as required.

28. The highest decision-making body for regional co-operation shall be a Council of Ministers consisting of the Ministers nominated by each of the three countries concerned. It shall consider and decide upon measures for regional economic and cultural co-operation. It will also follow the programmes in the implementation of its decisions. The Council shall meet once in four months and more frequently if necessary. The Chairman of the Council shall be the Head of State or Head of Government of the host country.

29. The Council will be assisted by a Regional Planning Council composed of the Heads of the three Planning Organizations. They will deal with work relating to regional collaboration including detailed preparatory negotiations and preparation of recommendations for submission to the Council. The Committee will be assisted by Sub-committees which will report to it. If necessary the Committee may engage expert consultants to examine particular subjects for regional co-operation.

30. The host country will for the time being provide secretarial facilities (including office accommodation, etc.). The officials of the countries deputed by their Governments to serve on the Secretariat will draw their emoluments and allowances from their own Governments.

31. After 12 months the Council of Ministers will review the position and decide upon the setting up of a permanent Secretariat.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY

Opened 1959 to allow ocean-going ships to enter the Great Lakes of North America.

ORGANIZATION

Canada: St. Lawrence Seaway Authority: 330 Sparks St., Ottawa, Ontario K1R 7R9; f. 1954; maintains and operates the sections of the St. Lawrence Seaway in Canadian territory; Pres. Dr. PIERRE CAMU; Vice-Pres. P. E. R. MALCOLM; Member D. E. TAYLOR; Sec. L. E. BÉLAND.

U.S.A.: Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation: Seaway Circle, Massena, N.Y.; f. 1954; maintains and operates sections lying in U.S. territory; Administrator D. W. OBERLIN.

THE SEAWAY

MILEAGE AND LOCKS

The Seaway was built by the joint efforts of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Work started in 1954 on the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the waterway, consisting of seven locks, which was opened to navigation in 1959. In 1963 the Canadian government approved a project for the twinning of the five single locks in the Welland Canal. This project was later deferred pending study of more extensive rebuilding of the Welland and a major programme to improve existing installations was launched. The narrow and winding channel which at present bisects the City of Welland is being replaced by a straighter, wider and deeper channel east of the city. Construction of this 8.6 mile channel was begun in June 1967 and is scheduled to be completed for the 1973 navigation season.

The Seaway extends 412 miles from Montreal Harbour 43 miles into Lake Erie and includes the Welland Canal, built 1913-32 between Lakes Ontario and Erie. There are 15 locks on the Seaway; 7 between Montreal and Lake Ontario, total lift about 225 ft.; 8 on the Welland Canal, total lift 326 ft.

Shipping Channel: Minimum depth 27 ft.; width 200-800 ft.

Welland Canal: Minimum depth 27 ft.; length 27 miles.

Locks built and maintained by Canada:

St. Lambert	13-20 ft. lift, Montreal Harbour to Laprairie Basin.
Côte Ste. Catherine	33-35 ft. lift, Laprairie Basin to Lake St. Louis by-passing Lachine rapids.
Lower Beauharnois	38-42 ft. lift, by-passing Beauharnois Power Station.
Upper Beauharnois	36-40 ft. lift to Lake St. Francis.
Iroquois	0.5-6.0 ft. lift; by-passing Iroquois Control Dam.
Welland 1	46 ft. lift; St. Catharines.
Welland 2	46.5 ft. lift; St. Catharines.
Welland 3	46.5 ft. lift; St. Catharines.
Welland 4, 5, 6	Flight locks; 139.5 ft. lift; Thorold.
Welland 7	46.5 ft. lift; Thorold.
Welland 8	2-11 ft. lift; Port Colborne.

Locks built and maintained by the U.S.A.:

Snell	45-49 ft. lift to Wiley-Dondero Canal.
Eisenhower	38-42 ft. lift to Lake St. Lawrence.

GREAT LAKES SYSTEM

Shipping channels in the Great Lakes above the Seaway are being dredged to a minimum depth of 27 ft.

NAVIGATION SEASON

	Open	Closed
Montreal-Lake Ontario	April 1st	December 12th
Welland Canal	March 29th	December 22nd

Dates vary annually with weather conditions.

SHIPPING

The Seaway is navigable to vessels drawing up to 26 ft.; maximum overall length 730 ft.; maximum overall breadth 75 ft. 6 in.; overall height 117 ft.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

The St. Lawrence Power project was undertaken jointly by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the Power Authority of the State of New York, to develop 2.2 million horse-power of electricity at the Saunders-Moses dam in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence.

COST OF SEAWAY

The total cost of the Seaway was $458 million, of which Canada contributed $330 million and the U.S.A. $128 million. The power scheme cost $600 million, equally divided between the two countries.

Revenue to defray the cost of construction and maintenance comes from tolls and lockage fees. Tolls for the Welland Canal were suspended in July 1962, but in 1967 a new lockage fee was instituted for the Canal.

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION— SEATO

P.O. Box 517, Bangkok, Thailand

Telephone: 811322.

SEATO is a defensive alliance organized in accordance with Article 51 of the United Nations Charter. The eight member countries of the Manila Pact and Pacific Charter of September 1954 pledged themselves to collective action to resist armed attacks, and to counter subversion aimed at the overthrow of their governments. The pact is officially known as the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty. SEATO liaises with NATO and CENTO.

MEMBERS

France	Philippines	U.S.A.
New Zealand	Thailand

ORGANIZATION

THE SEATO COUNCIL

The SEATO Council, which consists of the Foreign Ministers of the eight member countries, sets the broad common policies required for the fulfilment of the objectives of the South East Asia Collective Defence Treaty. The Council usually meets once a year in the capital cities of member countries. Most recent meeting in London, in April 1971; next meeting in Canberra in June/July 1972.

CIVIL SIDE

SEATO COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVES: This body meets usually once a month and consists of the Ambassadors in Bangkok of the seven member nations and a special Ambassador appointed by the Government of Thailand. It carries on the overall political direction of SEATO affairs, and controls the non-military activities of the Organization.

PERMANENT WORKING GROUP: This group meets weekly and is made up of senior staff members of the Council Representatives. The Group's duty is to carry out preparatory work on proposals and policy matters for the Council Representatives.

EXPERT STUDY GROUPS: Convened from time to time to provide advice on specific subjects, e.g. community development, counter-subversion, culture, economics, education, information, labour and security.

SECRETARIAT-GENERAL: International staff posts in the Secretariat-General are filled on the basis of the accepted pattern of distribution among member countries.

Secretary-General: Lt.-Gen. JESÚS VARGAS (Philippines).

Deputy Secretary-General: ROBERT HYSLOP (Australia).

Executive Assistant to the Secretary-General: Lt.-Col. José L. REYNA, Jr. (Philippines).

Administration: Director M. A. MANSURI (Pakistan).

Cultural and Economic Affairs Office: Director H. DOCHERTY (United Kingdom).

Public Information Office: Director W. J. KRAMER (U.S.A.)

Research Office: Director K. C. DUNCAN (Australia).

MILITARY SIDE

MILITARY ADVISERS GROUP: This group directs SEATO military activities and is responsible to the SEATO Council. Each member nation nominates one high-ranking officer at Chief of Staff or Theatre Commander level as its military adviser. The Military Advisers Group holds two conferences each year.

SEATO MILITARY PLANNING OFFICE: This office carries out military planning at SEATO Headquarters. The Chief, SEATO Military Planning Office, is a senior officer of the armed forces of one of the member nations provided on a rotational basis. He is responsible to the Military Advisers Group for the functioning of the office and for maintaining close liaison with the Secretary-General. He is assisted by a Deputy Chief, Military Planning Office. Each Military Adviser is represented in the Military Planning Office by an officer of Colonel's rank or equivalent, called the Military Adviser's Representative. Each nation contributes a number of planners drawn from their respective armed forces.

Chief, Military Planning Office: Maj.-Gen. R. A. HAY (Australia).

Deputy Chief, Military Planning Office: Brig.-Gen. F. T. PESTANA (Philippines).

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION

Military Advisers' Representatives: Group Capt. D. F. GILSON (Australia); vacant (France); Group Capt. D. B. FLINTOFF (New Zealand); Col. MUJIB-UR-REHMAN KHAN (Pakistan); Col. D. S. JARANILLA, P.A. (Philippines); Col. SOMBOON SIRDHICHOKE, R.T.A. (Thailand); Group Capt. H. NEUBROCH, R.A.F. (United Kingdom); Col. J. F. DE RIENZO (U.S.A.).

Head of Planning: Col. R. F. FRASER (U.S.A.).

Head of Military Secretariat: Lt.-Col. WEERA SEWIKUL, R.T.A. (Thailand).

Head of Administration: Wing Cdr. C. C. KNYVETT (Australia).

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

COUNTRIES

Australia: continues its special SEATO aid programme to Asian members.

France: provides economic, technical, educational and cultural aid.

New Zealand: provides technical and economic assistance through bilateral agreements and participation in SEATO programmes.

United Kingdom: assistance continues in the form of capital aid and technical assistance under bilateral arrangements, concentrating on the provision of training facilities, technical experts and equipment.

U.S.A.: assistance takes the form of loans, grants, technical assistance, foodstuffs and other agricultural produce.

ACTIVITIES

Cultural and Economic Affairs Office: administers the SEATO Cultural Relations Programme, which provides undergraduate and postgraduate scholarships, research fellowships and exchange professorships and assistance to national cultural projects. SEATO has commissioned experts to examine the equivalence of university degrees, and to survey language studies. As a result a three-nation convention on equivalences was signed. Collects and analyses information and prepares background studies and reports on current economic problems and developments in the Treaty Area. This office also provides a means of liaison between SEATO Headquarters and the non-military SEATO projects.

Medical Research: The Medical Research Laboratory (f. 1959) and the Clinical Research Centre (f. 1963) in Bangkok are centres for research on tropical diseases, including malaria and intestinal infections. A Cholera Research Laboratory was established at Dacca in 1960. Studies conducted there show that cholera can now be treated effectively at a smaller cost by the oral therapy method developed at the laboratory. This technique is now being popularized in rural areas.

Vehicle Rebuild Workshop: A $2 million Australian-Thai vehicle re-build workshop came into operation in 1965 at Rangsit, near Bangkok.

Hill Tribes Research: A research and training centre now operates at Chiang Mai, northern Thailand. Its main task is to undertake intensive social, anthropological and agricultural studies of the little-known hill peoples inhabiting the mountainous northern border regions of Thailand. Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States have contributed the services of anthropologists to the centre, and have given it various forms of material support.

Community Development: A new project, the Exchange of District-level Community Development Officers' Programme, was implemented in April-June 1970. It is aimed at improving community development work in regional member countries. A Rural Development Centre has been established at Ubol, in north-east Thailand.

Skilled Labour Programme: Twenty vocational schools providing three-year courses of study have been established in major provincial towns of Thailand. A Teacher Development Centre was set up in Bangkok in 1959 and a Military Technical Training School, also in Bangkok, in 1960. Technical Training Centres have been set up at Karachi (Pakistan) and Dacca (now Bangladesh). A Textile Workers Training Centre, Apprentice Training Programme and a Labour Market Information and Statistics Service Project have been established in the Philippines.

Agricultural Research Project: Initiated in January 1968 in response to agricultural research needs in the region. A team of consultants in the various fields of agricultural research was provided by New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand and the United Kingdom. The Co-ordinator of the project, provided by the United Kingdom, submitted his report in March 1969. It contained far-reaching recommendations covering the fields of plant quarantine, farm mechanization, agronomy, soil science, weed control research, plant pathology, animal husbandry, animal health, forestry, biological control, fisheries and personnel training and extension. The Report's recommendations are still under consideration.

Countering Communist Subversion: An expert staff carries out counter-subversion work and co-ordinates national efforts in this field. An Office for Counter-subversion and Counter-insurgency (OCS) has been set up to take account of the greater emphasis which is now attached to counter-subversion and counter-insurgency work.

THE SOUTH-EAST ASIA COLLECTIVE DEFENCE TREATY

MANILA PACT—Signed 8 September, 1954.

The Parties to this Treaty,

Recognizing the sovereign equality of all the Parties,

Reiterating their faith in the purposes and principles set forth in the Charter of the United Nations and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all governments,

Reaffirming that, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, they uphold the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and declaring that they will earnestly strive by every peaceful means to promote self-government and to secure the independence of all countries whose peoples desire it and are able to undertake its responsibilities,

Desiring to strengthen the fabric of peace and freedom and to uphold the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law, and to promote the economic well-being and development of all peoples in the Treaty Area,

Intending to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that any potential aggressor will appreciate that the Parties stand together in the area, and

Desiring further to co-ordinate their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security,

Therefore agree as follows:

Article 1

The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international dispute in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered, and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Article 2

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this Treaty, the Parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack and to prevent and counter subversive activities directed from without against their territorial integrity and political stability.

Article 3

The Parties undertake to strengthen their free institutions and to co-operate with one another in the further development of economic measures, including technical assistance, designed both to promote economic progress and social well-being and to further the individual and collective efforts of governments towards these ends.

Article 4

1. Each Party recognizes that aggression by means of armed attack in the Treaty Area against any of the Parties or against any State or territory which the Parties by unanimous agreement may hereafter designate would endanger its own peace and safety, and agrees that it will in that event act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes. Measures taken under this paragraph shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the United Nations.

2. If, in the opinion of any of the Parties, the inviolability or the integrity of the territory or the sovereignty or political independence of any Party in the Treaty Area or of any other State or territory to which the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article from time to time apply is threatened in any way other than by armed attack or is affected or threatened by any fact or situation which might endanger the peace of the area, the Parties shall consult immediately in order to agree on the measures which should be taken for the common defence.

3. It is understood that no action on the territory of any State designated by unanimous agreement under paragraph 1 of this Article or on any territory so designated shall be taken except at the invitation or with the consent of the government concerned.

Article 5

The Parties hereby establish a Council, on which each of them shall be represented, to consider matters concerning the implementation of this Treaty. The Council shall provide for consultation with regard to military and any other planning as the situation obtaining in the Treaty Area may from time to time require. The Council shall be so organized as to be able to meet at any time.

Article 6

This Treaty does not affect and shall not be interpreted as affecting in any way the rights and obligations of any of the Parties under the Charter of the United Nations or the responsibility of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security. Each Party declares that none of the international engagements now in force between it and any other of the Parties or any third party is in conflict with the provisions of this Treaty, and undertakes not to enter into any international engagement in conflict with this Treaty.

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION

Article 7

Any other State in a position to further the objectives of the Treaty and to contribute to the security of the area may, by unanimous agreement of the Parties, be invited to accede to this Treaty. Any State so invited may become a Party to the Treaty by depositing its instrument of accession with the Government of the Republic of the Philippines. The Government of the Republic of the Philippines shall inform each of the Parties of the deposit of each such instrument of accession.

Article 8

As used in this Treaty, the "Treaty Area" is the general area of South-East Asia, including also the entire territories of the Asian Parties, and the general area of the South-West Pacific not including the Pacific area north of 21 degrees 30 minutes north latitude. The Parties may, by unanimous agreement, amend this Article to include within the Treaty Area the territory of any State acceding to this Treaty in accordance with Article 7 or otherwise to change the Treaty Area.

Article 9

1. This Treaty shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the Republic of the Philippines. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the other signatories.

2. The Treaty shall be ratified and its provisions carried out by the Parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Government of the Republic of the Philippines, which shall notify all of the other signatories of such deposit.

3. The Treaty shall enter into force between the States which have ratified it as soon as the instruments of ratification of a majority of the signatories shall have been deposited, and shall come into effect with respect to each other State on the date of deposit of its instrument of ratification.

THE PACIFIC CHARTER

The delegates of Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Republic of the Philippines, the Kingdom of Thailand, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the United States of America:

Desiring to establish a firm basis for common action to maintain peace and security in South-East Asia and the South-West Pacific;

Convinced that common action to this end in order to be worthy and effective, must be inspired by the highest principles of justice and liberty;

Do hereby proclaim:

First, in accordance with the provisions of the United Nations Charter, they uphold the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples and they will earnestly strive by every peaceful means to promote self-government

Article 10

This Treaty shall remain in force indefinitely, but any Party may cease to be a Party one year after its notice of denunciation has been given to the Government of the Republic of the Philippines, which shall inform the Governments of the other Parties of the deposit of each notice of denunciation.

Article 11

The English text of this Treaty is binding on the Parties, but when the Parties have agreed to the French text thereof and have so notified the Government of the Republic of the Philippines, the French text shall be equally authentic and binding on the Parties.

UNDERSTANDING OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The United States of America in executing the present Treaty does so with the understanding that its recognition of the effect of aggression and armed attack and its agreement with reference thereto in Article 6, paragraph 1, apply only to Communist aggression but affirms that in the event of other aggression or armed attack it will consult under the provisions of Article 4, paragraph 2.

PROTOCOL TO THE TREATY

Designation of states and territory as to which provisions of Article 4 and Article 3 are to be applicable:

The Parties to the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty unanimously designate for the purpose of Article 4 of the Treaty the States of Cambodia and Laos and the free territory under the jurisdiction of the State of Viet-Nam.

The Parties further agree that the above-mentioned states and territory shall be eligible in respect of the economic measures contemplated by Article 3.

This Protocol shall enter into force simultaneously with the coming into force of the Treaty.

and to secure the independence of all countries whose peoples desire it and are able to undertake its responsibilities;

Second, they are each prepared to continue taking effective practical measures to ensure conditions favourable to the orderly achievement of the foregoing purposes in accordance with their constitutional procedures;

Third, they will continue to co-operate in the economic, social and cultural fields in order to promote higher living standards, economic progress and social well-being in this region;

Fourth, as declared in the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty, they are determined to prevent or counter by appropriate means any attempt in the Treaty Area to subvert their freedom or to destroy their sovereignty or territorial integrity.

SOUTH PACIFIC COMMISSION

ORGANIZATION

SOUTH PACIFIC COMMISSION

The Commission meets annually. Each government appoints two Commissioners, but advisers also attend. Senior Commissioners preside as Chairman of the Annual Session in rotation. Senior Commissioners in October 1971 were:

Australia: C. E. RESEIGH.

Fiji: JONE B. NAISARA.

France: H. NETTRE.

Nauru: B. DETUDAMO.

New Zealand: C. CRAW

United Kingdom: D. A. SCOTT.

United States: W. B. TAYLOR III.

Western Samoa: TOFA LAUOFO METI.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat was reorganized in 1967 to provide a Programme Research and Evaluation Council, which has a supervisory and advisory role and is responsible for the administration of projects of the Commission's Work Programme.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

Secretary-General: G. D. F. BETHAM, O.B.E.

Programme Director (Health): Dr. G. LOISON (France).

Programme Director (Social): Dr. F. MAHONY (U.S.A.).

Programme Director (Economic): A. HARRIS (Australia).

Staff: sixty-eight in Nouméa, seven in Sydney, eight in Apia and eleven in Suva.

RESEARCH COUNCIL

The Commission appoints to the Research Council experts nominated by participating governments. The three fields of specialization, viz. economic development, health and social development, are dealt with singly and by rotation. The Council has not met since 1963.

SOUTH PACIFIC CONFERENCE

The South Pacific Conference now meets annually (formerly it met at intervals not exceeding three years) and consists of delegates from all the territories in the South Pacific. The annual Conference meetings consider the Work Programme and Budget for the following year and make recommendations on them to the Commission Session, which now meets each year immediately after the Conference has concluded its business. The Conference now functions as an annual forum, in which the delegates from the nineteen territories have a greater say in the work of the Commission than formerly.

3. Grant-in-aid to South Pacific Arts Festival; internships and grants for inter-territorial study visits; assistance to applied research, experiments and field work; funds for regional travel of students training.

HISTORY AND AIMS

Following the Canberra Agreement of 1947, the Commission was set up in 1948 and moved to its present headquarters in 1949. In 1951 Guam and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands were brought within the scope of the Commission. Western Samoa, which attained independence in 1962, was accepted as a member Government in 1965 and formally acceded to the Agreement in July 1965. Nauru became a member of the Commission in July 1969. In 1962 the Netherlands, one of the original members, withdrew when it ceased to be responsible for a territory in the area.

Each territory has its own programme of economic and social development administered by one of the seven participating governments in the Commission. The Commission assists these programmes by bringing people together for discussion and study, by research into some of the problems common to the region, by providing expert advice and assistance and by disseminating technical information.

ACTIVITIES

The Commission organizes conferences of technical experts, seminars and training courses. It finances study tours by technical officers, promotes research and collects, prepares and distributes information. The work of the Commission falls within three fields:

Health: Public health, health education, maternal and child health, nutrition, epidemiology, environmental sanitation, parasitology, mental health and preventive psychiatry, dental health, training and research.

Social Development: Literature promotion, education including aptitude testing, language-teaching, community education, urbanization problems, youth work, applied research and training, labour, housing, social welfare, visual aids, home economics, population studies.

Economic Development: Improvement in plant and animal production, plant and animal protection, quarantine, extension of agriculture, fisheries, economic affairs, business methods, research and training, land tenure, co-operatives, forestry and rodent control.

L'UNION DOUANIÈRE ET ÉCONOMIQUE DE L'AFRIQUE CENTRALE—UDEAC

Bangui, Central African Republic

Came into operation in January 1966 and replaces the former Union douanière équatoriale (f. 1959).

MEMBERS*

Cameroon

Central African Republic

Congo (Brazzaville)

Gabon

* Central African Republic and Chad withdrew from the Union in April 1968 to form the Union des états de l'Afrique centrale (UEAC) together with Congo (Kinshasa) (now Zaire). Central African Republic subsequently rejoined UDEAC in December 1968.

ORGANIZATION

COUNCIL OF HEADS OF STATES

Meets at least once a year to determine general policy; the supreme organ of the Union. The presidency of the Council is by annual alphabetical rotation. Pres. (1971) JEAN-BÉDEL BOKASSA (Central African Republic).

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

Permanent deliberative body of the Union; comprises the Finance Ministers and Ministers concerned with economic development from each of the participating countries, and meets at least once a year.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

In charge of the executive functions of the Union; composed of a Customs, Statistics and Fiscal division and a division of Development and Industrialization; associated with the Inter-State Accounts Agency; in January 1966 the Secretariat of the Conférence des chefs d'état de l'Afrique équatoriale was merged with that of UDEAC but became a separate institution again in December 1967. Sec.-Gen. PIERRE TCHANQUE (Cameroon).

FUNCTIONS

The main provisions of the Union, embodied in the Treaty of Brazzaville, aim to rationalize and harmonize the tariff and tax systems of the four member states, and include:

Customs Union: The group of five states constitutes a free trade area, in which the circulation of persons, merchandise, services and capital is free. A common external tariff, additional to previous duties and fiscal charges, is levied on all imports entering the region, except on goods from members of the European Economic Community and of the former Union africaine et malgache. A common investment code has been established.

Solidarity Fund: Compensates the land-locked Central African Republic for the loss of customs revenue on imports cleared in coastal member states but then re-exported inland. A total of 1,900 million frs. CFA have been donated to this fund.

Repartition of Industrial Projects and Harmonization of Development Plans and Transport Policies: The Union stimulates the rational development and diversification of the economies of member states, in order to multiply inter-state exchanges and to improve the standard of living of the population. The Executive Council decides on measures to harmonize development plans and transport policies. An oil refinery at Port Gentil, Gabon, is being constructed as a joint enterprise.

Uniform Tax System: The many internal revenue-raising taxes on industrial production have now been replaced by a single tax regime, fixed by the Executive Committee. The Council of Heads of State adopted an act regulating this matter in 1965.

Free Circulation of Persons and the Right of Establishment: Regulated by the convention signed in 1961 by UAM (see Chapter on OCAM).

La Banque centrale des états de l'Afrique équatoriale et du Cameroun: 29 rue de Colisée, Paris 8e, France; f. 1955; sole issuing bank for the five members of UDEAC; Pres. GEORGES GAUTIER.

ORGANIZATION

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Meets at least once a year in each member state in turn to determine policy; supreme organ of the Union; each member state is represented by its Minister of Finance or a member of Government.

President: LOUIS NÈGRE (Mali).

CONFERENCE OF HEADS OF STATE

The first Conference of Heads of State was held at Bamako in May 1970. Togo was present as an observer. Unanimous support was given to a draft protocol creating a West African Economic Community, which will be open to all west African states.

President: H. E. MOUSSA TRAORE (Mali).

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS

Meets at least twice a year to formulate proposals and recommendations on matters brought before it by the Secretary-General who is President of the Committee; can set up special Commissions to study questions relating to the Union.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Responsible for liaison between member states and for the executive functions of the Union; studies problems relating to common external tariffs and the harmonizing of legislation; supervises the implementation of decisions made by the Council; the Secretary-General is nominated for a renewable term of three years by the Council of Ministers.

Secretary-General: A. TAMBOURA (Upper Volta).

FUNCTIONS

The Convention signed in March 1966 includes the following provisions:

Common external tariff on imports entering the region, with the exception of goods from countries of the Franc Zone and the European Economic Community, which are accorded preferential treatment.

An internal fiscal charge on goods originating in the UDEAO at the rate of 50 per cent of the duty levied on similar imported goods; a member state can be authorized to raise the rate of this fiscal charge to 70 per cent to protect its own industry if the latter is threatened by competition.

Free circulation of goods; individual member states may, however, be authorized to institute temporary quota restrictions on imports from other members, in order to redress balance of payments deficits.

UNION OF INTERNATIONAL FAIRS

(Union des Foires Internationales)

60 rue la Boétie, Paris 8e, France

The Union was founded in 1925 to increase co-operation between international fairs, safeguard their interests and extend their operations.

ORGANIZATION

ANNUAL CONGRESS

The Annual Congress, which is the sovereign body of UFI, is held every year in a different town. The Congress lays down UFI policy, decides upon applications for membership and determines the programme of work for the coming year.

Each member fair of UFI is entitled to a certain number of votes in the Congress deliberations. Decisions are carried by an absolute majority of the total number of votes.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: A. L. BLANCHOT (France).

Treasurer: C. BERTOLOTTI (Italy).

PUBLICATION

International Stand Magazine.

AIMS

UFI has defined the conditions to be fulfilled to qualify as an "International Fair". It has drafted, in co-operation with the International Chamber of Commerce, a series of criteria applicable to international specialized displays. It seeks to discourage inferior displays.

Questions studied by UFI include:

1. Establishment of bonded warehouses within fair premises.
2. Facilitating customs formalities.

3. Authorization of temporary imports.
4. Granting of special quotas for the sale of foreign goods exhibited at fairs.
5. Reduction of transport rates for visitors and for goods on display.
6. Granting of visas free of charge for users of fairs.
7. Allotment of foreign exchange quotas for exhibitors.
8. Protection of inventions on display.

THE WARSAW TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP, CO-OPERATION AND MUTUAL ASSISTANCE— THE WARSAW PACT

Headquarters of the Joint Command: Moscow, U.S.S.R.

The Warsaw Treaty of Friendship Co-operation and Mutual Assistance (The Warsaw Pact) was signed in Warsaw in May 1955. The Treaty supplemented agreements already in existence between the U.S.S.R. and Czechoslovakia (1943), Poland (1945), and Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania (1948).

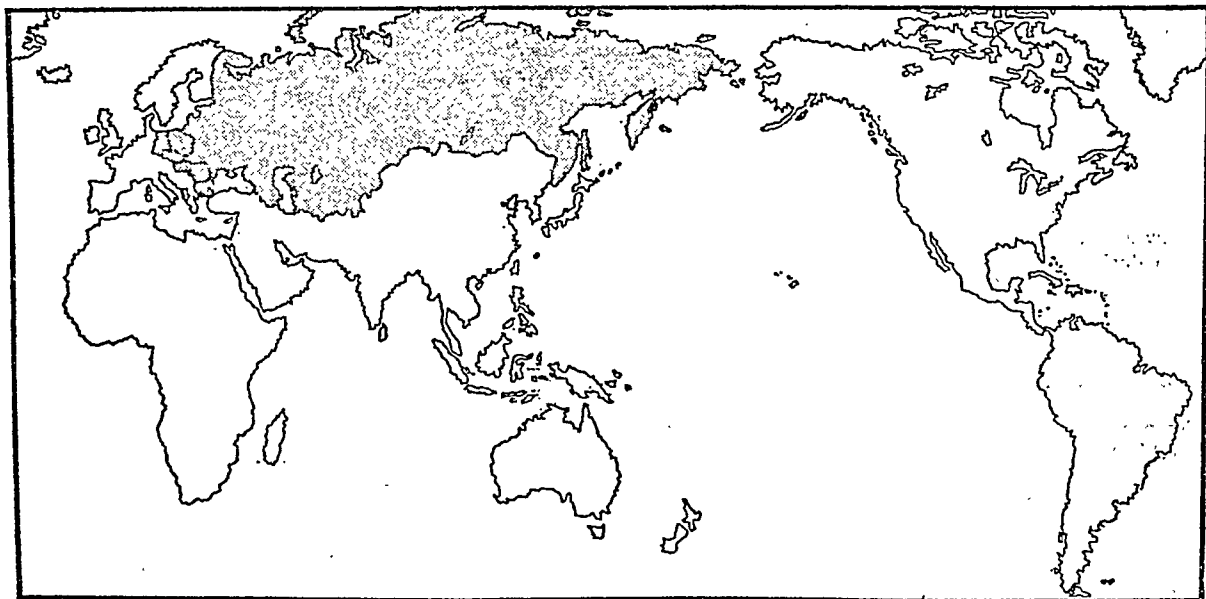

MEMBERS

Bulgaria
Czechoslovakia
German Democratic Republic

Hungary
Poland

Romania
U.S.S.R.

Albania has not participated in Warsaw Pact activities since 1961, and in September 1968 announced her withdrawal from the Pact.

ORGANIZATION

POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

The Committee was intended to meet not less than twice a year, but in fact there have been fewer meetings, the most recent being in December 1970 in Berlin. The Chairmanship is held by each member country in turn for one year. Delegations of member states normally include the First Secretary of the Party, the Chairman of the Council of Ministers, the Minister of Defence and the Foreign Minister.

MILITARY COUNCIL

Set up March 17th, 1969; Chair. Marshal YAKUBOVSKY.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF THE JOINT ARMED FORCES

Set up March 17th, 1969.

COMMITTEE OF DEFENCE MINISTERS

Set up March 17th, 1969; Chair. Marshal YAKUBOVSKY.

JOINT SECRETARIAT

Established in January 1956 in Moscow; Sec.-Gen. N. P. FIRYUBIN (U.S.S.R.).

THE WARSAW PACT

JOINT COMMAND OF THE ARMED FORCES

Set up in 1955 under the general supervision of the Political Consultative Committee.

Commander-in-Chief: Marshal IVAN YAKUBOVSKY (U.S.S.R.).

Chief of Staff: Gen. SERGEI SHTEMENKO (U.S.S.R.).

Deputy Commanders-in-Chief: The Defence Ministers of the member states.

Bulgaria: Gen. of the Army DOBRI DZHUROV.

Czechoslovakia: Col.-Gen. MARTIN DZUR.

German Democratic Republic: Gen. of the Army KARL HEINZ HOFFMANN.

Hungary: Col.-Gen. LAJOS CZINEGE.

Poland: Gen. WOJCIECH JARUZELSKI.

Romania: Col.-Gen. ION IONITA.

COMBINED GENERAL STAFF

Composed of representatives of the seven member states with headquarters in Moscow.

THE WARSAW PACT

THE WARSAW TREATY

ARTICLE ONE

The contracting parties pledge themselves in conformity with the Charter of the UN to refrain in their international relations from a threat or use of force, and to resolve their international disputes by peaceful means in such a way so as not to threaten international peace and security.

ARTICLE TWO

The contracting parties declare that they are ready to participate in the spirit of sincere co-operation in all international actions aimed at safeguarding international peace and security and will fully dedicate their efforts to the realization of these aims. The contracting parties will strive for the adoption by agreement with other States desiring to collaborate in this matter of effective measures for the general reduction of armaments and the prohibition of atomic, hydrogen and other weapons of mass destruction.

ARTICLE THREE

The contracting parties shall consult each other on all important international questions affecting their common interests, being guided by the requirements of strengthening international peace and security. They shall consult with each other without delay at any time when in the opinion of any one of them a threat arises of armed attack on one or several States signatory to the Treaty, in the interests of ensuring joint defence and the maintenance of peace and security.

ARTICLE FOUR

In case of armed attack in Europe on one or several States signatory to the Treaty, by any State or group of States, each State signatory to the Treaty, by way of exercising the right to individual or collective defence, in conformity with Article 51 of the UN Charter, shall render the State or States subjected to such attack immediate aid individually and by agreement with other States signatory to the Treaty, with all the means which it shall deem necessary, including the use of armed force. The States signatory to the Treaty shall immediately consult each other as to the joint measures which must be taken to secure and maintain international peace and security. The measures adopted on the basis of this Article will be reported to the Security Council in conformity with the Articles of the UN Charter. These measures will be terminated as soon as the Security Council launches measures necessary for the restoration and maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE FIVE

The contracting parties have agreed to set up a Joint Command of their armed forces to be placed, by agreement between the Powers, at the disposal of this Command acting on the basis of jointly established principles. They shall also take other co-ordinated measures necessary for the strengthening of their defensive capacity in order to protect the peaceful labour of their peoples, guarantee the integrity of their frontiers and territories and ensure defence against possible aggression.

ARTICLE SIX

With the object of carrying out consultations provided by the present Treaty between the States participating in the Treaty and for the examination of questions arising in connection with the realization of this Treaty, a Political Consultative Committee is being set up in which each State participating in the Treaty will be represented by a member of its Government or another specially appointed representative. The Committee may set up any auxiliary organs it considers necessary.

ARTICLE SEVEN

The contracting parties pledge themselves to refrain from taking part in coalitions or alliances of any kind and from concluding any agreements the aims of which conflict with the aims of this Treaty. The contracting parties declare that their commitments under existing international Treaties are in no way contradictory to the provisions of this Treaty.

ARTICLE EIGHT

The contracting parties declare that they will act in the spirit of friendship and co-operation with the aim of further developing and strengthening economic and cultural relations between them, following the principles of mutual respect for their independence and sovereignty and non-interference in domestic affairs.

ARTICLE NINE

The Treaty is open for accession to other States, irrespective of their social and State systems which may express their readiness by means of participating in this Treaty to promote the unification of the efforts of the peace-loving countries for the purpose of ensuring peace and the security of the peoples. Accession to the Treaty shall enter into force by agreement with the States participating in the Treaty after the document of accession has been deposited with the Government of the Polish People's Republic.

ARTICLE TEN

The present Treaty is subject to ratification, and the ratification instruments shall be deposited with the Government of the Polish People's Republic. The Treaty shall enter into force on the day when the last ratification instrument has been deposited. The Government of the Polish People's Republic shall inform the other States signatory to the Treaty of the depositing of each ratification instrument.

ARTICLE ELEVEN

The present Treaty shall remain in force for 20 years. For the contracting parties who do not hand to the Government of the Polish People's Republic a declaration denouncing the Treaty one year before the expiration of this term it shall remain in force for the following 10 years. Should a system of collective security be set up in Europe and an all-European treaty of collective security concluded for this purpose, towards which the contracting Powers will continue to aspire, the present Treaty is to lose its validity on the day on which an all-European treaty comes into force.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION—WEU

9 Grosvenor Place, London, S.W.1, England

Based on the Brussels Treaty of 1948, Western European Union was set up in 1955. Member States seek to co-ordinate their defence policy and equipment, and to co-operate in political, social, legal and cultural affairs.

Chairman of the Liberal Group: Lord GLADWYN (United Kingdom).

Chairman of the Socialist Group: M. STEWART (United Kingdom).

Clerk: FRANCIS HUMBLET, 43 Avenue du Président Wilson, Paris 16e, France.

The Assembly of Western European Union consists of the delegates of the member countries to the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe and meets twice a year in Paris. The Assembly considers defence policy in Western Europe, besides other matters concerning Member States in common, and may make recommendations or transmit opinions to the Council, to national parliaments, governments and international organisations. An annual report, with special reference to the Agency for the Control of Armaments, is presented to the Assembly by the Council.

PERMANENT COMMITTEES OF THE ASSEMBLY

Defence Questions and Armaments: Chairman: W. J. PEEL (United Kingdom).

General Affairs: Chairman: K.-P. SCHULZ (Federal Republic of Germany).

Scientific Questions: Chairman: P. DE MONTESQUIOU (France).

Budgetary Affairs and Administration: A. BERTHET (Italy).

Rules of Procedure and Privileges: H. CRAVATTE (Luxembourg).

Relations with Parliaments: Dame JOAN VICKERS (United Kingdom).

HISTORY

Western European Union is a development of the Brussels Treaty signed by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom in 1948. That Treaty provided for collective self-defence, mutual automatic military assistance in the event of a repetition of hostilities and for collaboration in economic, social and cultural matters between these five states. At the time of its signature, the Treaty was a unique instrument, creating the most closely-knit international co-operative association ever known. Furthermore, it contributed directly to the creation of larger similarly combined efforts: on the military side NATO, and on the civil side the Council of Europe.

As a sequel to the collapse in 1954 of the plans for creating a European Defence Community, a nine-power conference was convened in London in order to attempt to reach a new agreement. In particular some means had to be found of associating the defence effort of the Federal Republic of Germany with NATO. The conference was attended by Ministers representing Belgium, Canada, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States of America. A document was drawn up stating that the occupation régime in Germany would be ended and that Germany would join NATO; the former Brussels Treaty would be strengthened and extended, and Germany and Italy would be invited to accede to it.

These decisions were embodied in a series of agreements, signed in 1954, which form the substance of the seven-power Western European Union, the seven powers being Belgium, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. The ratification of these agreements was completed by May 6th, 1955, on which date Western European Union came into being.

On the ratification of the agreements, Western European Union was also charged with the specific task of settling the future of the Saar. Under a Franco-German agreement, the Saar was to have a European Statute within the framework of WEU, provided that this Statute was approved by a referendum. A Commission was set up in May 1955 to supervise the referendum, which was held on October 23rd, 1955. The result showed that the Saar majority had voted against the adoption of the European Statute and had furthermore expressed a wish to be incorporated in the Federal Republic of Germany. The Saar then became a Land of the Federal Republic of Germany, but remained linked economically to France. The final incorporation of the territory, now re-named Saarland, took place on July 5th, 1959.

The activities of the four main social and cultural committees were transferred to the Council of Europe in June 1960.

The Council of WEU has formally approved certain relaxations of the restrictions on German arms production imposed by Protocol III of the revised Brussels Treaty. They concern specified long-range and guided missiles, influence mines, and the construction of certain ships and submarines.

In July 1963, following the suspension of negotiations for Britain's entry into the Common Market, it was agreed that the WEU Council would meet at quarterly intervals and that the economic situation in Europe would be an item regularly on its agenda. The Commission of the EEC would be invited to be represented during the discussion of this point. These meetings continued between 1963 and 1970. Although political consultation continues, discussions on the economic situation have been suspended since the re-opening at the end of June 1970 of negotiations for the enlargement of the European Economic Community.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

Several proposals were put forward at Council Meetings held during 1968 for closer political and defence consultations within the framework of WEU and, specifically, for discussions relating to Britain's role in Europe

At a ministerial meeting in Luxembourg in February 1969 the United Kingdom's proposal for a meeting to discuss the Middle East situation was approved by all members except France. This meeting, organized by the WEU Secretariat in London later in the month, was boycotted by France, who declared that she would not attend ministerial meetings until further notice, because the convening of the present meeting without the unanimous approval of WEU members was a breach of treaty.

France rejoined the Council in June 1970.

THE BRUSSELS TREATY

(as amended by Protocol No. 1, signed in 1954, modifying and completing the Treaty)

ARTICLE I

Convinced of the close community of their interests and of the necessity of uniting in order to promote the economic recovery of Europe, the High Contracting Parties will so organise and co-ordinate their economic activities as to produce the best possible results, by the elimination of conflict in their economic policies, the co-ordination of production and the development of commercial exchanges.

The co-operation provided for in the preceding paragraph, which will be effected through the Council referred to in Article VIII as well as through other bodies, shall not involve any duplication of, or prejudice to, the work of other economic organisations in which the High Contracting Parties are or may be represented but shall on the contrary assist the work of those organisations.

ARTICLE II

The High Contracting Parties will make every effort in common, both by direct consultation and in specialised agencies, to promote the attainment of a higher standard of living by their peoples and to develop on corresponding lines the social and other related services of their countries.

The High Contracting Parties will consult with the object of achieving the earliest possible application of recommendations of immediate practical interest, relating to social matters, adopted with their approval in the specialised agencies.

They will endeavour to conclude as soon as possible conventions with each other in the sphere of social security.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

ARTICLE III

The High Contracting Parties will make every effort in common to lead their peoples towards a better understanding of the principles which form the basis of their common civilisation and to promote cultural exchanges by conventions between themselves or by other means.

ARTICLE IV

In the execution of the Treaty the High Contracting Parties and any organs established by them under the Treaty shall work in close co-operation with the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation.

Recognising the undesirability of duplicating the military staffs of NATO, the Council and its Agency will rely on the appropriate military authorities of NATO for information and advice on military matters.

ARTICLE V

If any of the High Contracting Parties should be the object of an armed attack in Europe, the other High Contracting Parties will, in accordance with the provisions of Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, afford the Party so attacked all the military and other aid and assistance in their power.

ARTICLE VI

All measures taken as a result of the preceding Article shall be immediately reported to the Security Council. They shall be terminated as soon as the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security.

The present Treaty does not prejudice in any way the obligations of the High Contracting Parties under the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations. It shall not be interpreted as affecting in any way the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

ARTICLE VII

The High Contracting Parties declare, each so far as he is concerned, that none of the international engagements now in force between him and any of the High Contracting Parties or any third State is in conflict with the provisions of the present Treaty.

None of the High Contracting Parties will conclude any alliance or participate in any coalition directed against any other of the High Contracting Parties.

ARTICLE VIII

1. For the purposes of strengthening peace and security and of promoting unity and of encouraging the progressive integration of Europe and closer co-operation between them and with other European organisations, the High Contracting Parties to the Brussels Treaty shall create a Council to consider matters concerning the execution of this Treaty and of its Protocols and their Annexes.

2. This Council shall be known as the "Council of Western European Union"; it shall be so organised as to be able to exercise its functions continuously; it shall set up such subsidiary bodies as may be considered necessary: in particular it shall establish immediately an Agency for the Control of Armaments, whose functions are defined in Protocol No. IV.

At the request of any of the High Contracting Parties the Council shall be immediately convened in order to permit them to consult with regard to any situation which may constitute a threat to peace, in whatever area this threat should arise, or a danger to economic stability.

The Council shall decide by unanimous vote questions for which no other voting procedure has been or may be agreed. In the cases provided for in Protocols II, III and IV it will follow the various voting procedures, unanimity, two-thirds majority, simple majority, laid down therein. It will decide by simple majority questions submitted to it by the Agency for the Control of Armaments.

ARTICLE IX

The Council of Western European Union shall make an annual report on its activities and, in particular, concerning the control of armaments to an Assembly composed of representatives of the Brussels Treaty Powers to the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe.

ARTICLE X

In pursuance of their determination to settle disputes only by peaceful means, the High Contracting Parties will apply to disputes between themselves the following provisions:

The High Contracting Parties will, while the present Treaty remains in force, settle all disputes falling within the scope of Article 36, paragraph 2, of the Statute of the International Court of Justice by referring them to the Court, subject only, in the case of each of them, to any reservation already made by that Party when accepting this clause for compulsory jurisdiction, to the extent that that Party may maintain the reservation.

In addition, the High Contracting Parties will submit to conciliation all disputes outside the scope of Article 36, paragraph 2, of the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

In the case of a mixed dispute involving both questions for which conciliation is appropriate and other questions for which judicial settlement is appropriate, any Party to the dispute shall have the right to insist that the judicial settlement of the legal questions shall precede conciliation.

The preceding provisions of this Article in no way affect the application of relevant provisions or agreements prescribing some other method of pacific settlement.

ARTICLE XI

The High Contracting Parties may, by agreement, invite any other State to accede to the present Treaty on conditions to be agreed between them and the State so invited.

Any State so invited may become a Party to the Treaty by depositing an instrument of accession with the Belgian Government.

The Belgian Government will inform each of the High Contracting Parties of the deposit of each instrument of accession.

ARTICLE XII

The present Treaty shall be ratified and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Belgian Government.

It shall enter into force on the date of the deposit of the last instrument of ratification and shall thereafter remain in force for fifty years.

After the expiry of the period of fifty years, each of the High Contracting Parties shall have the right to cease to be a party thereto provided that he shall have previously given one year's notice of denunciation to the Belgian Government.

The Belgian Government shall inform the Governments of the other High Contracting Parties of the deposit of each instrument of ratification and of each notice of denunciation.

This Protocol is incorporated in the text of the revised Treaty as printed above.

PROTOCOL No. II

This Protocol sets upper limits on the size of the land and air forces which the members of WEU maintain on the continent of Europe in peace-time and place under the command of the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe. For Belgium, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and the Netherlands these limits are the same as in the Annex to the EDC Treaty; for Luxembourg the limit is one regimental combat team, while for the United Kingdom it is four divisions and the Second Tactical Air Force. The level of naval forces are determined annually by NATO. These limits are not to be increased except by unanimous agreement, and the level of internal defence and police forces are also to be established by internal agreement. Finally, the United Kingdom agreed not to withdraw or diminish her forces in Europe against the wishes of the majority of her partners, except in the event of an acute overseas emergency.

PROTOCOL No. III

Under the third Protocol, the Federal Republic of Germany undertook not to manufacture atomic, chemical or biological weapons, or certain other weapons on a list (including guided missiles, warships and strategic bombers) which can be amended by the Council of WEU by a two-thirds majority. The Federal Republic agreed to supervision to ensure that these undertakings were respected and the other members agreed that their stocks of various weapons would be subject to control.

PROTOCOL No. IV

This Protocol provided for the setting up of the Agency for the Control of Armaments, which has the task of ensuring that the commitments contained in the third Protocol are observed. A Resolution was also passed setting up the Standing Armaments Committee. (See Organization above.)

WORLD CONFEDERATION OF LABOUR

SUMMARY OF THE CONSTITUTION

Preamble: Declaration of Principles (Luxembourg Congress, October 1968).

The World Confederation of Labour (WCL) is an international movement of workers' trade union organizations.

The WCL is convinced that men's fulfilment, as also the development of nations—whether it be in the technical, economic, political, social or cultural fields—has a spiritual as well as material content. This is particularly true of the view men form of the purpose of life. The WCL's statement of its principles and definition of its objectives and methods of action are consistent with either a spiritual concept based on the conviction that man and the universe are created by God, or other concepts that lead together with it to a common effort to build a human community united in freedom, dignity, justice and brotherhood.

The WCL, which originated in the Christian-inspired trade union movement, now addresses its message in the present Declaration of Principles to all workers everywhere in the world who are willing to subscribe to it, whatever may be their creed, concept of life, race or sex.

ARTICLE 1. The WCL devotes its action to studying, promoting, representing and defending the material, moral and spiritual interests of the workers. It takes full responsibility for its action, deciding this independently of any outside authority, whatever its kind, political, religious or other.

Presidents: His Holiness Patriarch GERMAN (Yugoslavia); Bishop HANNS LILJE (Germany); Rev. Dr. E. A. PAYNE, C.H. (U.K.); Rev. Dr. JOHN COVENTRY SMITH (U.S.A.); Rt. Rev. Bishop A. H. ZULU (South Africa); Dr. KIVOKO TAKEDO CHO (Japan).

ASSEMBLY

The governing body of the World Council, consisting of delegates of the member Churches, meets every six or seven years to frame policy and consider some main theme.

MEETINGS

Amsterdam, Netherlands	August 1948
Evanston, U.S.A.	August 1954
New Delhi, India	November 1961
Uppsala, Sweden	July 1968

The next Assembly is scheduled for 1975.

PRINCIPAL COMMITTEES

CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Chairman: M. M. THOMAS (India).

Vice-Chairmen: Metropolitan MELITON (Turkey), Miss P. M. WEBB (U.K.).

Appointed by the Assembly to carry out its policies and decisions. Consists of 120 members chosen from Assembly delegates and meets annually.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Chairman: M. M. THOMAS (India).

Vice-Chairmen: Metropolitan MELITON (Turkey), Miss P. M. WEBB (U.K.).

Consists of twenty-six members chosen by the Central Committee to prepare its agenda, expedite its decisions and supervise the work of the Council between meetings of the Central Committee. Meets every six months.

SECRETARIAT

General Secretary: Dr. EUGENE CARSON BLAKE (U.S.A.).

Director, Finance and Central Services: FRANK NORTHAM (U.K.).

PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES

Studies. Theological research work is undertaken, and conferences and commissions study the reunion of the Churches, evangelism and missionary work, the role of the Church in society, religious liberty, racial and cultural relations, and the place of the layman in the Church today.

Inter-Church Aid. Provides funds for Churches in need and considers each year a list of projects, allocating funds for those approved.

Refugee and World Service. Provision of financial and material relief in disaster areas and distribution of food, clothing, medical supplies and tents. Thousands of refugees have been re-settled by the Council, which also provides medical care, homes for aged refugees and educational facilities.

Education. The Education Office was set up in 1968 jointly with the World Council of Christian Education; plans for the integration of the two bodies are going forward. The office is concerned with both religious and general education. The Council provides scholarships for theological students to continue their education in other countries, largely in places provided by member Churches in their theological schools. The Ecumenical Institute holds educational courses, study conferences and a graduate course in ecumenical studies in connection with the University of Geneva, at Bossey, Switzerland.

WORLD COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

International Affairs. The Commission of the Churches on International Affairs represents the Council at conferences of international bodies such as the United Nations, and works for peace, justice and freedom.

Mission and Evangelism. The Council's Commission on World Mission and Evangelism (formerly the International Missionary Council) serves the Churches and missionary societies in the maintenance of missionary work and promotes co-operation in the common task of evangelism.

Youth Activities. The Council promotes world youth projects and ecumenical work camps as well as providing opportunities for voluntary service by young people.

Faith and Witness. The Commission on Faith and Order was reconstituted at the Uppsala Assembly in 1968. Its first meeting with Roman Catholics present as full members was held in Louvain, Belgium, in August 1971. The main theme of the meeting was "The Unity of the Church and the Unity of Mankind".

Programme to Combat Racism. This was inaugurated in August 1969 by the Central Committee. The first grants, amounting to $300,000, were made from the Fund in September 1970 to liberation movements in Europe, South America, Japan and Africa. The second allocation, totalling $200,000, was made in September 1971 to movements in South Africa, North America, South America, the Caribbean, Japan and Europe.

WORLD FEDERATION OF TRADE UNIONS

SUMMARY OF THE CONSTITUTION

Adopted by the World Trade Union Conference, October 3rd, 1945; modified by the amendments adopted by the 2nd and 4th World Trade Union Congress (1949 and 1957), and by the 16th Session of the General Council mandated by the 6th World Trade Union Congress (1966), and by the 7th World Trade Union Congress (1969).

The World Federation of Trade Unions exists to improve the living and working conditions of the people of all lands and to unite them in pursuit of the objectives sought by all freedom-loving peoples as set forth in the Declarations of the London World Trade Union Conference in February 1945, and the resolutions and decisions of principle adopted by the First World Trade Union Congress in Paris in October 1945. The WFTU works for a world system where social injustices and every form of exploitation of man by man will be banished. While retaining its independence of political parties and governments, the WFTU accepts co-operation with all progressive forces in the world which are fighting against imperialism, colonialism and neo-colonialism, for social progress, national independence and peace. (Followed by a proclamation of the prime purposes of WFTU and its working principles.)

ARTICLES 1-2. Composition: Bona fide union organizations. As a general rule, affiliation shall be confined to a single national trade union centre from each country. The Executive Bureau shall make decisions about admission, subject to ratification by the General Council and the Congress.

ARTICLE 3. Structure: World Trade Union Congress; General Council; Executive Bureau; Secretariat.

ARTICLE 4. World Trade Union Congress: Congress, the sovereign authority of WFTU, shall be convened every four years.

ARTICLE 5. General Council, elected by the World Congress, shall meet every year.

ARTICLE 6. Executive Bureau: Elected by the General Council and consists of the President, General Secretary and other members from the different continents, the number of which is decided at each Congress. Meets in three ordinary sessions per year.

ARTICLE 7. Secretariat: Consists of the General Secretary and the Secretaries, taking into account the representation of all the regions of the world.

ARTICLES 8-9. Auditors, Budget and Funds. Funds are to be provided by affiliation fees given on a total membership basis and paid quarterly.

ARTICLES 10-11. Internal Administration and Headquarters.

ARTICLE 12. Discipline: Deleted.

ARTICLE 13. Trade Unions Internationals (TUI's) (originally Trade Departments): Organization; Functions; relationship with WFTU. Every TUI shall be represented at the Congress and the General Council by one delegate and one deputy delegate. These delegates have the right to vote, by a show of hands, but shall not participate in the event of a card roll call vote.

ARTICLE 14. Regional Trade Union Activities.

WORLD FEDERATION OF UNITED NATIONS ASSOCIATIONS—WFUNA

Centre International, 3 rue de Varembe, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Founded in 1946 as a peoples' movement supporting the United Nations.

Members: United Nations Associations in 80 countries.

ORGANIZATION

PLENARY ASSEMBLY

The supreme organ of the Federation, responsible for policy. Meets in ordinary session every two years. Delegates appointed by member Associations and the International Student Movement for the United Nations.

President: Justice MICHAEL A. TRIANTAFYLIDIS (Cyprus).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of 13 representatives of the member Associations and one member from the International Student Movement for the United Nations. Responsible for the execution of policy decisions, administration and finance.

Chairman: Dr. FRANCO A. CASADIO (Italy).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: L. H. HORACE PERERA (Ceylon).

Responsible for the day-to-day administration and the general affairs of the Federation.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Federation aims to be a peoples' movement for the United Nations and to co-ordinate and further the activities of the United Nations Associations. It also seeks to promote tolerance, understanding, solidarity and international co-operation among all people regardless of race, religion, sex or language, to contribute to peaceful co-operation among nations, to strive for security, justice, disarmament and the recognition of human rights and to improve economic and social conditions. It conducts seminars, regional conferences and study courses about the United Nations. There have been seminars for educators on teaching about the United Nations in Cuba, France, Lebanon, India, El Salvador, Liberia, Somalia, Philippines, Uruguay, Germany, Denmark, Italy, Pakistan, Australia, Ghana, Malaysia, Tanzania, Dahomey, Paraguay, Mexico, Poland, Egypt and Venezuela. Seminars on adult education have been held in Thailand and Romania.

There have been several study courses on the various specialized agencies of the United Nations. The Federation also conducts annually in co-operation with the International Student Movement for the United Nations a Summer School on a special aspect of the work of the United Nations or of its specialized agencies. The Federation enjoys Consultative Status I with the United Nations Economic and Social Council and Consultative and Associate Status A with UNESCO. It also has consultative relations with the World Health Organization, the International Labour Organization, UNICEF, the World Meteorological Organization, the Food and Agriculture Organization and the International Atomic Energy Agency. These relations enable the Federation to present the suggestions and views of its members to the specialized agencies.

BUDGET

Annual dues paid by Member Associations in proportion to the contributions paid by their governments to the United Nations are the main source of revenue. The balance is provided by donations from Foundations and private individuals, and special projects are financed by UNESCO.

Publ. Geological Newsletter, Reviews.

International Union of Physiological Sciences: Dept. of Physiology, University of Zurich, Zurich, Switzerland; f. 1953 to encourage the series of International Congresses of Physiological Sciences; to promote further congresses; to take all action which will contribute to the development of physiological sciences; mems. national or regional physiological societies of 40 countries. Next Congress: New Delhi 1974.

Pres. Y. ZOTTERMAN (Sweden); Vice-Pres. K. LISSÁK (Hungary), H. RAHN (U.S.A.); Sec. W. HUNSPERGER (Switzerland); Treas. E. NEIL (U.S.A.). Publ. IUPS Newsletter.

International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry (IUPAC) (Union internationale de chimie pure et appliquée): c/o IUPAC Secretariat, Bank Court Chambers, 2-3 Pound Way, Cowley Centre, Oxford, OX4 3YF, England; f. 1920. Object: to organize permanent co-operation between chemical associations in the member countries, to study topics of international importance requiring regularization, standardization or codification, to co-operate with other international organizations in the field of chemistry and to contribute to the advancement of all aspects of chemistry. Forty-four member countries.

Pres. Prof. J. BÉNARD (France); Gen. Sec. Dr. W. GALLAY (Canada); Treas. Prof. O. HORN (Germany). Pubs. Comptes Rendus (biennial), Information Bulletin (three per year), Pure and Applied Chemistry (four vols. per year).

International Union of Pure and Applied Physics (Union internationale de physique pure et appliquée): Nuffield Lodge, Regent's Park, London, NW1 4RS; f. 1922. Object: to promote and encourage international co-operation in physics. Thirty-six countries are affiliated. Pres. R. F. BACHER (U.S.A.); Sec.-Gen. C. C. BUTLER.

International Union of the History and Philosophy of Science (Union internationale d'histoire et de philosophie des sciences): 12 rue Colbert, Paris 2e, France; f. 1956. Object: To act as a clearing-house for research into the history and philosophy of science and to assist directly the activities of UNESCO in this field. Mem.: 27 countries, 3 scientific associations. Last Congress on the History of Science: Moscow, 1971.

Council: Pres. Prof. I. B. COHEN (U.S.A.); Vice-Pres. Prof. S. KÖRNER (U.K.); Sec.-Gen. Prof. R. TATON (France). Pubs. Archives internationales d'histoire des sciences, Journal of Symbolic Logic.

International Union of Theoretical and Applied Mechanics (Union internationale de mécanique théorique et appliquée): c/o Technical University of Denmark, Building 404, 2800 Lyngby, Denmark. The Union was created by a decision of the International Committee for the Congresses of Applied Mechanics at its meeting in Paris during the Sixth Congress, in September 1946. It formally came into existence on April 1st, 1947. The object of the Union is to form a link between persons and organizations engaged in scientific work (theoretical or experimental) in mechanics or in related sciences; to organize international congresses of theoretical and applied mechanics, through a standing Congress Committee, and to organize other international meetings for subjects falling within this field; and to engage in other activities meant to promote the development of mechanics as a science; 27 mem. countries. The Union is directed by its General Assembly, which is composed of representatives of the organizations adhering to the Union and of elected members.

SCIENTIFIC ORGANIZATIONS NOT AFFILIATED TO ICSU

Association for the Taxonomic Study of Tropical African Flora (Association pour l'Etude Taxonomique de la Flore d'Afrique Tropicale—AETFAT): Conservatoire et Jardin botaniques de la Ville de Genève, 192 route de Lausanne, 1202 Geneva, Switzerland; f. 1950 to facilitate co-operation and liaison between botanists engaged in the study of the flora of Tropical Africa. Mems.: 550 botanists in 65 countries; maintains a library in Brussels. Sec.-Gen. Prof. JACQUES MIÈGE (Switzerland). Publs. AETFAT Index (annual), AETFAT Bulletin (annual).

Association of African Geological Surveys (Association des Services Géologiques Africains): 74 rue de la Fédération, Paris 15c, France; f. 1929. Aims: synthesis of the geological knowledge of Africa and neighbouring countries; encouragement of research in geological and allied sciences for the benefit of Africa; dissemination of scientific knowledge. Mems.: about 60 (Official Geological Surveys, public and private organizations). Pres. J. E. CUDJOE (Ghana); Sec.-Gen. J. LOMBARD. Publs. maps and studies.

Biometric Society (Société internationale de biométrie, Internationale Biometrische Gesellschaft): Laboratorium für Biometrie, Eidg. Technische Hochschule, CH-8006, Zürich, Switzerland; f. 1947; an international society for the advancement of quantitative biological science through the development of quantitative theories and the application, development and dissemination of effective mathematical and statistical techniques; the Society has 12 regional organizations and 8 national groups, is affiliated with the International Statistical Institute and the World Health Organisation, and constitutes the Section of Biometry of the International Union of Biological Sciences; over 3,000 members in more than 60 countries.

Pres. Prof. P. ARMITAGE (U.K.); Vice-Pres. Dr. B. SCHNEIDER (Federal Republic of Germany); Sec. Dr. H. THÖNI (Switzerland). Publ. Biometrics (quarterly).

Charles Darwin Foundation for the Galápagos Isles (Fundación Charles Darwin para las Islas Galápagos): Palais des Académies, 1 rue Ducale, Brussels 1, Belgium; f. 1959 to organize and maintain the "Charles Darwin" research station, which the Ecuador Government has authorized to be established in the Galápagos Archipelago on the occasion of the centenary of the announcement of the theory of evolution. Mems.: 53. Pres. of Honour Sir JULIAN HUXLEY, F.R.S. (United Kingdom); Pres. Dr. JEAN DORST (France); Vice-Pres. Dr. LUIS JARAMILLO (Ecuador); Secs. Capt. THOMAS E. BARLOW (U.K.), Dr. D. CHALLINOR (U.S.A.), Dr. T. SIMKIN (U.S.A.). Publ. Noticias de Galápagos (twice a year).

European Association for the Exchange of Technical Literature in the Field of Metallurgy (Association Européenne pour l'Echange de la Littérature Technique dans le Domaine de la Sidérurgie): 1A Place des Bains, Luxembourg; f. 1959 to promote translation and exchange of technical literature in metallurgy especially from the U.S.S.R. and the Far East for the benefit of industry, research institutes etc., in the European Community. Mem. institutes in 5 countries.

Pres. G. BAUHOFF (Germany); Vice-Pres. G. DELAUNAY (France). Publs. Lists of translations (monthly), bibliographical index-cards.

European Association of Exploration Geophysicists: 30 Carrel van Bylandtlaan, The Hague, Netherlands; f. 1951 to facilitate contacts between exploration geophysicists, disseminate information to members, arrange regular meetings. 2,400 members in 86 countries throughout the world.

Pres. C. AYNARD (France); Sec. and Treas. H. J. HOOGEVEEN (Netherlands). Publ. Geophysical Prospecting (quarterly) in English, French and German.

European Atomic Energy Society: c/o Centre d'Etude de l'Energie Nucléaire CEN-SCK, Ave. E. Plasky 144, 1040 Brussels; f. 1954 on the initiative of the Royal Vienna 8, Austria; f. 1954 on the initiative of the Royal Society, London, to encourage co-operation in atomic energy research. Mems.: National Atomic Energy Commissions in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, German Federal Republic, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom.

Pres. Sir JOHN HILL (U.K.); Exec. Vice-Pres. J. GOENS (Belgium).

European Atomic Forum (FORATOM): 26 rue de Clichy, Paris, France; f. 1960 to co-ordinate atomic research in European countries; holds periodical conferences; mems.: atomic "forums" in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom.

Pres. M. HALVARD LIANDER; Sec.-Gen. FRANCOIS TORRESI.

European Conference on Satellite Communications (Conférence Européenne des Télécommunications par Satellites—CETS): f. 1963. (See under Science: European Space Conference.)

European Federation for the Protection of Waters (EFPW) (Fédération européenne pour la protection des eaux—FEPE, Föderation Europäischer Gewässerschutz—FEG): Kürbergstrasse 19, 8049 Zürich, Switzerland; f. 1956; to protect European and International waters from pollution; mems. national sections in Austria, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland; corresponding sections in Bulgaria, Denmark, Ireland, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia.

Pres. Prof. Dr. O. JAAG (Switzerland); Sec. Dr. H. E. VOGEL (Switzerland). Publ. Information Bulletin (irregularly).

International Council for Bird Preservation: c/o British Museum (Natural History), Cromwell Road, London, S.W.7, England; f. 1922; promotes international conventions for the preservation of birds and stimulates international action over the prevention of oil pollution at sea; works for the protection of migratory birds, rare birds and birds in Antarctica and Oceania and for the establishment of bird reserves; attacks the use of pesticides toxic to birds; national sections in 60 countries.

Pres. Prof. S. DILLON RIPLEY (U.S.A.); Vice-Pres. Prof. J. DORST (France), Dr. Y. YAMASHINA (Japan). Pubs. Bulletin, President's Letter.

International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (Conseil international pour l'exploration de la mer): Charlottenlund Slot, 2920 Charlottenlund, Copenhagen, Denmark; f. 1902. Objects: Concerted biological and hydrographical investigations for the promotion of a planned exploitation of the resources of the sea. Area of interest: The Atlantic Ocean and its adjacent seas, and primarily the North Atlantic. Library of 15,000 vols. Membership: Governments of 17 countries. Gen. Sec. HANS TAMBS-LYCHE. Pubs. Journal du Conseil, Rapports et Procès-Verbaux, Bulletin Statistique, Statistical Newsletter, ICES Oceanographic Data Lists and Inventories, Annales Biologiques, Co-operative Research Reports, Fiches d'Identification du Zooplancton etc.

International Council of the Aeronautical Sciences: c/o American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, 1290 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019, U.S.A.; f. 1956 to encourage free interchange of information on all phases of mechanical flight. Holds biennial Congresses. Next Congress: Amsterdam 1972. Mems.: national associations in 27 countries.

Chair. Exec. Board Dr. J. J. GREEN (Canada); Exec. Sec. ROBERT R. DEXTER (U.S.A.).

International Federation of Operational Research Societies: c/o 62 Cannon St., London, E.C.4; f. 1959. Aims: the development of operational research as a unified science and its advancement in all nations of the world. Mems.: about 20,000 and 26 national research societies. Pres. Dr. ARNE JENSEN (Denmark); Sec. Mrs. MARGARET KINNAIRD, Operational Research Society, 62 Cannon St., London, E.C.4, England. Publ. International Abstracts in Operational Research.

International Federation of Societies for Electron Microscopy (Fédération Internationale des Sociétés de Microscopie Electronique): c/o Institut de Recherches Scientifiques sur le Cancer, 16 Avenue Vaillant-Couturier, Villejuif (Seine), France; f. 1955. Mems.: representative organizations of 19 countries.

Pres. Prof. V. E. COSSLETT (England); Sec. Prof. W. BERNHARD.

International Food Information Service: Editorial Office, CBDST, Shinfield, Reading, RG2 9AT, England; formed in 1968 by the Institut für Dokumentationswesen (Frankfurt), the Institute of Food Technologists (Chicago), the Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux and the Centrum voor Landbouwpublikaties en Landbouwdocumentaties for the collection and dissemination of scientific and technological information on foods and their processing.

Editor, E. J. MANN, N.D.D., C.D.D. Pubs. Food Science and Technology Abstract (monthly).

International Foundation of the High-Altitude Research Station, Jungfrauoch (Fondation internationale de la station scientifique du Jungfrauoch): 5 Sidlerstrasse, 3000 Berne, Switzerland; f. 1931. An international research centre which enables scientists from many scientific fields to carry out experiments at high altitudes. Seven countries contribute to support the station: Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, United Kingdom.

Pres. Prof. A. VON MURALT; Dir. Dr. H. DEBRUNNER.

International Geological Congress (Congrès géologique international): 24th Congress, 601 Booth St., Ottawa 4, Ontario, Canada; f. 1878 to contribute to the advancement of investigations relating to the study of the Earth, considered from theoretical and practical points of view; the Congress is held every four years; the next session will be held in Montreal, Canada in 1972; 6,000 members.

Pres. Prof. R. E. FOLINSBEE (Canada); Sec.-Gen. Dr. J. E. ARMSTRONG (Canada). Pubs. Technical Section Reports, Field Excursion Guidebooks.

The International Glaciological Society: Lensfield Rd., Cambridge, CB2 1ER; f. 1936 to stimulate interest in and encourage research into the scientific and technical problems of snow and ice in all countries; 900 mems.

Pres. Dr. V. SCHYTT (Sweden); Vice-Pres. Dr. J. W. GLEN (U.K.), Dr. M. DE QUERVAIN (Switzerland); Dr. W. F. WEEKES (U.S.A.); Sec. Mrs. H. RICHARDSON. Pubs. Journal of Glaciology (3 times a year), Ice (News Bulletin—3 times a year).

International Hydrographic Organization (Organisation Hydrographique Internationale): Ave. Président J. F. Kennedy, Monte Carlo, Monaco; f. 1921. Objects: To establish a close and permanent association among the hydrographic offices of its member governments; to co-ordinate the hydrographic work of these offices with a view to rendering navigation easier and safer on all the seas of the world; to endeavour to obtain as far as possible uniformity in charts and hydrographic documents; to encourage the adoption of the best methods of conducting hydrographic surveys and improvements in the theory and practice of the science of hydrography; and to encourage surveying in those parts of the world where accurate charts are lacking; to extend and facilitate the application of oceanographic knowledge for the benefit of navigators. Next conference: 1972. Forty-three member states.

Directing Cttee.: Pres. Ingénieur Hydrographe Général G. CHATEL (France); Dir. Capt. V. A. MORRET (U.S.A.), Capt. I. V. TEGNER (Denmark). Pubs. International Hydrographic Review (twice yearly), International Hydrographic Bulletin (monthly), IHO Yearbook, Reports of Proceedings of I.H. Conferences, Repertory of Technical Resolutions, special publications on various technical subjects, all in English and French, General Bathymetric Chart of the Oceans (in 24 sheets).

International Institute of Refrigeration (Institut International du Froid): 177 blvd. Malesherbes, Paris 17e, France; f. 1920 to further the development of the science and practice of refrigeration on a world wide scale; to investigate, discuss and recommend any aspects leading to improvements in the field of refrigeration. Mems.: 51 countries and 850 associates.

Dir. M. ANQUEZ (France). Pubs. Bulletin (bi-monthly), Proceedings of Meetings, International Codes and Recommendations, etc.

International Institute of Theoretical Sciences (Institut international des sciences théoriques): 221 avenue de Tervueren, Brussels, Belgium; f. 1944.

Dir. S. I. DOCKX. Publ. Archives (irregular).

International Isostatic Institute (Institut isostatique international): Pasilankatu 43, 00240 Helsinki, Finland; f. 1936 at the Assembly of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. Objects: to carry out a systematic and uniform topographic isostatic reduction
